Practically No Hope Left Now

'CAN ONLY WAIT'

Slag Heaps Playground For City Folk

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Five Victoria residents—all members of the same family—attended the ill-fated village school at Aberfan, South Wales, which is now buried in a black avalanche of coal slag and slime.

Reginald Powell, 1135 McKenzie; his brother, Edmond Powell, 4481 Markham Road; his sisters, Mrs. H. V. Green, 6509 Old West Saanich Road, and Mrs. G. H. Smith, 4551 Markham Road; and their nephew, Anthony Searle, 988 Cloverdale.

After reading of the disaster in Friday's Times, Mrs. Green sent a cable to her cousin, Mrs. Bronwen Jones, who lives near the two stone buildings comprising the Pantglas junior and senior school.

Her aunt, Mrs. Sarah Ann Boyes, lives in a small stone house across the road from the school, which lies buried under 2,000,000 tons of rain-soaked mine waste.

Nieces, Nephews Attend School

"We have nieces and nephews who were attending the school," Mrs. Green said. "We are anxiously waiting for a reply to our cable, but with so much rescue work going on it could well be delayed."

Mrs. Green recalled that the two school buildings, separated by a playground, stood directly under the black man-made mountains of coal-mining waste.

"We used to play on these waste heaps," she said, "and many families picked coal from them during the depression years."

Her nephew, Ronald Searle, was evacuated to Aberfan from London during the German blitz of 1941 and attended the Pantglas school with some 200 children living in the village.

"I was pretty young at the time," he said, "but I remember the school fairly well. We used to play on the slag heaps, but no one ever talked of danger.

"I was back in Britain with the Royal Canadian Navy during the coronation year of 1953 and took a trip back to Aberfan.

Riddled With Mine Shafts

"Some of the mining waste had been disposed of, but a lot of it remained. Some of the homes in Aberfan are riddled with mine shafts, which caused them to sink, and several families moved out of their homes because they were considered unsafe."

Reginald Powell said members of the family had been discussing the possibility of a reunion at Aberfan next year.

"We are all very distressed by what has happened," he said. "All we can do, it seems, is wait for an answer to my sister's cable."

News of the tragedy cast a pall of gloom over the Victoria Cymrodorion Society, now planning to attend a Welsh Song Festival in Vancouver Nov. 6.

Several of the society's members come from towns located within a few miles of the ill-fated village.

'Don't Call It Act Of God'

BULLETIN

ABERFAN, Wales (CP)—The coal slag heap began moving again in heavy rain tonight and authorities warned the population to be on alert for new slides.

Times News Services

ABERFAN, Wales — All hopes seemed gone today that anyone would be found alive under the mine rubble slide that brought tragedy to this town Friday.

Total of bodies recovered by this afternoon was 130. All but four were children.

Part of the 500-foot-high coal slag heap split under incessant rain Friday sending more than 1,000,000 tons of slag over the school and into the streets.

Few saw the slide as it rumbled down in fog so thick visibility was limited to 10 feet.

Residents were angry today that the slag had not been removed from the village area.

"I defy any coroner to call this an act of God."

Hundreds of other residents joined him in a demand that the pile should be far from town.

WILSON AT SCENE

Today parents, many with hands raw from tearing at the debris, lined up at a Baptist chapel as the attempt to identify the bodies continued.

Ambulances rumbled through the crowded town all through the night and morning—but their sirens were not sounded any more. This was taken as an indication the passengers were dead.

"David was clutching the five little children in his arms as if to protect them," said the miner who found them.

Crowds huddled during the night in front of a stone chapel that has been pressed into service as a mortuary.

They looked on silently, except for an occasional stifled sob, when trucks drew up before dawn with scores of coffins for the dead.

MOTHERS HELD BACK

Before reaching the school, the slide had swept over a farmhouse, killing two children and their grandmother.

Anguished mothers had to be forcibly held back as rescue workers probed the debris.

The Queen sent a message to Welsh officials saying she was "shocked and distressed to learn of the terrible disaster."

DR. HEWLETT JOHNSON

JOHNSON
. . . Russia's friend

The retired Church of England clergyman had been in grave condition since he fell in his home last week.

He earned his nickname because of his simultaneous preaching of Christianity and communism during his years as Dean of Canterbury, 1931 to 1963.

For years he was the centre of fierce controversy because he praised the Communist way of life. He declared under oath in 1954 that he was not a member of the Communist party.

But during the Spanish Civil War he said: "I saw Red and you can call me Red." Thus he began to be called the "Red Dean."

Twice his activities drew public rebukes from the primate of all England, the Archbishop of Canterbury, but Dr. Johnson was unaffected.

Under English law, the Dean of Canterbury could be removed by an act of Parliament.

Late in 1948 Dr. Johnson made a speaking tour of Canada and the United States. The Canadian part of the tour was sponsored by the Toronto Peace Council.

From Canada he went to the U.S., although the previous year the U.S. had refused him a visa because his sponsor was the United States Soviet Friendship Society. He was given a visa in 1948 but in 1950 the U.S. state department announced he had been permanently barred under a 1918 immigration law which forbids U.S. entry to any persons suspected of belonging to any organization advocating forcible overthrow of the government.

The greatest uproar came in 1952 during the Korean War when the Communist Chinese accused the United States of using germ warfare. Dr. Johnson told a press conference:

"With the deepest shame I learn of this appallingly inhuman deed. . . ."

'INSECTS WERE DROPPED'

He had been there and said he believed bishops and missionaries who told him about germ-infested insects dropped by American planes being picked up by Koreans with chopsticks.

A Conservative MP asked the Commons to begin an investigation into the dean's doings. But the then prime minister, Sir Winston Churchill, was against it "because it would invest his activities with an importance they do not possess."

A little later Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, described Dr. Johnson as

UN Condemns Rhodesian Talks

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations General Assembly today condemned talks between Britain and Rhodesia's white - supremacist government on the grounds they jeopardize the rights of Rhodesia's Negro population.

The vote was 86 to 2, with 18 abstentions. Canada abstained, along with the United States, France and several other European countries, on the grounds there had been no new developments in Rhodesia warranting action by the UN Assembly.

Britain also abstained. British Ambassador Lord Caradon said he had no new statement to make about his government's policy.

Britain had undertaken, at last month's Commonwealth conference, to approach the UN Security Council in order to take selective mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia, provided that no settlement was reached with the Smith regime before the end of the year. It was in fulfilment of this undertaking that British representatives have visited Rhodesia.

WAS NO FINAL REPLY

No final reply has been received from the regime which seized independence from Britain last year, Lord Caradon said.

The resolution condemning the British talks with Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime was introduced unexpectedly by Tanzania Friday night in the UN General Assembly's trusteeship committee which voted 73 to 3, with nine abstentions, to pass it on to the Assembly.

LBJ Trims Tour Schedule As Jeer Tempo Picks Up

By JACK BROOKS
Special to The Times

SYDNEY — Anti-Viet Nam demonstrators hurled boos, jeers and black balloons at President Johnson here today in the most hostile demonstrations he has faced during his tour.

Earlier another demonstration was foiled because Australian police got an underground tip-off. In the outbursts at least a score of demonstrators were hauled off to jail by police.

Some children caught up in the scuffling were either injured or so shocked they had to be given medical treatment.

Johnson appeared to ignore the outbursts but his schedule was reduced and he did none of his usual handshaking.

Over-all the demonstrations were simply overwhelmed by the friendly majority. The "friendlies" packed the streets 20 deep on either side of the cleared centre lane. They smothered Johnson and his car in confetti and ticker tape. Huge welcoming signs were draped across streets.

At times the streets were a foot deep in paper. One piece got caught in the air-conditioning unit of the president's car and he had to switch to a reserve one.

Police estimate was that a million people (Sydney's population is 2.3 million) turned out to watch Johnson's half-day trip, the biggest reception in Sydney history.

Officials had said earlier that Sydney would provide the biggest welcome to Johnson and also the most trouble.

They were right on both counts.

Before Johnson's big air force plane touched down Australian officials said they had a tip about organized demonstrations. They said Melbourne Anti-Viet Nam persons had advised compatriots at Sydney to mingle with friendly crowds and sud-

LBJ VIET NAM VISIT POSSIBLE THURSDAY

U.S. officials would not confirm the reports that arose largely from extra security measures under way.

The most talked of date for a possible visit by President Johnson after the Manila summit conference was next Thursday.

A heavily guarded visit to Da Nang in the northern part of South Viet Nam by South Korean President Chung Hee Park Friday was seen by some observers as "test run" for a Johnson visit.

Bombing Pause Not on Agenda

MANILA (CP)—A high-ranking Philippine official said today the question of a bombing pause in North Viet Nam will not be discussed at the Manila summit conference, contrary to an earlier announcement by President Ferdinand Marcos.

The statement was made following individual consultations between Foreign Secretary Narciso Ramos and Foreign Ministers Lee Tong of South Korea, Tran Van Do of South Viet Nam, Paul Hasluck of Australia and U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk.

Suspending air strikes against North Viet Nam "is only for the United States to decide," the official said.

The statement, now confirmed as the latest position, is a complete turnabout from President Marcos's announcement last Monday that the question of suspending the air strikes would be taken up at the conference.

This follows Rusk's statement on arrival here Friday that no decision had been reached on suggestions from various sources that such a pause be made; that his government was still anxious to know what Hanoi's reaction would be if the bombing were stopped.

The Philippine official also said: "I do not think there will be a peace formula from this conference. Such a formula would be of no use if it is rejected by Hanoi.

He disclosed, however, that "a consensus is building for the establishment of a committee to take charge of the implementation of decisions that might be taken at the conference."

A Philippine source said that this special working body would sound out possible Asian mediators in the Viet Nam conflict and try to promote an all-Asian peace conference. The Philippine source said possible mediators are Pakistan, Ceylon, Nepal, Burma, and Japan.

There were unconfirmed reports here that Indonesia might be asked to join the mediation efforts.

. . . WALES LANDSLIDE

Stephen Andrew, 40, school janitor, described the slide:

"I heard a noise from the mountain. It sounded like the rush of giant waves on the seashore. I rushed out and the mountain sludge was moving down towards the school.

"Teachers were breaking windows and screaming for help. I rushed inside to get 20 children out. The black mud just kept moving. Things were breaking and the children were screaming.

"'It was hopeless trying to reach the others. But I must go on digging. My two sons, Kelvin, 10, and Malcolm, 8, are in there."

"Coal tips," as the Welsh term the sludge heaps, have recently been a subject of controversy. A campaign to get rid of them has been mounted but little has been achieved.

Calling for an inquiry into the tragedy, Britain's minister of state for Wales, George Thomas, said:

"A generation of children has been wiped out in this village. South Wales has an abundance of tips of this character, and it is essential that we should know the cause of the disaster and whether it would be repeated in other places."

Tommy Davies, 10, was late for school with three of his chums, Philip Hughes, Vincent Parfitt and Michael Jones. So he was alive today to tell the story of what he saw from the railway bank behind the school building.

"We heard it coming down the tip like the quiet rumble of thunder," he said. "I couldn't see it at first because it was very foggy. When it appeared through the fog it looked like water pouring down the hillside.

"It uprooted a big tree on its way. Philip and I ran back but the other two ran the other way. It just swept them away.

"They ran right into it. It hit the school like a big wave, spattering all over the place and crushing the building. I was very scared."

Adrian Clayton, 11, was another of the boys saved because he was late for school.

"I took a little longer than usual on my paper round and was five minutes late getting to school," he said. "When I got there I walked into the yard and saw a great wall of mud coming down on the school very fast. I ran for my life.

"There was a great crashing and banging and I didn't stop running."

At least two of the staff tried to protect the children with their bodies. Deputy head teacher David Beynon shielded five tots beneath him. Rescue workers found him with his arms outspread around the children. All were crushed to death. A woman canteen worker died but the five children she clutched in her arms were found still alive.

Not only the schoolhouse suffered. Fifteen houses and a farmstead were swept away.

comes from Cilfynyd, about 15 miles from Aberfan and has cousins at Merthyr Tydvil and Dowlais, about five miles north of Aberfan.

"I was back there for a visit two years ago," she said "and travelled through the Merthyr Valley by train. I remember remarking on the little grass-covered hills we saw along the route. Not having been there since childhood, I didn't know these hills were really waste heaps with grass growing over them."

Mrs. June Richardson, secretary of the Cymrodorion Society, came to Victoria from Cardiganshire, South Wales, about five years ago. Her grandfather, Thomas Lewis, once worked in the coal mines at Aberfan.

"He told me he started work in the mines when he wa 14," Mrs. Richardson said.

"I used to visit the Merthyr Tydvil area and I remember the village of Aberfan. The slack heaps were very depressing — great black mountains of coal waste — but no one ever seemed to anticipate danger from them."

Driver In Fatal Fined $100

The driver of a car involved in a fatal accident last month was fined $100 today when he pleaded guilty to careless driving.

Gary Anderson of HMCS Mackenzie also was barred from driving for the next 90 days.

His car hit pedestrian Mrs. Nancie Wicks of 1638 Quadra as she was crossing Blanshard at Fisgard Sept. 16. The 68-year-old widow died in hospital two days later. She suffered a broken leg, broken arm and internal injuries in the accident.

The mishap occurred during heavy rain and Friday night traffic.

Anglicans Urge Closer RC Ties

WINNIPEG (CP) — Possible reunion with the Roman Catholic Church was sought Friday in a resolution passed by the synod of Rupert's Land which asked the Anglican Church to begin "official conversations" on the question.

Only two dissenting votes were cast on the resolution which expressed hope that it would lead to "eventual organic reunion." It was believed to be the first ever passed by the Anglican Church in Canada seeking such a union.

Archbishop H. H. Clark, Anglican Primate of Canada, warned delegates that official union discussions would be difficult because of the different structures in the two churches.

He added, however, that informal discussions had started, "but there have been no whispers about their proceedings to organic union. . . ."

WILL DO BEST

When the resolution passed, the archbishop said the church would "do its best to conform with the synod's wishes."

The resolution, on which heated debate had been expected, came a day after Archbishop Clark said he was less optimistic about possible union of the Anglican and United churches than he was a year ago.

He said fundamental beliefs held by each of the churches were difficult to accept by the other party.

REMARRIAGE RULE PASSES

WINNIPEG (CP)—A controversial remarriage canon passed by the general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada was approved by an 84-to-23 vote Friday by the Synod of Rupert's Land.

Delegates expressed mixed views on the canon, passed by the general synod in 1965 and up for review in 1967 before becoming official, which would permit divorced Anglicans to remarry in the church. Some said it was a reversal of Christ's teachings on marriage.

Despite present regulations on divorce, divorced persons have been remarried outside the church and then are welcomed back to the church.

The synod, which ended its two-day meeting Friday night, did not formally discuss the union between the Anglican and United churches. However, a committee report on the archbishop's address to the synod gave the union plan endorsation.

"Only good can come from the growth in understanding one with another. There are great areas where co-operation is desirable."

'Canadian Officer Ordered Executions'

TORONTO (CP) — The Star quotes a former Canadian Army major as saying he authorized the executions of two German deserters with Canadian weapons after VE Day in Holland with the approval of 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade headquarters.

The executions have recently become a public issue in Germany. Defence Minister Hellyer recently told the Commons an investigation had shown that allegations that the executions were illegal were without foundation.

The officer quoted by The Star is Oliver Mace, former major of the Seaforth Highlanders of Vancouver, now a farmer of Innisfail, Alta. He was acting commanding officer of the Seaforths in the absence of senior officers.

The Star quotes him as saying he personally ordered the issue of weapons and authorized the executions after getting approval over the telephone from brigade headquarters. Canadian ammunitions and shovels were used and a Canadian supervising officer was provided to facilitate the executions.

The executed men were deserters from the German army convicted by a German court martial of desertion and collaboration with the Allies. Mr. Mace is quoted as saying he was unaware of the collaboration charge.

He said he understood the two sailors turned themselves in to Canadians at Amsterdam just after V-E Day and were placed in a compound with 3,500 German troops who had just surrendered. The Germans were made responsible for their own internal discipline.

Pick Any World Channel In TV Viewing of Future

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is on the verge of space-age changes in broadcasting and faces chaos if it does not adjust, a consulting firm contends in a brief to the Board of Broadcast Governors.

Broadcast Management Consulting Services says new techniques will make wholesale changes necessary not only in technology but in the kinds of programming and service offered by Canadian stations.

The Ajax, Ont., firm says that in about five years land-based microwave television networks will disappear. They will be replaced by a Canadian space satellite or one shared by Canada with one or more nations.

Not long after that, home receiving sets will be able to pick up TV signal reflections direct from orbiting satellites, opening up an abundance of programs from a host of countries for every viewer across the country.

With such a wide choice available from outside the country, viewers will watch foreign programs unless there are drastic changes in the present TV structure in Canada, the consulting firm predicts.

The company will submit its brief at a BBG hearing here next week.

The board called the special hearing to discuss availability of current very high frequency TV channels and how to go about opening up additional channels in the ultra high frequency range.

The consulting service says first use of space satellites will be for the publicly-owned CBC network and the privately-owned CTV network to bounce signals off the satellite from a single station to other main stations along the network. These would continue to relay the signal to home receivers.

But the next stage would make each home receiver capable of receiving the reflected signals from many satellites without an intermediate station.

". . . The whole of Canada will be within reach of not only Canadian satellite programs but also those of other nations."

Broadcast Management draws a comparison between these TV developments and the growth of local radio across Canada. Radio stations no longer had the big studios and the pianos and organs that once were an essential part of their equipment.

Local radio now made extensive use of high quality recorded music because of new recording techniques.

Teachers Ask Protection In Boycott

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Oakland teachers are demanding police protection for teachers and pupils and prosecution of anyone who encourages a school boycott.

The 2,200 - member Oakland Teachers Association adopted the resolution in the face of a boycott which began Tuesday.

The teachers said that unless the city board of education gives them the assurances they request they may carry their complaints to the National Education Association.

At predominantly Negro Castlemont high school Wednesday, a group of 250 Negro truants beat five white teachers and three white students and littered classrooms.

Absenteeism has soared to double the normal rate in the city's secondary and high schools.

Castlemont school was quiet Friday after District Attorney Frank Coakley of Alameda County declared there would be no leniency for vandals arrested in the racial disorders.

A school boycott continued. However, only about 800 of 26,000 students in the target schools attempted to attend a "freedom school" teaching civil rights subjects. The 800 were turned away from the "freedom school." University officials said the students were denied use of the classrooms.

Woman Placed On $250 Bond

A woman who took a bottle of vanilla extract from a store Sept. 16 was convicted of theft under $50 and placed on a $250 good behavior bond Friday.

Mrs. Jessie Callan, 330 Niagara, told the court she didn't know what possessed her to take the bottle from Don's Food Market, 99 Menzies. She said she had no intention of stealing it.

Policeman's Wife Turns in Alarm

OTTAWA CONFERENCE

Pearson Faces Showdown With Quebec

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Pearson and the 10 provincial premiers have been on a collision course over tax collecting for some time.

Monday comes the crunch.

The premiers meet with the prime minister and his cabinet colleagues in a crucial federal-provincial conference. It could be the most critical of its kind since Confederation, 100 years ago.

In the series of meetings starting Monday Premier Daniel Johnson will place before the prime minister his demand for equality or statehood for the French-speaking province of Quebec.

The people of Quebec and several other provinces could find themselves faced with the inevitability of double taxation after the conference.

Manitoba's government may announce after next week that it has no choice but to impose a sales tax — something it has avoided to date. Premier Duff Roblin warned after the meetings of the tax structure committee last month that if Ottawa persisted in its proposals put before the provincial representative he might be forced into levying a sales tax.

At this decisive fall conference with the provinces the federal government hopes to work out a five-year extension of its tax-sharing arrangements. But the provinces to put it bluntly want more money from the federal treasury.

New Deal for Provinces Seen

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp at the preview of the summit meetings, held last month when the tax structure commitee met, said he had a new deal to offer the provinces. The end of the present financial arrangements with the provinces takes effect March 31, 1967.

He made it clear that the federal government feels it has given ground on tax revenues all it can if it is to continue as a strong central government. Prime Minister Pearson reiterated this position on his return to Canada, from the prime ministers' Commonwealth conference.

In a press conference late last month Mr. Pearson bluntly informed the provinces that the responsibility for economic and financial policy in Canada must remain with Ottawa. He endorsed the stand taken by his finance minister.

Mr. Sharp in his proposals to the provinces reaffirmed the responsibility of the federal government for equalizing provincial revenues. He extended it to the whole area of provincial revenues at the level of the national average per capita, which would benefit Quebec and the Maritime provinces.

In addition he proposed in lieu of conditional grant payments that all provinces accept an additional 17 per cent of the federal personal income tax equalized to the national average per capita with an adjustment payment related to actual program costs. This was designed as an interim measure with full control eventually to pass to the provinces with the tax room needed.

Provinces Seek Less Control

The provinces have been asking for greater fiscal freedom from the central government control and Mr. Sharp said he was ready to let the provinces do their own taxing. But the premiers did not take kindly to this suggestion.

Premier Johnson spoke of the possibility of an "associate state" at the tax structure committee meetings last month. He will raise the bogey again next week, indeed in a television interview this past week he warned that Quebec might be forced into separatism. He added that if Quebec ever withdrew from Canada "we would have been driven to it."

Premier John Robarts of Ontario wants 75 per cent of the revenue from personal income taxes in Ontario for his province's needs. Premier Johnson wants 100 per cent.

In 1964 after a federal-provincial conference in Quebec City the federal government offered to increase the provincial share of the personal income tax so that for 1966-67 it became 24 per cent of the federal tax. The provincial share of succession duties was increased to 75 per cent from 50 per cent.

But Quebec wants more. It wants 100 per cent of all taxes, personal and corporation taxes and succession duties.

The battle will be joined. Finance Minister Sharp says he will stand fast against Quebec's demands and the lesser demands of the other provinces. If they want more money he suggests they go collect their own taxes.

The provinces point out that their costs are soaring. They need more funds.

EDUCATIONGRANT BOOST EXPECTED

By Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal government is prepared to offer the provinces an additional $100 million for education costs at the federal-provincial conference Monday, informed sources said here today.

The provinces, it is understood, will be offered grants for construction, research and retraining in the education field, or the fiscal equivalent if as in the case of Quebec the province refuses to allow any apparent intervention in education.

Quebec complains such federal grants to education are an infringement of the provinces' right to deal with education solely as a provincial matter under the constitution.

Rumors swept the Liberal back benches Friday that the Liberal government was prepared to drop its scholarship plan in favor of increased education grants. A caucus of Liberals was called by the government at 2 p.m. Friday to reassure its members that the education proposals for the conference were separate and apart from the scholarship program.

The caucus learned that the federal government had two or three plans for education aid. Final decision on the education proposals were being made this weekend by the federal government to be incorporated in the opening statements made to the summit meetings Monday.

The prime minister will preside accompanied by four of his senior ministers Monday when the conference starts its discussion on education financing.

Federal aid rose from around $94 million in 1965-66 to about $165 million this year. These figures do not include large sums available from Ottawa for loans to students and building projects.

DJ Warns Of Double Taxation

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec will get the money it is asking from Ottawa or else it will institute double taxation in the province, Premier Daniel Johnson said Friday.

Mr. Johnson made the statement before the start of a cabinet meeting at which the main topic of discussion was to be the series of federal - provincial talks due to begin Monday at Ottawa.

He said:

"Let's get some action. If we don't come to an agreement at Ottawa, we will come back and we will tax.

BLAMES OTTAWA

"If there is double taxation, Ottawa will be responsible for it."

At a meeting of the tax structure committee Monday, Mr. Johnson is expected to repeat his previous request for 100 per cent of succession duties, personal income tax and corporate income tax on natural resources companies. He also has asked for almost 100 per cent of corporate income tax revenues of all other Quebec-based companies.

He also requested at the previous tax structure committee meeting that Quebec receive some $750,000,000 in direct fiscal equivalents so that it can meet the costs of assuming the full burden of the federal-provincial schemes from which it plans to opt out.

Nuclear Development Tops India's Spending

NEW DELHI (AP)—India is spending more for research and development of nuclear energy than for any other field of scientific or industrial advancement.

An official survey shows India's expenditures on atomic energy have skyrocketed from five per cent of the planning budget in 1951 to almost 50 per cent in 1966.

The government says its atomic development is purely for peaceful purposes. Pressure to make an atom bomb has increased since Peking become a nuclear power, but New Delhi denies India will join the A-bomb club.

Persons knowledgeable about Indian affairs say, however, scientists have pushed their work to the point where they would need only a short time to set off an atomic device—if given the order.

SPENDING INCREASES

When India began its first five-year plan in 1951, the Indian government spent $6,250,000 on scientific research. In 1966 it was 20 times as much—$129,000,000. The dollar figures are in terms of post-devaluation, with the dollar pegged at 7.5 rupees.

In 1951, industrial research accounted for 43.41 per cent and agriculture 24.76 per cent of governmental expenditure on scientific research. In 1966, industry's share was 19.33 per cent and agriculture's 5.26 per cent.

Atomic energy consumed a lion's share even in capital expenditure. In 1965-66, the allotment for atomic energy was 77.2 per cent. Defence research got 5.39 per cent.

Prime Minister Gandhi's government is committed to spend more on agriculture during the fourth five-year plan which began April 1. The urgency for this was brought home by this year's drought which brought this country of 500,000,000 to the verge of famine. Liberal food imports, especially from the United States, saved the situation.

Hospitals and Money

THE MINISTER OF MUNICIPAL affairs, Mr. Campbell, suggests that new hospital construction could be financed in Greater Victoria if the city and municipalities applied the increases in the provincial per capita grants to this purpose.

"In recent years," Mr. Campbell says, "the per capita grant has increased by $8. Had you set that aside for hospital purposes you would have more money than enough.'

That might well be true. But Mr. Campbell must also have noted that in recent years the cost of everything has been going up — public works, police wages, fire protection —and that the increased per capita grants from the provincial government are needed for these essential purposes. If the additional $8 had been used to build hospitals—also essential and badly needed—what would Greater Victoria municipalities have used to provide for their other increasing expenditures, since property taxes have been raised to the danger point?

Mr. Campbell is on sounder ground when he urges the advisability of building hospitals on a regional basis rather than having the various municipalities go it alone. This would be an obviously advantageous and efficient arrangement. And there is also no sound argument against the principle of having the local areas, through their common regional organization, pay their share of hospital construction costs, along with the provincial and federal contributions.

The reason local voters turned down a regional two-mill levy for hospital construction last December was not essentially a rejection of the principle of local contribution but an attempt to apply political pressure on the government to re-assess its financial arrangements with the municipalities. This was a misuse of the vote, since the need for hospital accommodation should take precedence over strategic political manoeuvres. But the government deserved a reproof inasmuch as it had marked up a large budgetary surplus, partly from a two-per-cent sales tax which was intended for hospital use but which has not been so utilized in full.

The regional approach to hospital construction is logical and should be initiated. The principle of at least some local contribution to such construction is also unassailable — if only to maintain a local voice in operation of the facilities. But the government should recognize its moral obligation to use the two per cent extra sales tax revenue for the purpose for which it was imposed.

The whole situation is a good, if unfortunate, example of the need for an over-all review of provincial-municipal financing arrangements. The patchwork, jerry-built structure of per capita grants, home-owner grants, grants in lieu of taxes and such devices is obviously outworn and bears little relationship to the basic financial problems of the municipalities or the adverse side effects of too heavy a tax burden on real property.

A Plan To Share Technology

AT A MEETING LAST SPRING of North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministers, Italy's Foreign Minister Fanfani made a proposal to close the gap between technically advanced American industries and their European counterparts.

Since then President Johnson several times has spoken favorably of the idea, the latest mention being in his speech on Europe two weeks ago. The project would be part of NATO and would involve joint projects in space, electronics, nuclear energy and other technical areas, with the United States as a start making available to NATO members federally - sponsored research material.

The idea is not new. Sharing of technological data among NATO members was included in the original Treaty of Washington and was studiously ignored for eight or nine years while the alliance concentrated almost exclusively on military matters. Prime Minister Pearson, then minister of external affairs, tried ten years ago to have the economic and cultural aspects of NATO activated and came up against a wall of indifference.

Now that France has fractured the NATO structure, the Italian suggestion, and American endorsement of it, does not seem to have the same relevance it might have had at a much earlier date. It seems unlikely, for one thing, that NATO will alter its predominantly military direction. It is an organization managed by the military, with no expertise in technological affairs aside from those directly related to armaments. Certainly the Common Market countries, with France unwilling to take part, would find it difficult to tie themselves into a technological exchange program. And France is determined that American influence in European affairs should be lessened, not increased as would be the case with this plan.

Even aside from the political problems involved, there is a question in many European minds as to how badly American technological advice is needed. What is wrong with the European and British technology which has produced as many basic twentieth century advances as has the United States? The problem seems to be not so much a lack of technological and scientific ability as a failure to exploit discoveries. And partly, of course, this has been the result of political and economic fragmentation in Europe — the lack of a large enough market to make exploitation worthwhile. It is only necessary to note the giant strides made by the Common Market area in the last few years to see that this problem is well on the way to being solved.

The Italian proposal is due for formal discussion at the December meeting of NATO ministers. But it seems doubtful that it will be the glue which will hold together an alliance which originated in a fear of Soviet aggression and has failed to progress beyond that.

Calgary Votes Sunday Sport

CALGARY THIS WEEK VOTED for commercial sport on Sunday, joining other Canadian cities which enjoy that privilege and providing the encouragement of example for those interests in Greater Victoria which seek a similar objective.

The nature of any British Columbia legislation which may be passed on the subject can be speculative only at this time. The Union of British Columbia Municipalities, at its last convention expressed the opinion that consideration should be given to an amendment of the Municipal Act to allow sport and entertainment for which admission could be charged on Sunday afternoons. This is a prerogative already enjoyed by Vancouver as a result of powers exercised under its special charter.

Within the next few days a small commission including UBCM and Department of Municipal Affairs representatives will canvass opinion in various centres of British Columbia on this and other issues that would involve amendment of the Municipal Act. The findings of the commission will be summarized and presumably be submitted to a select standing committee of the legislature during the next session. From its study of the question should come the ingredients of legislation.

Any amendment permitting commercial Sunday sport and entertainment should, of course, contain a proviso for local option. Opinion will not be unanimous, and those opposed to a more open Sunday should at least be given the opportunity of registering their opposition.

Firetraps Must Go

Before the burned-out barns are rebuilt, plans should be submitted to the fire chiefs whose brigades fought so well to check a worse disaster. Better plans should also be approved by the building inspector of the Sandown Park district, and by the director of the SPCA — and better still also approved by the public, from whose pockets came the thousands of dollars spent on them.—Georgina H. Harrison, 6300 Old West Road.

Why Battle?

Mayor Everson's condoning of the destruction of French lettering on a federal building at Port Hope, Ont. (Times, Oct. 19) and his suggestion that the French lettering might at least have been placed under the English lettering dramatizes the absurdity of the language battle in our country; a battle as real and profound as that in Belgium between the Flemings and the Walloons.

This is hardly a reasonable approach to national unity; and God knows we need national unity. Even more absurd was the school board's decision not to introduce French into public schools. It's no secret that most of our public schools offer rather inadequate instruction in languages and since even public school age is somewhat late for beginning language instruction, it is to be hoped that other public schools presently lacking language instruction will not follow the foolish example of Port Hope's school board.

Since some 5,000,000 persons in this country (most of them next door to Port Hope) do speak French, it seems rather sensible to offer at least French in all Canadian schools. — Oswald N. Morris

Softer Tones From the East in Talk to the West

THERE no longer could be any doubt, this past week, that inch by inch an historic reversal of alliances is taking place, with the Soviet-Chinese axis in the process of dissolution and a new alignment of East and West emerging in its place. The process is still far from complete, and could be reversed at any time. Viet Nam remains a mountainous obstacle. But the signs are unmistakable.

Frye

In Moscow, a summit conference of Communist-bloc leaders has just met to rake Red China across the ideological coals and prepare to read her out of the congregation of the Communist faithful.

Peking stands convicted of heretical beliefs and actions as serious in the eyes of the once-monolothic Communist movement as the nailing of the 95 theses to the door of a church in Wittenberg in 1517 was to the Pope in Rome.

Many students of communism say they no longer can see how the Sino-Soviet rift can ever be healed. It is as close to final and definitive, they say, as it is likely to get.

Simultaneously, there were overtures to the West this past week for settlements both in Europe and in Viet Nam—or rather, there were responses to Western overtures for peace in those areas.

Provided the West is now prepared, as President Johnson seemed to indicate October 7, to accept existing boundaries in Europe as final for the foreseeable future — that is, provided Washington now has abandoned the "roll-back" theory of the 1940s and '50s — there can be a European-security settlement, the Soviet bloc was plainly saying.

Hungarian Foreign Minister Janos Peter made it virtually official at the UN. The Communists, he said, in a speech to the General Assembly, are seeking to create "step by step, the necessary preconditions for a real and effective European security system."

Prolong the Process

Provided East Germany is given progressively greater recognition, he declared, the Soviet bloc is "ready to take part in any form of bilateral or multilateral co-operation" to "prolong" the "process of easing tensions and growing stability" which he said is under way in Europe.

There was still another interesting passage in Peter's remarks.

Having acknowledged that President Johnson had recently made "positive statements regarding East-West relations in Europe," he then seemingly reverted to a more characteristic cold-war vein, accusing the United States of supporting West Germany in efforts to revive the roll-back policy and to obtain nuclear weapons. But as Peter well knows, the fact is just the opposite. Washington had incurred Bonn's wrath by backing away from support of these goals.

Subtleties and Intricacies

If Peter had said this, he would have contributed to Washington's embarrassment, helping confirm Bonn's fears and increasing the strain between the United States and West Germany. So the "accusation" was in fact a favor.

It is difficult to fathom all the subtleties and intricacies of Communist diplomacy, but it was entirely possible this gesture to Washington was intentional. If the time has indeed come when a Communist foreign minister avoids inflaming tensions within the Western alliance, then there is indeed an incipient East-West detent. That the restraint may also have served to advance Hungary's interests does not alter its significance.

The big obstacle to East-West rapprochement remains Van Nam. On this subject, too, however, there is a slight ray of hope for progress. It emerged this past week that, in recent talks with British Foreign Secretary George Brown, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko agreed to become involved in Viet Nam peace moves.

Simultaneously, Peter gave the UN some broad hints that there may be movement in Hanoi. Saying he spoke in full knowledge of the views of North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong, he softened slightly what had previously been the Communists' peace terms.

It may be too much to infer that the Soviet bloc at last is becoming sufficiently interested in improved relations with the West to make a genuine effort to end the Viet Nam war. But this is in fact the inference that some UN people are drawing.

Favorable Signs

Once before, in 1960, a burgeoning East-West detente was shattered before it had a chance to get well under way. It could happen again — especially if Viet Nam goes sour.

But this past week the signs seemed favorable. The reversal of alliances which diplomats have been awaiting for nearly 10 years seemed at last to be emerging as a fact.

No Complete Release for the British Unions?

LIKE the unwilling stooge of some stage magician, the British trades unions have allowed themselves to be bound and shackled by Prime Minister Harold Wilson. Only now that they are securely trussed have they dared to ask the star performer how they are ever to escape again. For the moment, the answer seems to be: Mr. Wilson doesn't know.

In a newly-built "Fun Palace" in Brighton, at the annual conference of the ruling Labor Party, the unions overwhelmingly endorsed the government's economic policies — which include a complete freeze on all wages, backed up by compulsory powers under the Prices and Incomes Act. Mr. Edward Heath, the leader of the opposition, called these powers "unprecedented in peace or war", and, indeed they are.

Confused State

Having voted to support them "with reluctant acquiescence" the majority of trades unions now find themselves in a confused state of self-questioning.

The left-wing unions, like the largest one of all, the Transport and General Workers, are furious about Mr. Wilson's legislative strait-jacket. And Mr. Clive Jenkins, the leader of ASSET, the foremen's union, made a speech of impotent rage against the government; on the rostrum he was like a house-fly whose wings had been pulled off, and at one point his buzzing was shouted to silence by the Brighton delegates.

But this pleasure at the left's discomfort did not last long. Could it be, just possibly, that the government is going to have the last laugh on the trades union movement as a whole?

No Return

Cabinet ministers have repeatedly made it clear that there can be "no return to free-for-all collective bargaining" after the wage freeze has ended. The freeze ends in the New Year. It is to be followed by six months of what the government calls "severe restraint" which means, in effect, that only the most meritorious wage increases will be allowed by the government. Some groups of the lowest paid workers will get more money during this period, so will some workers who renounce restrictive practices and increase their productivity performance.

Otherwise, no wage increase will be paid.

On August 11 next year, the compulsory powers under the Prices and Incomes Act lapse automatically. In theory, the government will thereafter be able to control both wages and prices through the "voluntary" efforts of the Trades Union Congress (TUC), and the employers' organization, the Confederation of British Industry (CBI)..

But already there are signs that this voluntary system will not succeed, and the government will be forced to do what the unions most fear: to retain its compulsory powers indefinitely. Even the trades union leaders whose loyalty to the government has been unquestioned, are becoming seriously worried about this prospect.

Mr. Les Cannon, leader of the powerful Electrical Trades Union, is one of them. After the Labor Party Conference had given economic carte blanche to the government, he said: "What we now require from the government is a clear indication of the path along which we are moving. Too many false trails are being laid at present. The government's friends are becoming confused, and its enemies elated. This cannot go on."

In reply cabinet ministers have been vague and contradictory. The minister for economic affairs, Mr. Michael Stewart — the man in whom the compulsory powers are now vested — wants to set up a national tripartite "vetting" committee in the second half of next year which would represent his own ministry, the TUC and the CBI.

Neither the TUC nor the CBI are happy about this idea. The TUC does not want the employers to have an influence over wage demands, the CBI would consider it ridiculous for trades unions to try to influence prices.

Mr. Stewart, who until this summer was foreign secretary, is cautious and adroit. The employers like him, but the unions are becoming increasingly suspicious. For instance, they want to know why, in his proposal for the vetting committee, he has laid so much stress on the control it should exercise over wages and has said virtually nothing about its influence on prices.

If the unions turn down Mr. Stewart's scheme — and there is a strong possibility that they might — this would strengthen the arguments of Mr. Ray Gunter, minister of labor, who has not been at pains in recent months to conceal his desire for strong and permanent controls over the trades unions.

Attractive But Dangerous

This is an attractive though dangerous course of action. Permanent legal sanctions against trades unions whose maverick actions may be judged to be against the public interest — for example, unofficial strikes, unreasonably inflationary wage claims — could lead to such resentment and unrest in industry that all the government's efforts to improve industrial efficiency might fail. This would not only set back the time when the reinflation of the British economy can be begun, but so the argument runs, would make the task all the more difficult.

What union leaders fear even more than legislation is the possibility of losing control over their members' actions where they really matter, which is on the factory shop floor.

Really Tough

If the government gets really tough with the unions, and unofficial elements start to whip up support for strike action and go-slows, the most moderate trades union leaders may suddenly find themselves forced into more militant postures.

However, the real issue which the government is now putting to the trades unions is not so much one of freedom, but whether the unions are prepared to accept self-discipline necessary to the success of economic planning. There are hopeful signs of a far greater readiness than is often made out by rank-and-file union members to accept this self-discipline.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

At this time of the year a drive through the Okanagan Valley will be rewarding for the fall colors are glorious.

In many places the hillsides seem to be on fire with the scarlet leaves of the sumac. In the valleys the trembling aspens are at their best. They range in color from green through a pale yellow to bright orange with a tinge of red showing.

Do you know that a clump of these trees all showing one color are all from the same root stock?

The tall cottonwoods are showing many shades. It is fascinating to see a leaf fall, fluttering and "side slipping" to the ground.

There are a great many western birches throughout the country. They have taken on an array of blending colors, each one mingling and melting with the other.

Close on the ground the dogbain, with its fine leaves now a golden yellow, give a wonderful effect against the dull carpet of yellow pine neddles.

If you stop and look high up the mountain slopes you will see the brilliant pyramid-shaped larches that now stand out in bold relief with their needles of gold.

There are many little lakes along the way that are now almost dry. Around the edges the white of the alkali adds to the array of fall hues that nature has put on display.

The Petras Dominas Gang: Children of Hitler's Reich

By NEAL ASCHERSON

BERLIN — It was a bit of a policeman's holiday, that trip of Inspector Loeblein to Amsterdam from his office in Dortmund.

For the last few months, he had been sweating through a long desk job of collating details from a whole series of jewel robberies with voilence in the Ruhr, all carried out with a pane-smashing hammer and a Belgian FN pistol. A robbery some time back in Amsterdam bore some similarities, the trademarks of a gang the inspector had been gradually promoting to the main object of his suspicions, the Petras Dominas band.

Inspector Loeblein was talking and smoking with his Dutch colleagues when they heard the yell of the police sirens, converging with a crescendo on a point which seemed to be just round the corner.

The detectives dashed downstairs. In the narrow passage called Heiligeweg, a crowd was gathered outside a jewellers' shop. The panes were shattered. Dutch policemen were already lifting from the pavement a few fired cartridge cases, and Loeblein saw that they were FN pistol ammunition.

He pulled a picture of the Dominas gang from his pocket, and thrust it under the noses of the trembling shop girls. They nodded at one face, then another. "That's them," they said.

Round the corner stood an empty West German car, with a numberplate from Bottrop in the Ruhr. Loeblein had been looking for that car for many months. The Dutch Flying Squad waited and watched, and in the course of time Dominas came back to his car with a girl called Irma Kreuzer and was arrested.

He stands now in the dock at Dortmund with nine others, accused of one double murder, eight attempted murders, and between 70 and 80 robberies and larcenies, the sum of them committed in the space of only one calendar year.

Not only in the chance of the arrests is this perhaps the most extraordinary gang trial in West German post-war legal history. The gang itself is anything but ordinary.

The prosecution alleges that the leader was Dominas, an exiled Lithuanian, helped by fiv brothers and sisters all named Balk and all natives of the Rhur.

Two others are Balk relations by marriage. And the last is a lady, a qualified barrister who was professional defender and — if the charges be proved — lover, rescuer, accomplice and protector of Dominas himself, Maria Anna Kreuzer, now aged about 60.

Frau Kreuzer has a stern, lined face, hair scraped back, horn-rimmed spectacles. She has two graceful daughters named Irmgard and Gerlind. Their father is a stout gentleman who was a senior Gestapo official, and who was jailed after the war for his part in the shooting of Canadian prisoners. Among his acquaintances in prison was a young Lithuanian who was already an old lag, Petras Dominas.

Through her husband, Maria Kreuzer accepted Dominas's brief to defend him in court. When she lost, she is alleged to have sent him a file with which he cut his bars and fled, recaptured only a few hours later. On his release, he went to her as naturally as a son returning to his mother.

Camped in Flat

The gang came to use her flat as a camp. She is alleged to have supplied them with pistols, and to have let them practise pistol-shooting in her flat. Both daughters soon came to share their mother's special position in Dominas's favors, and it was Gerlind who telephoned Frau Kreuzer in Essen to come to Amsterdam for the next raid: "Mummy, come and watch."

She and Irmgard settled themselves comfortably in a cafe across Heiligeweg from the jewellers', and watched the gang's last raid from Helmut Balk's swing of the mason's mallet against the armored pane to the parting lash of shots from Petras Dominas.

The prosecution files at Dortmund weigh a hundredweight. Frau Kreuzer made a confession which she has since withdrawn. Helmut Balk, a handy man with the hammer but otherwise a mind of the comic-strip level, has written a book during the months on remand entitled "Lawless: True Life Tales of the Underworld and its Characters", which includes a fond reminiscence that "we were a horde, satisfying our needs for champagne, wine, striptease and sex with international ladies and robbing the biggest and richest jewellers in Germany and Holland." And after months of effort, the authorities have cracked the code script of Dominas's own diary.

Offered Key

They were forced to call in a counter-espionage cryptographer to translate it, while Dominas mockingly offered them the key for $1,500. A man who can compose his own private script with over a thousand characters is no common criminal. Dominas is an exceptional man, who in another age might have achieved much.

He was born in Kaunas, Lithuania, in 1929 and named Peter Domin. Soviet annexation in 1940 drove the family to exile, into that world of hutted refugee and resettlement camps which absorbed so many Europeans for the next ten years. The boy turned early to thieving, where his exceptional intelligance soon made him a natural leader and planner.

He has sat in many prisons, and escaped from many. He is a studious, carefully-dressed man with bushy hair, heavy spectacles, a golden fountain-pen in his breast pocket and a crocodile briefcase. In the year 1962-63 his gang is alleged to have stolen goods worth at least $300,000.

Now that his defender is in the dock with him, Dominas has been fighting his own battle in court. On the first day, he stood up and announced: "I reject this bench, and everybody present over 45, and the state prosecutor over there as well."

Ex-Gestapo

It was well known, he went on — to the embarrassment of the court — that the judiciary was full of ex-Gestapo men and that any lawyer over 45 had probably been an accessory to Nazi crimes.

He accused the prosecutor of trying to murder him because he had assembled a file —now stolen — of prominent Nazis in public life. The judge replied without excitement that the prosecutor was not disqualified; he (the judge) had only been a Hitler Youth member, which was "automatic."

All these counter - charges rang a little specious, though not without a grain of general truth.

Yet Dominas, and Frau Kreuzer too, are children of the confusion of the Reich: the one a stateless waif from a camp world in which the only obvious use for wits was crime, the other a member of the profession which condemned and ruined her own husband for crimes which he denied to his last day.

She became a defender, protecting the victims of a society she must have hated deeply, and from defence she moved by logical stages over to attack.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

President Johnson began his 17-day mission to the Far East this week and unveiled an ambitious grand design for Asia.

Inviting the North Vietnamese to share in his vision of a peaceful and prosperous "new Asia," the president held out the promise of vast U.S. aid for the emerging nations.

He said the U.S. desired independence for Asians, and the aid would be given without strings.

At the same time the president warned during a Hawaii stopover that the world should not expect too much to come from the Manila conference on Viet Nam. He indicated the U.S. would have no new iniatives to offer for ending the war.

In speeches at Hawaii, New Zealand and Australia the aim of Johnson's trip seemed to emerge as a means of impressing upon the world that the U.S. now regards the Pacific area as its chief concern and intends to counter China's thrust head-on.

●

It was considered no accident that Johnson chose to make his first overseas visit since taking office to the Far East rather than Europe where the U.S. has been principally involved since the end of the Second World War.

However with Asian nations bitterly divided over Viet Nam there's not much hope for Johnson of even starting his far-reaching plans until that conflict is ended.

There were no signs the Communists intend a favorable response to U.S. peace overtures. Although monsoon weather has slowed ground fighting and air raids on the North, Viet Cong terrorists stepped up raids in the Saigon area.

At the United Nations U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg urged the North Vietnamese to state what their response would be if the bombing raids were halted altogether, as is being urged by a number of non-aligned UN members.

Meanwhile South Viet Nam's Premier Ky tried to paper over the cracks in his government that threatened to split wide open and undermine his position at the Manila conference next week.

At least some of the cabinet ministers who threatened to quit over regional differences and their opposition to Ky's police state tactics agreed to hold off until the conference is over.

One man making a determined effort to end the conflict said he would keep on trying. Britain's blunt-talking new foreign secretary, George Brown, said in London on his return from a North American visit that he had been encouraged to "press on."

Although the Soviet Union had rejected his proposal to reconvene the 1954 conference on Indo-China, Brown said he found hopeful signs of flexibility in the Russian position.

Brown laid special blame on the North Vietnamese for rebuffing all attempts so far to bring about a settlement.

In Cape Town, South Africa psychiatrists testified that the assassin of Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd is mentally disordered and could have been committed before his crime if his history had been known.

They said Dimitri Tsafendas, 48, believed he was possessed by a monstrous tapeworm in his body that compelled him to plunge a knife into Verwoerd's neck on Sept. 6.

In Jakarta, Indonesia, former foreign minister Subandrio made a tearful plea for mercy before a court trying him for treason in connection with an abortive Communist coup one year ago.

Subandrio faces possible death before a firing squad. The verdict will be handed down Tuesday.

It served as a comment on the world's uneasiness when the Nobel Committee announced it would not be awarding a Peace Prize this year.

Retiring UN Secretary-General U Thant was reported unofficially to be the leading candidate but it was felt his efforts to get Viet Nam peace negotiations under way had not borne enough success to merit the award.

●

Briefly:

A Soviet attempt to virtually read China out of the world Communist movement was reported to have been blocked by Romania at a meeting of Red leaders in Moscow . . .

The U.K. Atomic Energy Authority signed an agreement with Rio Algom Mines Ltd. of Ontario to purchase an estimated $100,000,000 worth of uranium over the next 10 years . . .

Boycotts of supermarkets by housewives hoping to bring down spiralling food prices spread in both Canada and the U.S. . . .

Despite a warning by the British government, investors in Rhodesia quickly snapped up a $13,500,000 bond issue floated by Prime Minister Ian Smith's breakaway regime.

How Free Are Professors Outside the University?

By ART STOTT

An apparent divergence of opinion between Dr. John B. Macdonald, president of UBC, and Dr. Patrick McTaggart-Cowan, president of Simon Fraser, invites consideration of an issue which may have relevance to universities today.

Stott

The two presidents were discussing the position of some professors from their respective staffs who are reportedly interested in, or involved in, the formation of a committee to aid American war objectors, subject to the draft in the United States, to emigrate to Canada. There is no obvious reason why the work of such a committee should in any way conflict with Canadian law.

Said Dr. Macdonald: "I personally question the ethics of Canadian citizens making positive overtures to American citizens to help or encourage them to emigrate to Canada for the purpose of avoiding a legally determined responsibility as American citizens."

Said Dr. McTaggart-Cowan: "We accept our faculty here because of their ability as scholars and teachers. We do not deny them their rights as citizens."

The two positions are not necessarily antithetic. They do, however, raise an interesting question over the degree to which a university professor does, or does not, sever his associations with his university each day when he doffs his gown and walks off the campus into his daily extra-curricular affairs.

And they also stimulate speculation over the importance attached to a man's professional position in his quasi-public activity. Is the weight of the professors in a community determined by their individual capabilities as citizens? Or is it modified, if not determined, by the fact that they are professors of important universities? Can one be separated from the other, or should it be?

Since the advent of "the man in the grey flannel suit" the image of the organization man has been viewed with considerable distaste by individualists. The complaint against the image is that the person inside the grey flannel suit should be a man with his own opinions, his own virtues and possibly his own vices. The donning of the suit should not create an automoton whose every action is presumably conditioned by the thought: How will what I'm doing, or what I seem to be doing, influence the outfit that employs me?

In the course of the development of the organization man you had such questionable procedures as the assessment of a wife's potential as a suitable partner for the man in grey flannel. Would she fit in to advance the interests of the company in those functions that stretch the organization man's duties over a 24-hour day?

That seems to be one extreme in an analysis of the relationship between a man as an individual with the assumed right of personal freedom and the employee with certain responsibilities to keep the name of his outfit fair.

At the other extreme is the rugged individualist who might be a professor with outstanding abilities to impart knowledge and stimulate scholarship among the young people in his class but who, in his off hours, might also be a chronic and belligerent drunk, who commits all sorts of atrocities in his cups.

Is he entirely free to behave however he wants, insensitive to the impression he makes while on a spree, in total disregard of the disrepute his behaviour may bring on his institution?

* * *

Some businesses have on staff brilliant men on the job but difficult people in private life viewed in public. A number of them are judged too valuable professionally to dismiss because of their aberrations. This is a situation which a private company can live with on occasions.

Public or sem-public insitiutions, including universities which draw financial support from the taxpayers, are probably more restricted. Inevitably they will be judged by some people on the behaviour of their staff members. On this consideration, there seems to be a certain obligation on the staff member to protect the institution's image.

Between the extremes of the man in the grey flannel suit and the chronic public drunk there is a wide area, it seems to me, into which fit the vast majority of people associated with universities. It is my belief that they are entitled to all the liberties involved in the rights of the citizen as well as to the widely discussed academic freedom which is their particular prerogative.

But it might be wise for them to realize that freedom also involves responsibility and part of the responsibility rests in avoiding action that is prejudicial to the institution that not only employs them — gives them their bread and butter — but also is a factor in determining their weight in a community.

Confrontation at Ottawa

Will Quebec Press Its 100 Per Cent Demand?

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—While Parliament has been preoccupied this week with such momentous affairs of state as the insignia on our post office trucks, frantic behind-the-scenes preparations have been under way for Monday's summit meeting of provincial premiers.

It could be the noisiest, stormiest and most decisive in the series of confrontations which have changed the face of Confederation in the past three years.

Newman

This is the meeting to which all the other meetings were a prelude. It is here, hopefully, that the future dimension of Canadian federalism will be drafted. The premiers will be negotiating with Ottawa over their tax sharing arrangements for the next five years.

For the taxpayer, their discussions — if they go badly — could eventually mean not only higher taxes, but a system of double taxation and inequality of rates depending on the province in which they live.

The main feature of this noisy extravaganza will, as usual, be the clash between Ottawa and Quebec. Both the federal government of Lester Pearson and the Quebec administration of Daniel Johnson will be going into the conference determined not to budge an inch from their previously stated positions.

Federal cabinet ministers have been scurrying around Ottawa most of the week, assuring themselves that they've got iron-clad guarantees from the prime minister that he won't stage a backward march and give away what's left in the federal treasury. At the same time, the telephone wires from Quebec City have been booming with the assurance from the men around Daniel Johnson, that he is totally committed to his position, and that accommodation can only be reached on Quebec's terms.

In the face of such Tarzanic breast-beating, it's difficult to predict whether anything very useful will come out of the meetings, but if the Ottawa bargainers are really as shrewd as they bill themselves, it's not impossible that a useful agreement might be reached on the first item of the meeting's agenda: the distribution of federal funds to aid education.

In their concerted assaults on the federal treasury, the provicial premiers have in the past based their case on the fact that their own financial resources are inadequate to meet the burgeoning costs of the services they have to provide — most particularly in the field of higher education. (Current university enrollment of 178,200 is expected to reach 461,000 by 1975 and the Bladen commisssion has estimated that government aid to higher education in the same period will have to multiply from its current total of $355 millions to $1,704 millions.)

In responding to this urgent demand for more funds, Ottawa has been torn between two extremes. The federal government could buckle under Quebec's constitutional insistence that it will not touch Ottawa dollars earmarked for education, and simply make a tax transfer, hoping that some of the added revenues will find their way into education.

Shared Cost

Alternatively, Ottawa could resurrect the shared cost program idea, and give the provinces a set percentage of capital expenditures on education facilities. This might placate nine of the provinces, but it obviously would be turned down by Quebec.

The plan that Mitchell Sharp will propose to next week's federal-provincial conference is an enlightened compromise between these two extreme positions. It will provide for a substantial transfer of tax revenues to the provinces, and the transfer itself will be made unconditionally, so that Quebec will be free to use it totally under provincial jurisdiction. But the amount of the tax transfer will be tied directly to education costs and needs within each of the provinces.

A complicated equalization formula will be applied to the federal grants to eliminate the past practice of some provincial governments which have cut their own aid to higher education when more federal funds became available.

This ingenious solution seems to get around constitutional objections, while still chanelling the extra federal money into the broad field of education. The objection which several provinces besides Quebec have voiced in the past about share-cost programs — namely that they allow the federal government to set provincial priorities — is hardly applicable here, since education is already on top of every province's spending priorities list.

Good Portents

While Premier Johnson's reaction to the proposals remains unpredictable, there are some favorable portents. During an interview on the CBC-TV public affairs show, "Twenty Million Questions," Mr. Johnson said that on next week's trip to Ottawa he wants "money not words."

This aptly sums up the Quebec premier's problem. Because his election campaign last June was fought against the high tax rates that had been imposed by the government of Jean Lesage, he can not, in the foreseeable future, raise added provincial revenues through higher taxes.

Ottawa or Bonds

Mr. Johnson's only remaining sources of extra funds are Ottawa and the bond market. But the nationalistic declarations he's been making ever since he took office, have so frightened investors that virtually no Quebec government bonds are now being sold outside the province. (Out of a $55 million provincial bond issue floated last month, $25 million had to be taken up by the province's own pension fund, and the only long-term bonds placed outside the province were trades for older, outstanding Quebec issues.)

With pressures like this on the Quebec premier, Ottawa hopes that at next week's conference Mr. Johnson's smooth progmatism will temper his belligerent nationalism.

THE GALLUP POLL

Give Douglas a Chance Some Canadians Declare

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Nearly two in every ten Canadian voters (18%) say their opinion of the New Democratic Party leader, Tommy Douglas, has gone up in the past six months. What are the things that people like about Mr. Douglas?

At the top of the list is the fact that "he has something to offer; he should be given a chance." There is a distinct feeling across the country that the NDP leader is "for the ordinary man."

He is also lauded for the following reasons: a good man; capable; smart; a fighter; able to express himself; fair; sensible; honest; has made an impact; better known now.

Among "other" reasons for approval of Mr. Douglas are his restrained actions during the political scandals; his good ideas in regard to old age pensions; and the fact he is trying to do progressive things.

On the other side of the penny, Mr. Douglas is criticized for his socialistic ideas . . . "don't like him or his party, too radical."

He is accused of agitating the strikers; of being too communistic; and of wanting to introduce too much compulsion.

Voters, who say their opinion of Mr. Douglas has gone down in the past six months, also feel he is too interested in politics and not interested enough in Canada. He makes ridiculous promises—"talks a lot and says nothing." And finally, his policies in regard to Viet Nam receive objections.

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

Victoria's music scene always has many bands in various stages of formation and usually, after a number of months of practice, each one gets hired for once and a while for one of our rare dances.

This seems to be the standard path most of our local bands seem to follow but every so often a group misses a few of the steps and ends up near the top of the music lights in our city.

Such a group are The Phantoms who forget those first few steps and have ended up playing on a regular Friday and Saturday night basis at one of the over-21 nite-spots, The Golden Slipper.

They formed a couple of months ago and the five Phantoms, Dave Jensen (vocal), Ron Mathison (lead guitar) Tim Linsay (rhythm) Brian Lyseng (electric bass) and Danny Izon (drums) never thought themselves good enough to become house-band at one of our older set's niteries.

Although the five guys won't admit it verbally that to be hired as a house-band a group has got to be good, their music is convincing enough to set the idea into anybody's mind.

They've got a powerful sound which balances the powerful vocals of big, six-foot lead singer Jensen who was formerlly attached to another of our better bands The Missing Links who now use as their title The Run-abouts.

NORTH BREEZES
"It's like having my own office in Victoria," said the man from Toronto and the Victoria branch manager beamed.
They were lunching in our pool-side dining room. The Toronto man said our desk staff were his receptionists. His suite, thanks to repeated maid service, was his conference room by day and his home by night. His covered parking at the door and our downtown location kept him handy to his business contacts.
Even when he was out of his suite, his telephone calls were being handled for him. His bed was luxurious. His bathroom sun lamp compensated for the drizzly fall weather ...
But the Victoria manager wasn't really listening. He was silently thanking his secretary for making the reservations for the boss. That's how secretaries get ahead. Branch managers, too.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Two concert pianists visited the city this week. One, California-born Richard Norris, remains to appear with Victoria Symphony Orchestra Sunday and Monday.

Canadian Warren Mould was in town to talk with music teachers about the new Royal Conservatory of Music syllabus. He was appearing in his role of Registrar of the RCM and only the couple of dozen or so teachers who attended a meeting Thursday night were fortunate enough to hear him perform briefly.

It was enough, however, to make clear that his reputation as a concert artist is no light thing.

He claims to have visited Victoria first 20 years ago when he had been inducted into the United States Army and was stationed at Fort Lewis.

When I said I wasn't aware the U.S. had drafted children into its army he grinned.

POWERFUL HANDS

Obviously bubbling with joie de vivre and the owner of a fine and powerful pair of hands, it's easy to understand his special gift for playing the bravura music of Liszt.

"Yet I never used to like Liszt," he muses. "It was Egon Petrie who first made me realize that many pianists take entirely the wrong approach to Liszt — they try to make too much of it."

Norris was a student of Petrie for 12 years after graduating from Pomona College at Claremont, California.

He began piano lessons at the age of five but if he'd had his way he would have started much earlier.

"My mother tells me I was asking for piano lessons when I was three years old. She took me to a teacher who specilaized in very young children but the teacher thought I was too young and advised waiting until I started school.

FIRST DAY

"She meant regular school but the first day I started kindergarten that was it as far as I was concerned. So they gave in."

Of his New York debut he remembers mostly that he'd picked up a virus and was suffering from a temperature of 101. "It sure threw me off-balance," he comments.

He feels that the concert artist's biggest hazard is that he is expected always to produce a top-form performance; a feat manifestly impossible as he is not a machine answering to the push of a button but a human being with a basic temperament of even higher volatility than average.

However, critics have to respond to what they hear — or see — at the moment," he agrees, "and not some hypothetical better performance."

He was pushed into the category of a Liszt interpreter by critics and commentators during his European tours, most of whom urged him to specialize in this area.

DOG AGREES

"Even my dog, Tristan, encourages me to play Liszt."

The big German Shepherd comes into the room as soon as it hears the Concerto in E flat (which he plays this weekend.)

"It doesn't matter whereabouts I start in the concerto. And if he's outside the first thing I know there he is standing up at the window with the most ecstatic expression on his face."

Tthe pianist also has a pair of rare Blue Roan English Cocker spaniels that travel with him whenever possible. He got Cedric when he was in England five years ago. Clementine was flown over the Pole from London two years ago.

Asked about other musical instruments, he admits to playing the organ and says that he tried the violin — "but my hands were wrong for it."

His physique makes one think of an operatic singer, I suggested, and this turned out to be a good guess. He has a basso profundo that caused one expert to tell him that if he wanted to change course he could become another Salvatore Baccaloni.

GOURMET COOKS

He shares a common interest with a very great friend, once the world's foremost coloratura soprano. Lili Pons, living in retirement in California, and he are both gourmet cooks.

When he visits her, music and cooking elbow each other for top place in their conversation.

He started to play it while Miss Pons was concocting a specialty in her kitchen.

Suddenly he heard a voice behind him, singing softly. But soon Lili — a memorable Gilda during her operatic career — was entering full-voice with all the soprano sequences.

With Mr. Norris and the Liszt E flat Concerto, conductor Otto-Werner Mueller has programmed the Brahms Tragic Ovefture and Tchaikowsky Second Symphony.

Hansel and Gretel Coming Here

One of the travelling British Columbia Centennial shows coming to Victoria will make a one-night appearance at McPherson Playhouse, Nov. 15.

This is the charming opera, based on Grimm's fairy tale, Hansel and Gretel. The three-act opera by Humperdinck has wooed many generations of children and adults into becoming opera fans.

Many delightful and faimilar songs tell the story in the first act, set in the poor broom-maker's lonely cottage.

The second provides not only a magic spectacle but one of the most famous of all operatic duets, the children's prayer about the 14 angels.

Production is by the B.C. Opera Ensemble of the Vancouver Opera Association.

Two complete casts have been assembled for the provincial tour. Loro Farrell and Christine Anton will sing Gretel; Judith Forst (Lola in the current production of Cavalleria Rusticana) and Kathy Fearn, Hansel.

The Witch will be sung by Betty Phillips and Sophie Turko, Mother by Audrey Glass and Edith McLellan, Father by Cornelius Opthof (Silvio in the current I Pagliacci); Dew Fairy by Sheila Marks and Violet Goosen, and Sandman by Diane Delacroix and Margaret Eckford.

Audrey Glass and Sheila Marks were the soloists in Victoria Symphony's Centennial performance of the Beethoven Ninth last spring.

Conducting from the piano will be Robert Keys, recently appointed to the VOA staff from the Royal Opera House at Covent Garden.

Music Festival Set for April

News of the Greater Victoria Music Festival is cropping up with the syllabus ready to go to press and adjudicators appointed.

The festival will be held April 10 to 21 next spring with the schools section occupying the first week.

It is expected that the syllabus will be available by the end of November.

Killed on Bridge

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 60-year-old man was killed Thursday night when his car went out of control on the Second Narrows bridge, hit a concrete divider and then collided with another car. His name was withheld. Two occupants of the second car suffered only minor hurts.

Big Plans For Edmonton Opera Group

EDMONTON (CP) — Artistic director Irving Guttman has big plans for the Edmonton Opera Association.

Ermanno Mauro of Edmonton is to sing the male lead in Gounod's Faust Jan. 25 and 27 while bass baritone Richard Cross of the New York Opera will star as Mephisto and soprano Heather Thompson of Sadlers Wells will portray Marguerite.

Guttman is providing the spark that may put Edmonton on the map as the hometown of a major opera company. He is convinced that with the support of Edmontonians this can be done.

"Edmonton . . . has made remarkable strides in support of the arts these past few years," he said. "It has a thriving symphony orchestra, high-class professional theatre and an opera organization looking for the top."

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

By ROBIN SKELTON

Emily Carr Book an Insult—Don't Buy It

Skelton

Emily Carr may not be one of the world's greatest painters and is clearly not one of the world's best writers, but she is of great importance to the history of Canadian painting and her journals deserve better treatment than they have received at the hands of Clarke, Irwin and Company.

In fact, Clarke, Irwin and Company have produced such a monstrosity that I strongly recommend anyone who has made the mistake of paying $10 for the regular edition of Hundreds and Thousands, the Journals of Emily Carr to complain to the publishers and ask for their money back.

What are the legitimate expectations of a person buying an edition of someone's journals?

Firstly, I expect there to be some introductory material giving the reader a brief account of the life and times of the author. At the very least I expect a chronological table of the main events in the author's life.

Readers of the $10 edition will not find anything like this, though purchasers of the $30 limited edition will get essays by Lawren Harris and Ira Dilworth.

Secondly, I expect there to be footnotes identifying the people mentioned in the journal. Here there are none, and the book is filled with references to people whose identity I cannot discover.

There are 12 reproductions in this book. Not one indicates the size of the original, the nature of the medium, or the date of the painting reproduced.

Moreover, the illustrations do not reveal the progress and change of Miss Carr's work; they appear to have been selected at random.

Fourthly, I expect, at some point in such a book, to be given a portrait of the author; this is conventional in volumes of letters and journals.

Fifthly, I expect an index to enable me to use the book as a reference volume.

It is, to me, almost inconceivable that a publisher could issue a journal of this kind without an index, but this is what has happened: there is no index.

Moreover, the section headings are uninformative; a reader attempting to check up on Miss Carr's views about a particular subject, or on her meetings with a particular person will not be helped by a section heading reading The Elephant 1933 or Goodbye to Lizzie, 1936. This book is useless as a reference volume, therefore.

Other idiocies abound. Look at Page 63. There is a reference to Miss Carr's story The Heart of a Peacock. We are not told whether or not this story has been published.

In fact there is at no point in this book a list of Miss Carr's publications, many of which are referred to in the journal.

Moreover, even the journal references themselves are tiresome to place as to date as it does not seem to have occurred to the publisher to put the year as well as the date of the month on the top of each journal entry.

Thus, in order to date the beginning of "the crow story" which is mentioned on Page 100, we must turn back to Page 90 to discover that the year is 1934.

All this makes me have doubts about the book's reliability in other matters. The only statement of editorial method reads: "... the publishers have refrained from tidying up the author's sentences, but have sought always to preserve the spontaneous eccentricities of her style."

If in fact no alterations of any sort, either to spelling or to punctuation, have been made, all I can say is that Emily Carr must have written the neatest journal known to man!

We are not, of course, told whether we are being given the whole text of the journals. The journal entries cover periods from 1927 to 1941 in 332 pages and some of them are very short.

I suspect that, as is usual in these cases, some omissions have been made. I can't, however, be sure.

I can be sure of nothing about this book save the editorial incompetence which it displays.

I have not commented upon the contents because I am dubious about the reliability of the text. It is enough, perhaps, to say that what might have been a fascinating book has been ruined by the publisher's failure to perform necessary tasks.

This publication should be withdrawn from the market and re-edited if Canadian scholars and publishers are not to hang their heads in shame.

That is a real celebration of the artist's vision and significance, and not, like Hundreds and Thousands, an insult to the dead.

TRUST Collection paintings from the Vancouver Art Gallery were hung at Victoria Art Gallery this week under supervision of assistant curator Will Hoare, left. Helper is Norman Langton of the gallery staff. The 21 paintings and sketches will be on show all next week.

Carr Show in High Gear

By AUDREY JOHNSON

In our overlapping centennial celebrations, nothing could be more apt than a week devoted to the memory of Victoria-born Emily Carr, Canada's greatest woman painter and one of the truly significant figures in the overall history of Canadian art.

The week, filled with tributes, reminiscences and representations begins today.

A total of 21 paintings, carefully chosen as the very best of the Trust Collection at the Vancouver Art Gallery, are on show. There are 13 oils. The rest are water colors and sketches and many of these works have not previously been exhibited at the Victoria gallery.

VIVID LIFE

Excellent co-operation has been given by the Vancouver gallery, joint custodian of the paintings, in rushing the cleaning, restoration, re-framing and shipping of the pictures.

Restoration of the oils has brought the colors into glowing, vivid life as though they had been painted yesterday.

Broadly representative, the paintings reflect most phases of her work from as early as 1907.

This is a portrait of the artist, painted by a former Victoria portraitist, Nan Cheney. The study of Miss Carr is in oils and is the property of the National Gallery of Canada which has loaned it especially for this commemorative exhibition.

Victorians attending the gallery women's committee fashion and hair styling show at the gallery Monday night, will also be able to see the Emily Carr show. The gallery is customarily closed Mondays.

Second major event will be the presentation by Greater Victoria Centennial Society, of the biographical play, Emily Carr, by Herman Voaden.

Directed by Peter Mannering with one of this city's most gifted actresses, Margaret Martin, in the title role, the production opens at McPherson Playhouse Wednesday, with four performances running through Saturday.

In conjunction with the production there will be a display in the upper foyer of Emily Carr memorabilia. The pottery and photographic essay on her life and interests has been made possible by loans from the Provincial Archives and David Groos.

INDIAN ARTIST

The stage production will be formally opened by George Clutesi, the Indian artist who was a protege of Miss Carr and who inherited 20 years ago, all her unused canvases, paints and more than 100 brushes.

During Emily Carr Week, her birthplace at 207 Government Street is being flood-lit and the front garden has been renovated by volunteer gardeners from Victoria Horticultural Society.

Widely known Victoria flower painter, Emily Sartain, assisted with this work and in the process discovered the white currant bush that figured in some of Miss Carr's writing.

She took a cutting of the bush and "a last rose from Emily's garden" and is doing a painting which will be shown as part of the McPherson Playhouse exhibit.

THIS PORTRAIT of Emily Carr with her favorite Pekingese is the work of an early friend and painting companion, the former Nan Lawson. Now the widow of Dr. Hill Cheney, she is a medical artist at the University of British Columbia. The portrait is owned by the National Gallery and was sent specially for inclusion in the current Emily Carr commemorative show at Victoria Art Gallery. This is the first time the portrait has been publicly shown in this city. (Bill Halkett photo)

Canadian Section Outstanding

THE WORLD BOOK ENCYCLOPEDIA. 50th Anniversary Edition. Field Enterprises Educational Corporation, Chicago.

Field Enterprises have come up with a new edition of their quite outstanding encyclopedic work. This beautifully bound and clearly printed format makes it a pleasure to handle, durable and of striking ease in reference.

The 20-volume edition is well up-dated. For instance it displays the new Canadian flag and reference to events in Viet Nam up to mid-1965.

As an excellent source of information for school students of all ages it could scarcely be outdone. Parents will note that a 42-page section on Canada includes a trans-vision map clearly displaying developments in their historical stages since 1763.

WELL RESEARCHED

Scientific articles are well researched and clearly expressed and illustrations throughout are copious, often in full color and extremely clear as to detail.

All particles are signed and in many cases the authority of the authors, by reason of their status alone, would be hard to question.

If all articles are equally as accurate as the one on Victoria (written by Roderick Haig-Brown) the work as a whole could be considered one of the most dependable on record.

While the contents of an encyclopedia is the major concern it must be said that the sturdy gilt-enhanced bindings of these books are something of an education in this era of frequently sleazy craftsmanship.—A.J.

An Engaging Rascal And His Success

THE EARLY LIFE OF STEPHEN HIND by Storm Jameson Toronto, Macmillan Company of Canada, $4.95.

D. W. Halliwell

The prolific Miss Jameson proves once again, in her latest novel, her right to a high place among current practitioners of popular fiction.

Real skill in presenting credible characters, in setting and developing a theme, and perhaps most of all in writing believable dialogue, are hallmarks of her work.

They go far to offset the somewhat contrived situations, overly dependent on coincidences, which play a large part in her plot.

Here we learn a little of the childhood and youth of Stephen Hind, whose mother had combined careers as a medium and a madam (his sister, the only object of his sincere affection, did not have an identifiable father).

Stephen, good looking, intelligent and ambitious, had not finished his university career when he seized an opportunity to insinuate himself into the fringes of country society.

At 26, when the book opens, he has become secretary to Lord Chatteney, a retired diplomat whose memoirs hold promise of becoming a best-seller if ever he can be persuaded to complete a seemingly endless process of revision and polishing, and to publish them.

We follow Stephen on an upward progress over the period of a year, during which a combination of native intelligence, determination, charm and prowess in bed place him measurably further along the road to success.

Stephen is an engaging rascal, and most of the people he meets either enlist our sympathy or provoke our distaste to a satisfying degree. This is much more than an adequate piece of journeyman's work.

Miss Jameson has few peers in her genre.

VOLUME I OF CHURCHILL BIOGRAPHY

After Fortune Was Squandered Sir Winston Got Down to Work

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Winston Churchill emerged in his early years as a brash gambler who played for high stakes on foreign battlefields, risking his life in hungry pursuit of medals and decorations to serve his "colossal ambition."

"He sought fame and glory so that he could lay aside his sword and seize the pen with which he could liberate himself from financial thraldom," says his son, Randolph, in the first volume of what he plans as a massive five-book biography on the great British statesman.

"As he was gladly willing to venture his life on these foolhardy enterprises, who shall say that his motives were contemptible?"

Winston was the child virtually ignored by his socially-prominent parents; the schoolboy who flouted authority and got beaten for stealing sugar from a pantry; the laggard in studies; the extravagant officer cadet who could not pay his debts; the youth who hungered for heroism and world attention and the successful lecturer who bragged on his great financial success in Canada and the United States:

"I had magnificent audiences in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto," he could write his "Dear Mamma" in 1901. "I am very proud of the fact that there is not one person in a million who at my age (26) could have earned £10,000 without any capital in less than two years."

IT'S RICH MINE

The book, published by William Heinemann Ltd., is a rich mine of Winston's early letters, throwing great insight on the curious development of the wartime leader who yearned and begged for his mamma while at school and who later used his mother and anyone else available to mount the ladder of political success.

He used influence to get into the 4th Queen's Own Hussars; to join fighting units wherever they could be found; to become attached to military expeditions in Cuba, India, Sudan and South Africa. He used influence to get his letters from the front published as newspaper dispatches. And when his mother's influence failed, he would go higher, right up to the Prince of Wales.

Winston was born of the Marlboroughs—but at an inconvenient time. His father, Lord Randolph Churchill, and his mother—the American beauty Jennie Jerome—were enjoying the hunt near their Blenheim Palace estate when Winston arrived, two months premature.

The marriage between the son of a duke and the daughter of a wealthy American businessman had been solemnized with all the niceties of love and cold business—Jennie's father agreed to settle £2,000 a year on her for life, with the money to fall under the control of her husband.

Winston's mother loved the gay social glitter while Lord Randolph was deeply involved in politics, Winston learned to worship his mother from afar.

WINSTON NEGLECTED

"The neglect and lack of interest in him shown by his parents were remarkable, even judged by the standards of late Victorian and Edwardian days," says Randolph. "His letters to his mother from his various schools abound in pathetic requests for letters and for visits."

This neglect, which Winston later used as a shell to harden himself against self-pity, was aggravated by another family blow. At the early wage of 46, when Winston was just 20, Lord Randolph died and young Winston found himself at the head of the family. He had acquired extravagant tastes. He needed funds and sometimes found could not meet the demands of the money lenders. On a number of occasions his mother found herself confronted with her son's debts. But she herself was no modest spender. And before long the pretty widow had squandered her fortune.

Poverty helped make Winston "shove." He pranced his pony before the battle lines, chancing death for the sake of publicity and medals. He demanded and got good fees for his journalistic dispatches from the fronts. He gained great publicity from a bold and controversial escape when the Boers captured him in 1899 and held him in a prisoner-of-war camp, despite his insistence that he was a journalist and not a warrior.

Six months later Winston was back in action, this time as part of the victorious army that took Pretoria and relieved the 217-day siege of Mafeking. Winston returned to England, basking in glorious publicity. He soon piled up earnings as a popular speaker and even got a seat in Parliament.

MOST UNPLEASANT

The 608-page book ends with Winston pulling in cash on the Canada - United States lecture circuit where he quarrelled with his agent for underselling his tour.

"For instance, he sold Toronto for $500 (£100) and the takings at the door amounted to near £450, out of which on his arrangements I got only £70. Naturally I protested against this sort of thing and we had a most unpleasant squabble."

Winston followed the lure of crowds and cash. He even had landed in Winnipeg — "1,400 miles from any British town of importance"—where he learned in January, 1901 that Queen Victoria had died.

Of the new monarch he wrote his mother from Winnipeg: "I should like to know an emperor and a king. Edward the VIIth—gadzooks what a long way that seems to take one back!"

Winston, of course, was to know many kings and monarchs and to serve his own in his "finest hour."

'ACCEPTABLE BEHAVIOR'

Smoking Rejection Task Force Object

NEW YORK (AP)—The federal task force on respiratory diseases—24 physicians — has found "it will be necessary to work toward the ultimate rejection of smoking as acceptable social behavior."

The task force, which called the use of cigarettes a health hazard, recommended that legislation designed to bring about selective prohibitions against smoking be studied.

The physicians also suggested, in a report issued Friday, that cigarette advertising be reduced or eliminated.

"It will be necessary to work toward the ultimate rejection of smoking as acceptable social behavior," the report said, "and in the meantime to use available methods to discourage the use of cigarettes."

The task force was appointed by the chronic respiratory disease branch of the U.S. public health service and National Tuberculosis Association.

No Change In Promised Buyer Grant

Premier Bennett Friday brushed aside suggestions from former Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith that the election-promised home purchase grant take the form of a loan.

Smith Friday attacked the election promise of a $500 outright grant to home purchasers, proposing instead a loan of up to $1,500 based on the number of children in a family to be repaid through the annual home-owner grant.

No, he had no intention of altering the proposal, the premier impatiently commented. It would take the form of an outright grant as promised. There was no intention to enlarge the amount of the grant as Mr. Smith suggested.

"We'll stick with what we promised the electors in September," the premier said.

"Mortgages are for the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation," he remarked.

EXPLORATION OF MOON

Soviet Spacecraft Launch

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched its 12th lunar spacecraft today to explore the moon and its environment.

The launching came after rumors had circulated in the Moscow diplomatic community that the Soviet Union soon was going to try to send a craft to the moon and bring it back to earh — something never done before.

There was no indication, however, in the first brief official announcement of today's launching that this was intended.

Stores Boycott Snowballs

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Housewives in the United States and Canada have threatened more action against grocery chains as the boycott movement against high food prices continues to snowball.

Housewives in Albuquerque, N.M., and Windsor, Ont., banded Friday into groups modelled on the group of irate Denver women who began a boycott against five supermarket chains Monday.

Members of Housewives Encouraging Lower Food Prices announced Friday that Foodway's 11 stores in Albuquerque will be boycotted starting Monday.

Robert L. Gibson, Jr., president of Libby, McNeil and Libby, said in a Chicago speech: "I find it difficult to reason that the prices in processed food will not continue to rise."

U.S. Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, in Denver stumping for Colorado Democrats, said the women are "exercising the consumer's four basic rights."

He said these are the right to safety, the right to choose, the right to be informed and the right to be heard.

In some areas, the women and the stores showed signs of coming to an armed truce. The Denver Housewives for Lower Food Prices took the local Safeway and Miller's stores off their black list but kept up their campaign against three other large chains, including King Soopers.

In Montreal, Sam Steinberg, president of Steinberg's Ltd., said the supermarket chain would make it possible for women to exchange pinkie stamps for food or merchandise.

Until now, customers saving the stamps could turn them in only for merchandise listed in a catalogue.

Mr. Steinberg said demonstrations in Montreal resulted in a three-per-cent drop in sales.

He said the only way to keep prices down is for the firm to produce the items it retails. He expected this would reduce prices on some products by 25 per cent.

A predicted invasion by 2,000 housewives on a Toronto Loblaws supermarket fizzled Friday night as about 25 women turned up to compare prices. The women represented the Housewives Organization for Modern Economy.

Women in Buffalo, N.Y., are planning a demonstration Oct. 29 outside a supermarket.

The leader of the Pontiac, Mich., campaign, Mrs. Judy Nantais, 22, was asked about a supermarket executive's statement that today's housewife isn't as good a homemaker as grandmother used to be.

"Malarky," she said. "We budget, we shop carefully, and still we have a tough time of it."

U.S. TREASURY CHIEF

Price Controls Out As Inflation Curb

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler said today the U.S. administration does not intend to impose price controls as a means of combating inflation.

"Because our economy is so robust and resilient, there is not on any horizon we can now foresee the slightest prospect that controls will be required," Fowler told the fall meeting of the Business Council.

But the treasury secretary declined in his prepared speech to rule out increases in income and corporate tax rates if inflationary pressures continue.

"It may well be that, in the months ahead, further restraints will be required in federal fiscal policy," Fowler said.

Some of the 100 leading American businessmen at the meeting said they would favor increases in income and corporate tax rates if it is impossible to curb inflation through cuts in government spending.

Fowler admitted "some very real problems" exist in the U.S. economy—rising prices, "excessive weakness of the housing sector, and inflationary pressures."

MARKET SUMMARIES

Oil Activity Fails to Hold Rally

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A bid for a strong rally on Canada's stock markets lost its momentum this week despite a surging oil market which followed new exploration prospects.

Brokers were disappointed that the market could not maintain the thrust that had seen six consecutive days of higher prices before they dipped Wednesday.

Analysts said the lack of support could show that investors are not convinced that the events which had caused the markets to slide for the last eight months are basically changed.

At Toronto, industrials experienced two sharp days of gains with Monday's advance being the biggest one-day increase in 14 months.

As a result the industrial index moved up 2.49 to 143.22 on the week.

OBSERVERS WORRIED

But the fact the market ran out of steam at mid-week has some observers worried that stocks could experience another prolonged period of decline.

In the main list, Alcan increased 1½ to 28⅝ after the company announced an increase in its quarterly dividend to 25 cents from 22½ cents. Inco added 2¾ at 84½. Chrysler dropped 1⅝ to 36⅝ and CPR ⅝ to 54¼.

Investors gave strong support to western oils and the oil index climbed 7.34 to 111.92 as a result of the upcoming Oct. 25 sales of oil and natural gas in the Rainbow and Zama Lake regions of northwestern Alberta.

Dome jumped 3⅝ to 28¾, Canadian Superior 3½ to 26¼ and Home A 1¼ to 21. Provo advanced 15 cents to 5.15 in speculative oils.

Among major refiners, B-A Oil was up 2¼ to 30¾ and Imperial Oil ⅛ to 53⅛.

URANIUMS ACTIVE

Uraniums were again featured earlier in the week following an announcement by Rio Algom that it had signed an agreement to supply the United Kingdom with 8,000 short tons of uranium during the 1970's. The stock moved up 2⅝ to 25½.

Denison Mines, which has the world's largest known reserves of the metal, was ahead 3¼ to 61¾.

Lake Dufault, which announced encouraging copper and zinc findings on its Noranda property, advanced 2 to 10⅞. Falconbridge, which controls the company, added 3⅞ at 85.

United Keno Hill, Canada's largest silver mine, plunged 1.50 to 3.10 on news that the company might have to close its Yukon Territory mine.

On index, base metals were up 1.78 to 88.67 and the TSE 2.57 to 137.39. Golds dropped 1.68 to 155.29. Volume was 17,343,000 shares compared with 12,644,000 during the four days last week.

At Montreal, industrials were ahead 3.02 to 143.01, banks 1.63 to 109.02 and papers 1.93 to 107.98. Utilities were off .01 to 125.90. Volume was 4,654,000 shares against 3,127,000 last week.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Lumber Export Slump at Peak?

By AB KENT
Times Business Writer

Decline of the B.C. export lumber market since summer has reached a plateau in the opinion of a major sales agent's spokesman.

But the situation shows no sign of improvement in the next six months.

"I don't think it is going to get any worse — it's bad enough now. But it's sure not getting any better," was the way Seaboard Lumber Sales divisional manager Dick Silbernagel put it.

Recent rumor has circulated to the effect that Russian export capacity will be offering stiff competition in the United Kingdom market, where B.C. enjoys a substantial lumber sales.

Mr. Silbernagel, who is in charge of the Atlantic theatre of Seaboard Sales — the U.K., Continent and Middle East areas — said the Russians are so far taking no greater a slice of the U.K. market than in the past three or four years.

Each year has shown up about equally on a percentage sales basis and the divisional manager said he sees no indication of a change.

Yet, "who knows?," he said.

★ ★ ★

The current situation is attributed to the collapse of new housing construction in the U.S. due to a tightening of mortgage money.

Most of the B.C. export market goes normally to the U.S. eastern seaboard, and about 50 per cent of that volume is sold on the other side of the Atlantic.

★ ★ ★

Clever, those Japanese.

Latest marvel marketed by Japan industry is a catalytic exhaust muffler for automobile engines, preventing atmospheric contamination by waste gases.

Poisonous particles are eliminated as exhaust passes through a catalytic reactor within muffler casing, which looks similar to conventional mufflers.

Similar types are being researched elsewhere.

Where auto fumes already pose a threat to persons with respiratory ailments — or to others in a variety of symptoms — the exhaust filter is talked about as a mandatory attachment for cars.

In B.C., particularly the lower mainland, natural atmospheric conditions lend themselves to similar hazards, although auto congestion has not yet reached California's staggering proportions.

What better time for B.C. to make exhaust filtering compulsory, now that industry is finally being forced to clean up the air we breathe.

Rolls-Royce western representative Ronald Budworth is here today giving prospective owners demonstration rides in the all-new Silver Cloud.

Looking unlike any previous Rolls or Bentley, aside from the ageless but shortened grille, the new car comes closer than ever to market trends and popular styling.

"People fear the loss of Rolls-Royce identity. This is not the case," Mr. Budworth said.

"It is simply a matter of meeting demands of the modern motorist. The car has decreased exterior dimensions, but bigger interior space."

The Cloud is comfortable for five persons and luxurious for four, complete with individual arm rests and the usual Rolls refinements.

It has multiple safety features, many of which it has had through the years.

"We've always been safety conscious, but we are stressing them more now as a selling feature," Mr. Budworth explained.

For instance: three brake cylinders instead of the former two; brake pressure warning light; double suspension system — coil springs and hydraulics; dual fan and refrigeration unit drive belts; built-in checking system for water, fuel, hydraulic system and engine oil levels, plus a fail-safe check light circuit.

The car, though smaller, weighs a substantial 4,700 pounds and has the latest version of the V-type engine introduced a few years ago.

It still has unspecified, but "adequate" horsepower.

Earnings Down

VANCOUVER (CP)—Cominco Ltd. today announced net earnings of $36,900,000 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, compared with $38,400,000 for the corresponding period last year.

Beirut Banks Reopen Doors

BEIRUT (AP) — The financial crisis facing this Middle East business capital subsided Thursday as banks reopened after an enforced three-day closure. Bankers reported business was almost back to normal.

Armed police patrolled the banking district to prevent trouble from expected crowds of depositors trying to withdraw their money, but the anticipated crowds did not materialize.

MAKERS of the world's most coveted automobiles, Rolls Royce Friday showed its first radically new model since 1954, an elegant Silver Shadow saloon. Prototype will still be turning heads in a decade, when next major style change is expected. About 20 cars a year—currently at $20,020—will be B.C.'s share of total world production of Rolls and Bentley cars set at 1,650. Nearest dealer is Clarke Simpkins in Vancouver, who with Rolls' western representative Ronald Budworth, above, displayed the Shadow in McPherson Playhouse. (Times photo)

FORMER ATLANTIC CHIEF BLAMES ASSOCIATE

Sick-Bed Testimony Heard

TORONTO (CP) — Sick-bed testimony given 5½ months ago by C. Powell Morgan, former president of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. Ltd. who died Monday, named a one-time business associate as a key to the collapse of the financial empire last year.

Told by doctors he had no more than 14 months to live because of incurable leukemia, Mr. Morgan gave 193 pages of testimony May 2-3 to Albert Shepherd, counsel for the Hughes royal commission investigating the collapse.

Mr. Morgan said Jack Tramiel, president of Commodore Business Machines (Canada) Ltd., was responsible for "knocking the props out from under Atlantic" by selling 5,000 shares in the corporation June 16, 1965.

"He (Mr. Tramiel) was the one who was responsible for Atlantic stock going down to nothing in 15 minutes," Mr. Morgan said in the testimony released Friday.

The former Atlantic president said that when long - term loan money became tight, Mr. Tramiel came into his office and threw a business card on his desk bearing the name Hugo Oppenheim and Son, a West Berlin bank.

"I said, 'What's this?" Mr. Morgan related. "He said, 'We bought a bank in Germany.' I said. 'Who is we?' and he said, 'Well, Trans Commercial Acceptance.'

"I said this was news to me," Mr. Morgan continued.

He said Mr. Tramiel explained that under German law a company with capital of 2,000,000 Deutsch marks ($544,600) could borrow 18 times that amount. Mr. Tramiel felt this situation would be important to Commodore Business Machines, Mr. Morgan said.

Mr. Morgan said that at no time did he receive direct or indirect beneficial interest in the West Berlin bank. He also said several statements attributed to Mr. Tramiel with respect to incorporation of several companies were false.

"These were the brain children of Mr. Tramiel," he told the commission. "He (Mr. Tramiel) was fed up to the teeth with paying interest to Atlantic."

In another part of the testimony, Mr. Morgan admitted his involvement in the Lucayan Beach Hotel on Grand Bahama Island and the erection of prefabricated housing also played a major role in Atlantic's downfall.

"There is no question about it," Mr. Morgan said. "I was just pulled right into it and it got down to the point where it represented a major item as far as Atlantic was concerned."

He said the Atlantic empire of companies poured about $9,000,000 into the Bahamian venture.

He said that during the last 18 months of Atlantic's existence the demand for money was great. The company was growing and had over 100 branches with a $15,000,000 business each month.

U.S. BUSINESSMEN HAVE PROBLEM

Economic Scene Confusing

NEW YORK (AP)—Businessmen fond of watching economic weathervanes may find it increasingly difficult to tell which way the wind is blowing in the U.S. Personal income is rising at a record rate, but industrial production is down.

Orders for durable goods are up for the first time in three months, but steel output is down and likely to slide lower.

Chain store sales are up 10.3 per cent from 1965, but housing starts are down 26 per cent.

Eastman Kodak Co. earnings set a record, but du Pont is down.

The Dow Jones stock market average shoots up 12.98 points one day and down 6.52 the next.

Business has been running so close to capacity that even a slight wind shift can cause inflationary pressures.

One key economic indicator is industrial production—the physical output of U.S. factories, mines and utilities. It tends to go up or down with general business.

Steel production has dropped, and now is expected to run less than a year ago, ending the four-year climb that began in 1962. That is despite defence orders.

The prolonged slump in housing construction has dropped the number of new housing starts to the lowest since 1960.

But 30 big retail chain stores and mail order firms have seen sales shoot up 10 per cent this year, and the forecast is for a merry holiday spending spree leading to another record year.

James J. Saxon, controller of the currency, quietly has moved to tighten federal supervision of loans made by national banks to finance companies, in the wake of the failure of a finance company in Detroit.

A bank was closed during the week—First State Bank of Tuscola, Tex. It was the seventh bank failure in the U.S. this year.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Ever since Noah loaded two horses onto the ark (I'll bet his neighbors laid odds on which pony would get in first) mankind has ground his brains to a mash trying to find a way to beat the pari-mutuel game.

Most of us employ the systematic system.

We analyze the field.
We bet.
We lose.
Systematically.
And regularly.

As anyone taller than a mutuel ticket knows, there must be an infallible system. It must work on wet tracks, dry tracks, cement or boards.

Several zillion formulas have been launched.

And beached.

There has been the alphabet system, the numbers system, the ages-of-the-jockeys-divided-by-their-number-in-a-race-system, the close-your-eyes-and-use-a-pin-system.

Tea leaves, astrology, licence plate numbers and old girl friends' names have influenced thousands of wagers. All fell short in varying degrees of avoiding poverty.

In talks with certified horse lovers, people like Gyp The Blood and Hatrack Harry, two other systems have come to light. Take your pick.

The first involves a track official, since retired, who started with a basic premise: never listen to an owner, trainer, jockey or groom.

"They don't know nuthin'," he used to say. (From personal experience this claim has validity. Once at Lansdowne Park nine horsemen approached the press box and suggested out of the side of their mouths that their noble beast could not lose. There were 10 horses in the race. The winner was owned by the only yahoo who had kept his yap shut.)

'Never a Losing Season in 25 . . .'

"I'm not like the knuckleheads who think they know everything about horses," he would say. "I don't know from grass.

"So what did I do? Each year before the meeting I would get from an experienced observer a list of 10 horses. They could be two-year-olds or stake horses. But they wouldn't run against each other.

"All I would ask is for 10 horses than would win at least one race.

"Then I would buy a ledger, write each horse's name and list two headings 'profit and loss'.

"My first bet would be maybe $5. If the horse lost I would show it under 'loss' in the ledger. I would bet that horse every time until he won.

"How much? Well, I would wait until the last show of odds. Then I would bet enough to cover my losses and show a hundred per cent profit. Once a horse won I would cross him off the list. I didn't care if he won 10 races after that.

"Never had a losing season in 25 years. Most I usually had to bet on a horse was four or five times. Once I was tempted to forget it. This horse had terrible form. 'I'm crazy to stay with him,' I thought. But I bet. Won and paid $84."

'Frisco Barber Back at Sandown

Purists will argue that Gyp's "boy" was an investor, not a dyed-in-the-orlon-I'll-bet-'em-or-go-home-in-a-barrel punter.

They are right, of course. But unless losing is the name of the game, who's to quarrel with a method that makes a bank account smile?

The second system is the result of heavy cerebration by Dick "The Finest in Haircutting" Scibilio.

Tonsor-artist Scibilio has a string of snip parlors in San Francisco. His spare time is given to snipping as many dollars as possible from race tracks. He discovered Sandown a few years ago. Each year he returns like the swallows in reverse.

Scibilio is easily recognized at the race track. He would lief attend without his pants than armfulls of charts, forms, et al. He showed up daily with more paper than Crown Zellerbach.

Scibilio's formula calls for calculating which horse will run the fastest last quarter mile. The animal selected is his choice to do it today and gets his money (not insubstantial).

Here he offered a spectacle which was often equal if not better than the race itself.

Lunging from his seat, he would run an obstacle course around the crowd. And sometimes through it. (No casualties were reported this season. But there were several near-misses.)

As far as can be determined, Scibilio had his financial ups and downs. Like most bettors he ran largely to downs.

This figures.

There is a hoary aphorism, proven by Gyp The Blood's boy, that is tailored to fit Scibilio's modus operandi . . . "You may beat a race but you can't beat the races."

AGAINST REDMEN

Cam Shifts Back To Attacking Job

Cam Crofton is going back on offence, and that is exactly the kind of news Nanaimo Redmen don't want to hear.

CAM CROFTON
. . . favorite target

Coach Jack Bryant of Farmer Construction is making the change in an effort to obtain greater scoring punch for the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League playoffs.

Those playoffs kick off Sunday with sudden-death semifinals at Carnarnon Park and Duncan. Farmers face Nanaimo on the Carnarvon field while Victoria Hornets travel to Duncan to tackle the second-place-finishing Cowichan Timbermen.

Both contests start at 2 p.m. and winners advance to the Island final on Oct. 30.

BEAR ON DEFENCE

Crofton, wrapping up his final season in juvenile company, was the big bear on defence as Oak Bay went through an undefeated season. He still managed to score two touchdowns in his limited appearances on offence.

Last year, he topped the entire league in scoring, proving a favorite target for quarterback Lyle Wicks. The strong end also was named the league's most valuable player.

Sunday, he'll be back at the familiar starting end position.

Three Shots by Howie Burst Shutout Bubble

Al's Scoreless String Ends As Totems Tie Maple Leafs

Victoria 3, Seattle 3

SEATTLE—Howie Hughes has chalked up a couple of notable "firsts" in the young Western Hockey League season.

Howie, who scored 37 goals for Vancouver Canucks last season, is the first player to fire three goals in one game and the first to put a puck behind Victoria rookie Al Smith.

Hughes not only ended Smith's bid for a record-equalling, third straight shutout here Friday night, he rammed three shots past the rookie sensation to enable the Totems to snatch a 3-3 tie with the Maple Leafs.

The heroics by Hughes built up a 3-1 Seattle lead in the first two periods but the Leafs remained unbeaten by storming back with two goals in the third session and battling through a scoreless overtime period.

GULLS TONIGHT

Coach Frank Mario's Leafs, who return home to meet San Digo Diego Gulls tonight, slipped into a first-place deadlock with Portland Buckaroos, who edged the Canucks 3-2 at Vancouver.

Smith, who had started his first professional season with successive shutouts over Oakland Seals and Portland, had his shutout string snapped at 8:07 of the first period when Hughes cruised in for a scoring shot after stealing the puck in mid-ice.

It erased a Victoria lead gained on a power-play goal by Bruce Carmichael. Hughes scored his second goal on a 30-footer in the second session and made it 3-1 on a pass from Earl Helskala.

Smith got back in the shutout habit in the third period, making 11 saves as the Leafs struggled from behind, and added two more stops in overtime.

LOU TIES IT

Milan Marcetta broke through the middle to get his second goal in two games early in the third period and veteran Lou Jankowski squared the count with less than four minutes remaining in regulation time.

Taking a pass from Carmichael, the crafty Jankowski hit the top right corner as Seattle goalie Jim Armstrong went down on the play.

Hughes appeared likely to become the goat despite his three-goal spree when he was tagged with a penalty in the final second of the third period. However, Armstrong held out against the Victoria power play at the start of overtime, with a pair of sparkling saves.

Mario wasn't planning any lineup changes when the Leafs tackle the Gulls tonight, although defenceman Claude Labrosse was limping after stopping a shot with a foot.

"We started slowly and seemed to gain momentum in the second period," Mario said. "Our club skated very well in the third period and in overtime. If they can skate at the same pace tonight I think they should beat the Gulls."

Willie Worries Blue Bombers

By The Canadian Press

The Western Football Conference playoff race heads into a showdown with Edmonton Eskimos visiting Saskatchewan Roughriders tonight and British Columbia Lions taking on Winnipeg Blue Bombers Sunday.

Should the Bombers and Roughies win, it would leave a three-way battle for third between B.C., Edmonton and Calgary.

Each team has two games remaining. Winnipeg is in second place, four points behind the Roughriders and two ahead of Edmonton and idle Calgary Stampeders, deadlocked with 11 points.

Five Bombers' regulars are doubtful - starters because of injuries.

SHOULDER INJURY

End Farrell Funston has a shoulder injury. He has already missed nine weeks of action due to a knee injury.

Defensive halfback Dick Thorton has a pulled neck muscle and may be replaced by Marty Rosen. Punter Ed Ulmer has been in bed since Monday with a sore throat and may only dress for kicking duties.

Tonight's Edmonton - Saskatchewan game is scheduled to be televised over Channel 2, starting at 7. Sunday's game between B.C. Lions and Winnipeg will be shown on Channel 8, starting at 12:30 p.m. PDT.

Morley Rolphiser, with a knee injury, is expected to be replaced on the outside linebacker spot by Paul Robson. Wayne Dennis, nursing a foot injury since last Sunday, showed up for a workout Friday only to aggravate the injury.

ON PRIORITY LIST

Meanwhile, linecoach Johnny Michels says halfback Willie Fleming of B.C. has been placed high on Winnipeg's "be - careful" priority list.

"You always have to worry about Willie. He's still capable of going all the way if he gets that gap," said Michels.

Winnipeg has also a good deal of respect for B.C. fullback Larry Eilmes who has scored seven touchdowns in nine games.

But Eilmes will run into a Winnipeg defence Sunday that has a record of punishing fullbacks.

GRADUATING from Victoria High, B.C.'s high school champions of last season, to Victoria Chinooks is guard Eric Walker. He'll make his Inter-City Junior Men's League debut tonight at Central Junior gym when Chinooks jump off new season against Kerrisdale, starting at 8:30.

Ex-Hoop Coach Dies in Victoria

He was 73.

Bill, who moved here from Edmonton only five months ago, coached the University of Alberta women's team in the early 1930s.

Turkey Contest

Mrs. E. Poitras fired a net 73 to take top honors in a women's turkey competition at Uplands Golf Club. Mrs. K. Liddell was second and Mrs. V. Hicks was third.

Mrs. Hicks captured the Darcus Cup as she finished the annual contest with a net total of 223, eight strokes ahead of Mrs. K. Lawson.

Altitude Tests Considered For U.S. Olympic Athletes

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Winners by a mile and wiser by half, the United States team packed up their "little" Olympic crown and headed for home Friday after pulling victory over Russia—and a glimpse of the Olympic future—literally out of thin air.

U.S. Olympic hopefuls may have to undergo tests for "altitude fitness" as a result.

Two gold medals in track and a silver for the modern pentathlon capped the U.S. effort in the chilly, rainy finale of the nine-day games Thursday.

But the victory was tempered with knowledge gained the hard way — by losing. Most of the U.S. triumphs were in short-term competitions, unaffected by the oxygen-thin air at Mexico City's 7,349-foot altitude.

That was the purpose of the games, which drew 788 contestants from 25 countries. To sample the oxygen gap that will play a significant part in the 1968 Olympics here.

AAU track chief Hilmer Lodge of Pala, Calif., said earlier in the games that the altitude seemed to affect some athletes more than others.

"We may have to hold some type of qualifying event to determine which react more favorably to the altitude stress, particularly for the long distance events," he said.

"It may be that our best men will not be as good at this altitude as others ranked fifth or sixth in their class, but with a better reaction to the altitude."

The U.S. pentathlon team said the altitude hurt their showing in Thursday's running competition, pointing out that they placed third, seventh and tenth behind a Mexican Roberto Barcena, that they were used to beating in the United States.

In the little Olympic long-distance events, the U.S. entries — with almost no high-altitude training time to their credit — generally fared badly. The victories went to the altitude-trained from other nations.

Jim Grelle of Portland, Ore., the best American miler, finished an ignominious 10th behind a field of semi-unknowns in the 1,500 metre run Thursday.

CAMPBELL REPLIES . . . . . . TO QUEBECKER'S CHARGE

Critic's Views 'Nationalistic'

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said today Gerald Martineau, president of Quebec Aces of the American League, is taking a "nationalistic approach" in his criticism of a proposed universal draft agreement between the NHL and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Martineau earlier this week criticized the proposed agreement as an "injustice" and a "sellout to the Americans." The pro-amateur draft will come into effect next June, after final ratification by the NHL and the CAHA.

The universal draft will allow the expanded 12-team NHL six team choices or a total of 72 amateur players no longer eligible for junior hockey. The nine-team AHL will pick a total of 27 players, or three for each club.

Cambell said the agreement will comply with the CAHA wishes that players under 20 years of age not be eligible for the draft until they have wound up their junior careers.

Referring to Martineau's criticism, Campbell said: "United States teams have made a great contribution to the development of Canadian talent."

He said that with the exception of Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens, none of the Canadian teams has done much to develop Canadian players.

Campbell also agreed with an earlier statement by NHL Publicity Director Ron Andrews that any Canadian hockey player would prefer to play in the NHL where the average salary is about $16,400 a year, compared with $8,000 or $9,000 in the AHL.

Art Gets Back In Good Books

Art Jones, taken off the ice in the third period for ineffective play while Portland Buckaroos were losing 5-0 to the Maple Leafs Wednesday in Victoria, is back in the good books of coach Hal Laycoe.

Jones turned out to be the hero of the night at Vancouver Friday as the Bucks edged the Canucks in a 3-2 thriller. He scored two unassisted goals in the second period to enable Portland to climb into a first-place tie with Victoria.

Playing before 3,566 fans, Jones broke a 1-1 deadlock at seven mintes of the second period while Canucks had two men in the penalty box. He collected the winner four minutes later while the Buckaroos were two men short through penalties, stealing the puck in front of the Vancouver net and flipping a high shot past goalie Don Simmons.

Canucks jumped into an early lead when Mark Dufour beat goalie Don Head on a breakaway but Alain Caron pulled the Bucks even in the second minute of the second period.

Rookie defenceman Jack Chipchase, transferred from Victoria just before the season opened, scored for Vancouver in the third session but the Canucks couldn't click for another tally.

Golf Lead Grows To Eight Strokes

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The favored United States team had an eight-stroke bulge over defending champion France entering the third round today of the women's world amateur golf championship, but everybody's talking about a wisp of a girl from Belgium named Corinne Reybroeck.

They have christened her Minnie Mouse because of her size. She is five feet tall, weighs 90 pounds and is 15 years old.

Going into the third round at the Mexico City Country Club, she had a 36-hole individual medal of 72-75—147, three shots back of the United States' Mrs. David Welts of Mt. Vernon, Wash., leading with 71-73—144, and two behind Mrs. Theodore Boddie of Shreveport, Pa., 74-71, and Canada's Marlene Streit of Toronto and formerly of Fonthill, Ont., 74-71.

Steady performances by the two American housewives sent the United States to the top of the 19-country field with a total of 289. France followed, eight back at 297, and then came Canada 298, Belgium 301, South Africa 302, Italy 304.

Gail Harvey Moore of Vancouver shot a 77 Friday, while Gayle Hitchens, also of Vancouver, shot a 78.

Each team has three players but only the two best scores count in the official tally.

She walks with a long, belligerent stride, constantly swinging a club like a majorette with a baton. She chews on a wooden tee, which she never takes out of her mouth except to say, "You're away."

There's nothing delicate about her swing. She winds up and gives the ball an awful wallop. She's not timid. She's always going for the pin.

Two Eagles And An Ace For Aussie

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—Alan Murray, Australian pro who quit the touring circuit a year ago, shot a hole-in-one, two eagles and three birdies Friday and bounded into a three-stroke lead at the halfway mark in the Australian Masters with a 137 total.

His hot second-round 66 is a record for the par-73 Victoria Club course that stretches 6,767 yards over the rolling terrain near here.

Peter Thomson of Australia, who has won the British Open five times, is second with 70-70—140. The final two rounds will be played today.

COMBOS NIPPED

Griff Sparks Tudors

By JEFF PINNIGER

From a production standpoint, Dave Griff was the "gruff" one as Esquimalt Tudor Monarchs squeaked out a 6-5 victory over the Canadian Forces' Combos in Friday's Esquimalt District Hockey League play at the Sports Centre.

ROUGH GAME

A total of 14 penalties were handed out in the rough affair, including a misconduct to Tudor veteran Keith Lawrence.

Lonnie Restall was another standout for Monarchs, getting a goal and an assist. As well, goaltender Ed Hastings was called on to make some great saves, especially in the late stages when Combos turned on the pressure in an effort to get the tying goal.

Next Friday, Combos will play University of Victoria Vikings.

Career Over For Buffle?

NEW YORK (AP) — Buffle, the King Ranch colt who won two major stakes this year, is suffering from a mysterious illness tentatively identified as brain paralysis and may never race again.

Buffle, who had been a likely starter in the Lawrence Realization at Aqueduct this week, was stricken after a workout Thursday. Dr. Mark Gerrard, a veterinarian who has been observing the horse daily since then, said an operation would be performed "only as a last resort."

Nationals Wallop Nelson Leafs 8-2

NELSON (CP) — Canada's National team whipped Nelson of the Western International League 8-2 Friday night in a ragged exhibition hockey game.

Twenty-six penalties were handed out in the dull contest, all minors.

The nationals took a 1-0 lead in the first period and extended it to 6-0 in the second. Nelson didn't get on the scoreboard until halfway through the final period—on goals by Gail Holden and Corky Agar.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS:

Short putt—long putt

GARY, HAVE YOU HEARD THE THEORY THAT THE PUTTER SHOULD ALWAYS BE TAKEN BACK TEN INCHES AND THAT THE FOLLOW THROUGH SHOULD ALWAYS BE SIX INCHES?
I'VE ALSO HEARD IT SHOULD GO BACK TEN INCHES AND GO THROUGH TWENTY. BUT THESE THEORIES LEAVE ME COLD, IAIN. THE IMPORTANT THING WHEN PUTTING IS "FEEL" AND YOU CAN'T DESCRIBE THAT IN TERMS OF INCHES!
ON SHORT PUTTS, I WANT TO STRIKE THE BALL A FIRM, CRISP, DECISIVE BLOW, SO I TAKE A SHORT BACKSWING AND A SHORT FOLLOW-THROUGH
SHORT PUTTS — SHORT, CRISP ACTION
BUT ON LONG PUTTS, I WANT A SMOOTH, STROKING ACTION TO ROLL THE BALL UP TO THE HOLE, SO I TAKE BACK THE CLUB A LONG WAY WHICH AUTOMATICALLY GIVES ME A SLOW SWING WITH A LOT OF RHYTHM, AND A LONG FOLLOW-THROUGH
IF I HAD ONLY TAKEN A SIX INCH BACKSWING FOR THIS LONG PUTT MY ACTION WOULD HAVE BEEN DECIDEDLY JERKY!
LONG PUTTS — LONG STROKING ACTION

Mount Douglas Has Faint Hope

BOWLER OF WEEK

Joining list of winners in fourth annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest is Ken Garland, who captured men's tenpin award in second week by rolling 616 three-game series in Men's Commercial League at Mayfair Lanes. Employed at Queen's Printers, Garland started with big games of 233 and 224 before slipping to 159 on his way to winning score.

Floor Hockey Starting

Floor hockey enthusiasts are interested in forming a city-wide league. They need more teams and players. Persons interested are asked to contact Mike Armstrong (385-0146).

The soccer light shines brightly at Victoria High and Mount View. There's a faint flicker at Mount Douglas, but at Oak Bay and Esquimalt the lights went out Friday.

Victoria's Tyees, the defending champions, and the Views are practically assured of meeting in the Inter-High Soccer League final as a result of timely victories Friday.

The Views are assured of no worse than a tie for second after chalking up a spirited 2-1 decision over Oak Bay. The Bays remained lodged in third place.

Only fourth place Mount Doug, with two games remaining, have a chance to tie Mount View for the second spot in the championship game. The Dougs have games remaining with Oak Bay and last-place Esquimalt.

At Oak Bay, the Views pulled out their victory on the strength of goals by Ted Bailey and Curt Clarke and the solid defensive play of Ron Kilshaw. Bruce Howe scored Oak Bay's goal with only four minutes remaining in the match.

KEY JUNIOR CLASH

'Darkhorse' Flag Carried by Navy

Navy, made up of the majority of players who captured the national Armed Forces championship last weekend, make its first division debut Sunday by facing Red Lions at Bullen Park.

Manager Dennis Gordon and coach Russ Wilson have most of last year's squad back in the fold. Two newcomers give Navy an optimistic outlook on this season's campaign.

FORMER AUSTRALIAN

All eight entries in the second division also taste action. Colony Inn and Gorge play at Upper Topaz, University Norsemen meet Falcons on the Uvic campus, Island Tug plays Sidney at Lower Topaz, and Vic West tackles London Boxing Club at Central Park.

Sunday is also the day of the "big test" for Victoria's entry in the Inter-City Junior League. A Carnarvon Park meeting matches the two remaining undefeated teams in the junior circuit — Victoria and Columbus.

All matches kick off at 2 p.m.

OAK BAY

Litwin Leads Assault

Record-breakers stepped into the spotlight Friday as the swimmers blew the starting whistle on Oak Bay Senior High's "Fun and Fitness Week."

Oak Bay's big week continues with swimming, soccer, volleyball, badminton, grass hockey, rugby and basketball events. The program winds up with a homecoming event next Friday.

SUE SPARKLES

Sue Litwin was the swim meet standout. She established new marks in the individual freestyle and backstroke as well as leading the House III team to victory in the junior girls' relay.

House I captured meet honors with 132 points, 12 more than House IV.

Balance Boosts Bruins Into NHL Prominence

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins appear to have a much better balanced club than the one that finished fifth in the National Hockey League last season.

The Bruins—with some new faces, a rookie coach and some depth in their veterans—have been picked by many hockey experts to finish in the playoffs this year.

Boston will be seeking its second win in a row when it meets the Canadiens in Montreal tonight in the first game of a home-and-home series.

The other four NHL clubs also play home-and-home encounters this weekend.

New York Rangers visit Toronto Maple Leafs tonight and Chicago Black Hawks visit Detroit Red Wings. The teams change home arenas Sunday.

WON FIRST GAME

Boston shut out Montreal 3-0 in an exhibition game last Sunday and trounced Detroit 6-2 in their season start Wednesday night—the first time the Bruins have won their opening game since 1962.

LEAFS REPORT INJURIES

The Leafs will be without defenceman Bob Baun, Marcel Pronovost and centres Red Kelly and Bob Pulford. Kelly is nursing a groin injury, Baun a broken thumb and Pronovost and Pulford have knee injuries.

Coach Punch Imlach has called up defencemen Al Arbour and Duane Rupp from Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League.

Meanwhile, the Red Wings also appear to be in defence trouble. Bill Gadsby announced his retirement during the off season and Doug Barkley was forced out of hockey by a serious eye injury last season.

Hull, who scored a record 54 goals and a record total of 97 points last season, netted two goals and picked up an assist against New York Wednesday night.

Mikita, two-time scoring champion, leads the league with four points on two goals and an equal number of assists.

The Boston-Montreal game will be televised on the CBC-TV network (Channels 2 and 6), starting at 5:30 tonight.

INSIDE CITY HALL

Saanich Nibbles At City Crown . . . Defying Laws

By JIM HUME

It was inevitable.

Those worthy gentlemen who administer Saanich on behalf of the populace revealed their hand this week when they solemnly gave ex-Victoria alderman Millard Mooney permission to continue breaking three municipal bylaws.

Hume

We had thought that such blind-eye views of municipal law were a Victoria exclusive.

* * *

Tents, street closures and other odds and ends of bylaw defiance so frequently receive tacit city council approval that they no longer cause raised eyebrows even among the cynical press corps.

With Saanich now joining the club we wonder how long it will be before Esquimalt and Oak Bay get into the act. Reeves Ray Bryant and Alan Cox rarely miss the opportunity to boost their communities and they both work hard for unanimity among Greater Victoria municipalities.

We look to them to find a citizen openly thumbing his nose at a local statute and then handsomely and publicly tell him to go ahead because they know he's a solid citizen.

* * *

Maybe it was the dull and smoggy day. Maybe it was the singular lack of enthusiasm among the seemingly bored spectators, but any flavor of excitement was conspicuously missing.

Having invited A. H. "Tony" Roberts of the regional planning board to address the group of Chamber of Commerce and city officials ordinary courtesy demanded that the group listen.

* * *

Mr. Roberts had hardly started on his carefully prepared talk when, a few yards from the speaker's platform, a helicopter roared into life.

A few minutes later — after suitable pauses while Mayor A. W. Toone and Ald. Edgelow posed for press and TV photographers — it whirled away over the Inner Harbor.

Mr. Roberts wisely folded his notes and left the platform.

Trying to talk to an already bored group is one thing, trying to compete against a couple of helicopters is something else again.

If Chamber and city officials haven't already done so they might telephone Mr. Roberts and apologize for their bad behavior.

* * *

While on the heliport opening I should pass on to the taxpayers a vignette which might lift their spirits for the weekend.

City treasurer Jim Bramley doesn't take his duties lightly as elected and hired officials know. He worries about income and expenditure as though the money he has in trust were his own.

Tuesday afternoon while helicopters flitted hither and yon over the city the Sudbury II came steaming into the harbor.

It was a picture postcard scene for everyone except the man with the key to the counting house.

"I hope," he said without a smile crinkling his face, "it doesn't want to go under Johnson Street bridge. It costs us $300 every time we have to lift the bridge these days."

Those of us close by carefully turned his face from the harbor waters lest the shock of the Sudbury seeking passage to its berth prove too much.

* * *

For those who have forgotten, Johnson Street bridge is closed to traffic while a job of re-decking is done. It lifts at certain times to let traffic in and out of the Inner Harbor and will lift at other times if it is absolutely essential — at a cost of $300 in work stoppages and the shifting of equipment.

It should provide some consolation to hard-pressed taxpayers to know that Mr. Bramley worries about these things.

He was still fretting as we led him away.

HEES
. . . warns industry

TIME HAS COME

Eliminate University Charges

HALIFAX (CP) — George Hees, former Progressive Conservative trade minister, said today the time has come when university education should be made free of charge "to all those capable of passing the entrance requirements."

"In this way we will make sure that all those capable of making a valuable contribution to the future of the nation shall have the opportunity to acquire the necessary education."

Mr. Hees, member of Parliament for Northumberland, was addressing a meeting of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation of the Atlantic Provinces.

He said that "those who direct Canadian industry must learn to consider their share of the building and maintenance costs of our institutions of higher learning as one of their regular costs of production.

"If these costs are not met, industry will not have the research facilities and the scientists which are needed to keep us abreast of our competitors in other countries and we will simply fade out of the picture as an industrial nation."

'Pathway Would Help'

Parents of children at Sangster Elementary School are pressuring authorities to make traffic conditions safer for their youngsters.

They want the speed limit near the school reduced to 20 mph, a pathway for the children to walk along Metchosin Road, and delivery rushed on a new school bus to carry children to school.

Mrs. Yvonne Cummings, president of the PTA, said the speed limit was raised to 40 mph earlier this year and it presents a hazard in view of the heavy traffic using Metchosin Road. She said "even a pathway would help" on the narrow, busy throughfare.

Press Freedom Defended By Members of Chamber

Directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce Friday defended the freedom of the press against an attack by the chamber's retail merchants group.

A resolution proposed by the retail merchants group would have urged newspapers to emphasize "restraint" rather than "depression."

At the group's meeting Thursday Roy Denny of Standard Furniture charged newspapers with their headlined "cries of doom" were creating a depression atmosphere which could be bad for business.

When the motion came before the directors it was rejected overwhelmingly with only one person voting in fovor.

"There should be no suggestion of press supression by this body," W. Gordon Holms commented.

In other business the directors approved in principle the takeover by the chamber of the city's industrial research committee.

Ald. Savage put forward the proposal claiming industrial inquiries would be received in greater number and processed more quickly if put in the hands of the chamber staff.

Psychiatrist Named To Forensic Clinic

A Stanford University psychiatrist has been appointed to plan and direct a forensic clinic for British Columbia, Health Minister Eric Martin announced Friday.

Dr. Edward Lipinski will establish the clinic in Burnaby after a two-month survey of existing probation and social agencies in the province.

The clinic is initially to provide psychiatric and diagnostic service to the courts and probation services of the provinces with existing agencies providing treatment.

The clinic itself will be in a position eventually to provide outpatient treatment for cases referred by the courts and probation services.

The 40-year-old Dr. Lipinski graduated with a BA and MD from the University of British Columbia in 1960. He undertook his psychiatric training at the University of Cincinnati and has spent the last three years working in the medical clinic at Stanford University, Calif.

Canadian Far North Is Season Premiere For Wild Kingdom

Helicopter views of the awe-inspiring scenery of the vast Canadian wilderness and its wildlife will be seen when modern hunters board choppers to search the area for giant moose and participate in a round-up of mountain goats in "Chase by Copter," on Wild Kingdom, Sunday, at 5 p.m., on Channel 5.

Marlin Perkins, world-famed naturalist and director of the St. Louis (Mo.) Zoological Gardens, is host of the series with Jim Fowler, international explorer naturalist, as co-host. In the program, Fowler spots a giant moose in a lake and the helicopter swoops down between the animal and the shore driving it into deeper water. There the chopper is carefully manoeuvered so that Fowler can climb out onto the bobbing pontoons to tag the animal for scientific purposes.

During a flight over the mountains of Western Canada, Perkins and Fowler engage in a mountain goat roundup. After a 300-foot-wide net is stretched across a draw, the helicopter grazes peaks and plummets down gorges in a wild, hair-raising ride to drive the sure-footed goats into the draw and the net. On the ground the trapped animals are immobilized and tagged as part of a scientific study.

Meet the Press

Richard M. Nixon, former vice-president and the 1960 Republican presidential candidate, will be the guest on Meet The Press at 1 p.m. Sunday, on Channel 5.

Newsmen who will participate in the interview will be Roscoe Drummond, Publishers Newspaper Syndicate; Robert Novak, the "Chicago Sun-Times;" Robert MacNeil, NBC News correspondent; and Lawrence E. Spivak, permanent panel member and producer of "Meet The Press."

CHARLES BICKFORD

Actor Advises Authors

HOLLYWOOD — Everyone should write a book, says veteran actor Charles Bickford.

"It's very self-revealing and it could be wonderful therapy," he said.

It could also get published, like his did.

Bickford, who signed on this season in the starring role of Shiloh ranch owner John Grainger in "The Virginian," is still enjoying the afterglow of authorship.

His book, curiously titled, "Balls, Bulls, Bicycles and Actor," was published in the fall of 1965.

"I never even thought of writing a book," said Bickford encouragingly. "A publisher-friend challenged me to write one about my 55 years in show business. That was about three years age. Six months later I started to write."

"I wrote spasmodically," he said. "I spent about three hours writing at a time. I wrote longhand and got about 60 pages each time. I put them aside for a week and then re-read them. If they were good, I kept them, if they were bad I threw them away."

A LOT OF BUNK

"When I finished I sent the manuscript to a professional typist," he said. "When it came back I re-read it carefully and decided that it was a lot of bunk.

I put it in the closet. After a few weeks I got a call from the publisher. I told him I had finished the book and that I was going to throw it into the ash can. He dropped the subject and called my wife, without telling me. She sent him the manuscript on the sly. A few days later he called raving about the book. He said it didn't need anything other than some last-minute editing I might want to do once it was in galley proofs."

Six months later it was on the book stands. Critics praised it, calling it "highly readable," "a wild kind of book that'll reach out and grab you." One suggested that Bickford receive "a citation for literary achievement by an actor."

"I never expected to have literary talent," Bickford said, "I had a lot of fun writing the book but I wasn't too serious about it. Once I started writing, it flowed. I found writing fun, not drudgery."

Bickford's stormy life and incompromising convictions have paid off and he can look back now on many achievements, including three Academy Award honors in a four-year period for his supporting roles in "The Song of Bernadette," "The Farmer's Daughter" and "Johnny Belinda." He may be seen currently in "A Big Hand for a Little Lady" and is well-remembered for his roles in "Days of Wine and Roses," "A Star Is Born," "Jim Thorpe — All American," "Duel in the Sun," "It Happened One Night," and "Anna Christie." His television appearances include "Cradle Song" and "Winterset" on"The Hallmark Hall of Fame," among others.

Asked the point of his book, Bickford said:

"I have tried, not consciously, to tell a young man to prepare himself for what he will do in life so that when the opportunity comes he can take advantage of it. He should fight with teeth, claws and toenails to make good — never mind what the odds are."

Festival Plays Henry James

Comedy-Drama Show Of Spook Tale Based on '3rd Person'

A handsome and friendly ghost with his head to one side invades the lives of a pair of spinster ladies in "The Spirit of the Deed," a comedy-drama by Michael Sinelnikoff, to be telecast on Festival, Wednesday, at 9:30 p.m., on Channel 2.

Mary Savidge and Amelia Hall star as Susan and Amy Frush, cousins who inherit an ancestral mansion and estate in rural England. Gordon Pinsent "ghost stars" as Cuthbert Frush, the amiable spirit from the romantic past, hanged (as the cousins discover) for smuggling.

The Spirit of the Deed is based on The Third Person, a short story by Henry James. Michael Sinelnikoff, a CBC-TV drama producer in Montreal, was assisted in writing the TV adaptation by David Gardner, who produced and directed the play for Festival, and story editor Doris Gauntlett.

Susan and Amy must live at Marr Gables in order to fulfill the terms of the will granting their inheritance. But they did not bargain for an ectoplasmic companion, a handsome one at that, in Elizabethan finery.

Cuthbert, although he never speaks, appears to want something from them. What it is, the two ladies cannot seem to discover, but their disturbing dilemma and how they solve it makes for a delightful hour of television.

Producer-director David Gardner believes he has discovered a new comedy team in Mary Savidge and Amelia Hall, two of Canada's most accomplished character actresses whose separate work at the Stratford Festival and on CBC television is well known.

Gordon Pinsent, who plays the ghostly Cuthbert, was seen on Festival earlier this season as guest star of Fifteen Miles of Broken Glass, an original drama by Tom Hendry, in which he played an RCAF pilot in the Second World War. Star of last season's Mr. Member of Parliament (on The Serial) he is currently working on a 10-week series of hour dramas titled Quentin Durgens MP. Pinsent stars in the title role of this series which makes its dubut on CBC-TV in late November..

For The Spirit of the Deed, the interior of the baronial mansion owned by the two cousins was erected in CBC-TV's Studio 7 in Toronto, to the design of Murray Laufer. Costumes were designed by Thelma Timmins, props by Alex Bowen, to conform to the period of the drama — the end of the Edwardian era. James' story was set in the Victorian era, but Sinelnikoff and his colaborators moved it ahead a few decades to allow for more attractive costumes.

Chrysler Theatre

Officer rivalry that led to a frontier debacle as total as Custer's Last Stand, but 10 years earlier, provides a fact-based story for "Bob Hope Presents the Chrysler Theatre" Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 2 (9 p.m., Channel 5).

The episode is entitled "Massacre at Fort Phil Kearney." Starring are Richard Egan as Col. Henry Carrington and Robert Fuller as Capt. William Fetterman, the rival officers; Carroll O'Connor as Colonel Hamington's aide, Capt. Ted Eyck, and Phyllis Avery as the colonel's wife.

Colonel and captain split over policy toward the Indians in whose territory the fort has been built. The colonel, a former lawyer, wants to pacify them by friendly means. The captain, a fighting hero in the recent Civil War, wants to subdue them by force. The showdown comes when a soldier is found scalped.

Youth and LSD

A young Canadian actor now on the Hollywood scene, Michael Sarrazin guest stars in Pick a Time, Any Time, an episode of Wojeck to be telecast on Tuesday, at 9 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

Sarrazin plays Tony Collins, a college student questioned by Dr. Steve Wojeck concerning the sudden death of a fellow student on the campus. The dead youth, Wojeck has discovered, has taken a large dose of LSD.

Montrealer Michael Sarrazin made his professional TV debut on CBC television in October, 1964, in a Show of the Week drama, Between the Silences of Love, in which he appeared with Peter Donat and Patricia Collins (a regular of the Wojeck series, playing the coroner's wife, Marty). He later starred in Prelude, Phillip Hersch's first produced drama, also on Show of the Week. Hersch is the writer and creator of the Wojeck series, which stars John Vernon in the title role.

Peanuts Return

Good Grief!

And there's a lot of that in store for "good old Charlie Brown" and the rest of the Peanuts gang, in It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown, an animated cartoon Halloween special in color to be presented on Wednesday, at 8 p.m. on Channel 2.

While Charlie Brown and the other Peanuts are busy planning their annual Halloween party and making their trick-or-treat rounds of the neighborhood, Linus and Sally take up a vigil in the pumpkin patch, awaiting the arrival of the legendary Great Pumpkin, who brings gifts to good little boys and girls.

Charlie winds up with a sack full of rocks and Linus faces another kind of disillusionment as Halloween plays its own tricks on the Peanuts.

Exploration N.W.

Channel 4 viewers will be able to share in the fun of an action-adventure trip on the lighter side, in "Exploration Northwest's" colorcast, "Reel Action at Campbell River," Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Everything is played for the benefit of the camera; including the fish! And the most important member of the party is the photographer.

Highlights of the trip include fishing for salmon in the saltchuck above Campbell River, as well as, for winter run steelhead in the rushing streams nearby.

Interesting shots of the "boom town" of Campbell River, along with some of the historical background will be shown. The beauty of this rugged country is revealed in full color.

HOME GARDEN

It Can Be Fun To Experiment

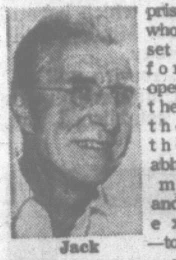
By JACK BEASTALL

It would seem that home gardeners can be divided into two groups- the first comprises those who desire a set schedule for every operation in the garden; the second, those who abhor regimentation and prefer to experiment—to do things that seem reasonable even if success does not attend their efforts.



Jack

For this second group we have a few ideas that could be used over the weekend.

We can start with a little seed sowing in the trench and three-foot-square seed bed we prepared in mid-September.

The trench was left to settle, and now it can be planted with sweet pea seeds. Do not, on any account, soak the seeds in water before sowing. There will be plenty of moisture in the soil during the months ahead to soften the seed coats and allow the growths to emerge.

The seed is usually sown about three to four inches deep at this time of year, but the gardener must always be guided by the kind of soil he has to work and the general winter conditions that prevail in his garden.

LEVEL OF SOIL

More important probably, than depth of sowing, is to use a trench in the ture sense of the word, that is, with the level of the soil about six inches below the surroundings, and the removed soil piled equally on each side to increase the height of the walls.

The seeds are going to germinate, and the seedlings will be growing, during the late fall and winter months when protection will be needed occasionally if the weather becomes a little too severe for their well being.

Since sweet peas are fairly hardy to cold and like to grow under cool conditions, this protection is provided by working a little soil from the side ridges down into the trench and around the young plants as they progress.

In this way there is never more than the tips of the plants above soil level, and since these are still well below the level of the surrounding soil it is feasible to put a few boards over the trench if the temperatures tumble to a level you feel will be too severe.

The other piece of ground, the yard-square seed bed we so carefully prepared and cultivated to remove lumps and debris, is for the fall sown onions. All that is needed now is one light cultivation of the surface before the seed is sown.

A point to remember is that onions, like most of our vegetables, are biennials. The bulb is produced one season, and if it is planted the following spring it will produce a head of flowers and seeds.

TRANSPLANTING

This fact gives us a clue to the culture of onions. Once the bulb has formed, no matter how small it may be, any condition which causes growth to cease for a short period has the same effect as lifting the bulb in the fall and replanting it in the spring — wil will just produce flowers and seeds.

We sow onion seeds in the fall to have strong seedlings to transplant in the spring, thus saving several weeks.

For this transplanting to be successful the seedling must not have produced any sign of a bulb at the time we are ready to move them, and the only way to prevent bulb formation is to sow the seed so thickly that sideways expansion is impossible.

Even then, we shall find the seedldings on the outer edges of our seed bed have become larger than those nearer the centre, and we usually leave these outside seedlings in the bed to provide "spring onions" for use in early salads and sandwiches.

* * *

FENCE IS BARRICADE against strangers but it doesn't have to look like one as this indented structure demonstrates with imaginative recesses at five-and-a-half-foot intervals which permit shrubs to peek through.

QUIZZING the GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. Why should I pull up all my petunias and snapdragons when they are still having flowers? I see the beds of begonias, marigolds and lobelia are still left in Bastion Square, and nobody tells the city they should be pulled up and thrown on the compost heap. T.G., Victoria.

A. The summer blooming annuals are usually damaged and tattered by the first frosts or heavy rains of fall, signalling their removal by gardeners who wish to use the space for planting spring flowering bulbs, or for more permanent shrubs and perennials which will grow best if planted during late September and early October.

This is why we remind home gardeners to pull up their summer bedding annuals when the flowers are no longer perfect.

Many gardens near salt water, or sheltered, (Bastion Square gardens have both features) are still frost-free, and if the space is not needed this fall for planting the annuals may be left indefinitely.

The city parks department has facilities for raising bulbs for spring planting, so that transformation may be accomplished almost overnight.

Cleaner Lawns

NEW YORK (UPI) — Outdoor living can be considerably more pleasant with less picking up if you scatter small red clay saucers at strategic spots where smokers tend to congregate.

These economical ash trays blend well with outdoor furniture, make the disposal of cigarette and cigar stubs easier and keep your lawn looking neater.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Continue with planting and division of herbaceous perennials, and strive to finish the work before the end of this month.

Prepare planting spaces for new trees which will be available next month; also for roses, usually ready locally by early November.

Broad-leaved evergreen flowering shrubs, often available in containers, may be planted at any time. Be sure to remove the container.

Before the end of month, get in a good supply of soil (well-rotted compost) and some sand under cover for potting and other work during winter. The soil should be kept moderately damp, never quite dry.

Prepare for planting of fruit trees as they become available. They are not dug from the nurseries until leaf-fall, so do not be impatient for delivery. The time waiting can be well used in preparation of planting holes after the exact location is decided.

See that the cabbages are still firm in the ground after the heavy rain of the past week. Also check wallflowers to see that they are not loosened. These plants fail to produce good results in loost soil.

KLEMPA
. . . to Burlington

Rev. William Klempa, DD, of Trinity Presbyterian Church, Tillicum and Walter, is leaving here to become associate minister at Knox Persbyterian Church, Burlington, Ont.

He will conduct his last service in the Trinity church Sunday at 11 a.m.

Dr. Klempa came to Victoria more than four years ago after completing his theological studies in Scotland and Germany. During his ministry here, the Gorge congregation became self-supporting and was amalgamated with St. Paul's and Erskine churches to form the new Trinity congregation.

He has been secretary of the Student Christian Movement at the University of Victoria; president of the Victoria branch Canadian Bible Society, and moderator of the Victoria presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

With Father William Kennedy, Dr. Klempa organized a student Protestant-Roman Catholic dialogue which has met weekly at the university for two years past.

Dr. Klempa has also been active as a member of Greater Victoria Council of Churches and the Community Welfare Council.

With his wife, two daughters and a son, the minister will leave Victoria for Burlington next week.

"We are going with some regrets," Dr. Klempa said. "We have many good friends here and we have enjoyed our life and work in Victoria.

Arrive Thursday

Brigadier and Mrs. Cecil Bonar from Edmonton will arrive here Thursday to take over the Salvation Army's social service centre at 521 Johnson St. They are replacing Major and Mrs. Arthur Hopkinson who will operate the social service centre in Calgary.

Probation After Death

"Withold not thou thy tender mercies from me, O Lord: let thy lovingkindness and thy truth continually preserve me."

GIANT CHOIR SOUGHT TO CELEBRATE UNION

A mass choir of 1,000 voices is wanted for Victoria's Memorial Arena on Sunday, Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m.

The occasion is a Proclamation Day service marking the 100th anniversary of union between the colonies of Vancouver Island and the British Columbia mainland.

Every choir in Greater Victoria and Central Saanich has been invited to join the mass ensemble, which will be conducted by Frank Tupman and accompanied by an augmented Salvation Army band.

"All people who enjoy choral singing are welcome, whether they belong to a choir or not," says Mr. Tupman.

Modern Version Leans to Yahweh

LONDON (AP) — A new version of the Bible in modern English was published Friday with the unfamiliar word Yahweh replacing the words "the Lord."

Rev. Alexander Jones, Roman Catholic general editor of the work, explained that Yahweh is the word used in original Hebrew texts and means "the incommunicable name of God."

"Nobody knows what the name means," he added. Yahweh was not intended as a proper name but, on the contrary, was meant to indicate in some way that God cannot be named.

The new Bible is the product of a half-century's research by scholars of the Roman Catholic Ecole Biblique in Jerusalem. Nearly 30 translators and theologians spent 10 years converting this research into this English version, the first to be entirely free of such archaisms as "thee" and "thou."

The 23rd psalm becomes:

Yahweh is my shepherd, I
lack nothing.
In meadows of green grass
he lets me lie.
To the waters of repose he
leads me;
There he revives my soul."

Woman's Duty To Home

Professional and business women from Victoria and Vancouver will attend the 11 a.m. service in the historic Church of Our Lord Sunday.

Occasion is the annual worship service of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Bishop Denys Rankilor, primate of the Reformed Episcopal Church in Canada, will speak on The World of Modern Woman.

"Can woman pursue a career and be mother and homemaker as well?" he asks. "Modern woman says she can work from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and then fulfil her family duties from 5 to 8 p.m.

"The question is: Can she? The family is the foundation of every civilization and the family must come first if we are to survive."

CAPTION SLANTED?

A caption under a photo in The Victoria Times of July 11 last will be discussed by Marvin Evans in his Sunday morning address to Victoria Unitarian Church.

The caption stated that "a man, a woman and two Orientals" had stepped off a boat.

"Surely the Orientals were also man or woman," says Mr. Evans. "Without meaning to do so, we sometimes imply color prejudice in the terms we use."

Mr. Evans will address two meetings in the Servetus Hall, 106 Superior Street, at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Church Role For Women To Be Theme

Women in Today's Living Church will be the theme of a one-day conference in First United Church starting at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Chief speaker will be Miss Beatrice Wilson from Toronto, associate secretary of the National Board of Women of the United Church of Canada.

She will address the conference at 2:15 p.m. and speak at a dinner beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Registration at 9:30 a.m. will be followed by a worship service at 10 a.m., conducted by Rev. E. Laura Butler; group discussions starting at 10:30 a.m., lunch at 12:30 p.m. and a question period from 3:15 p.m. to 3:45 p.m.

Murder Tale Prepared For Cathedral

T. S. Eliot's famous play, Murder in the Cathedral, will be performed in Christ Church Cathedral Nov. 11 and 12 and from Nov. 16 to 19.

The story is that of the murder of Thomas, a Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, in Canterbury Cathedral in 1170.

Stage design is by Denise Purdy with Maurice Johnson in charge of lighting. The costumes will be by Biddy Gaddes, designer at the Univeristy of Victoria Yeats Festival.

Presbyterians Avoid Church Unity Drive

MONTREAL (CP) — The Presbyterian Church of Canada is not likely to join the ecumenical movement for greater church unity in the near future, says Rev. Dr. G. Jean Johnston, moderator of the church.

Three years ago a committee on inter-church relations had asked Canadian presbyteries whether they felt the Presbyterian Church should continue a separate existence and the answers indicated only a small majority would agree to discussions with other churches.

"Certainly not a sufficient number of them would do so to ensure even a partial success to such a union venture if attempted," Dr. Johnston said.

"As I see it, that is where our church stands today."

The moderator was addressing a session of the Montreal-Ottawa conference of the Presbyterian Church in Pierrefonds.

He said that if the church is to be relevant to society it must speak to men on the level of ordinary life and not address itself to an "in group" of religiously minded individuals.

U.S. SURVEY SHOWS:

'Ill Feeling' Decreases Between RCs, Protestants

NEW YORK (AP) — Several new reports indicate greatly increased associations and good-will between Roman Catholics and Protestants in the United States.

They include:

—An estimate that nearly 2,000 "dialogue groups" have started between members of the two Christian branches in communities across the country.

A survey finding that "ill-feeling" by Protestants and Roman Catholics toward one another has decreased sharply to a mere fractional amount during the last decade.

—A report showing that Roman Catholic parishes and dioceses have joined interdenominational councils of churches in 15 localities, and are planning to do so in others.

The last report came from Rev. Dr. John B. Ketcham, the National Council of Churches' liaison officer with local and regional councils. He cited various ways in which the new Catholic-Protestant ties are being formed, including:

Joint working groups, exchange of observers, community task forces, common prayer, and the growing number of "living room dialogues" among laymen in many neighborhoods.

The survey, taken by the Gallup poll for The Catholic Digest, showed that six per cent of Roman Catholics felt members of their church had ill feeling toward Protestants, compared with 11 per cent in 1952.

Among Protestants, 19 per cent felt members of their churches still had "ill feeling" toward Catholics, compared with 24 per cent 14 years ago.

"Both groups are moving towards each other," the magazine's November issue said.

Of the growth of Protestant-Catholic groups, Rev. William B. Greenspun, of the Roman Catholic Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, Washington, D.C., said more than 100,000 copies of guides for "living room dialogues" had been sold.

He said at least 600 groups had formed in nine "pilot study" areas. Overall, Rev. David Bowman, of the national council's faith and order department, estimated close to 2,000 of the lay discussion groups have been started.

Priest's Salary Taxable

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of religious orders who have not taken vows of perpetual poverty must pay income tax, the revenue department says in today's Canada Gazette.

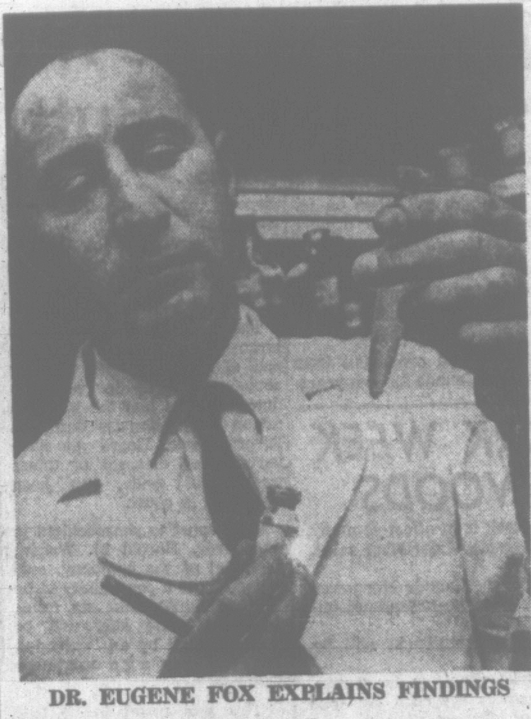
An information bulletin says nuns and other members of religious orders are exempt from paying income tax only when they have taken vows of poverty and receive no earned income.

Otherwise, nuns, priests and brothers who are legally entitled to salaries as teachers, nurses and other occupations, are taxable for the full amount, even if their salaries are turned over to their orders.

The bulletin adds that in such cases, the religious may claim a charitable donation deduction for the difference between their salaries and the value of the board, lodging and living allowances they get from their orders.

This charitable deduction is limited by law to 10 per cent of a person's income for the given year.

The department says that school boards, hospitals and others who employ members of religious orders must make payroll tax deductions in the normal way, unless the religious have taken vows of poverty.



DR. EUGENE FOX EXPLAINS FINDINGS

SAFE, EFFECTIVE IN TESTS

New Vaccine Hailed As Fever Deterrent

NEW YORK (AP) — A new vaccine which may help combat rheumatic fever was reported Friday by University of Chicago scientists at the scientific sessions of the American Heart Association.

The report, presented by ugene N. Fox, said the vaccine is designed to prevent streptococcus infections which frequently lead to rheumatic fever in children or to a kidney ailment, glomer ulonephritis, in both adults and children.

Fox, an associate professor at the La Rabida — University of Chicago Institute — and in the department of microbiology at the university, said it has been established for many years that in the initial stage streptococcus infections may appear as simple fever but severe complications may develop later.

Rheumatic fever frequently leads to heart disease, the report said. It is one of the most serious and widely occurring disabling diseases of childhood. Glomerulonephritis is a frequent result of untreated streptococcus infections. It may lead to loss of kidney function.

HAD MANY TESTS

Fox said that the new vaccine has been found to be safe and effective in extensive tests with mice, rabbits and guinea pigs.

In tests on nearly 50 adults it has led to no serious reactions and has increased the levels of antibodies against streptococcus organisms, he added. Only further testing, particularly with infants, would demonstrate the effectiveness of the vaccine in preventing streptococcus infections under ordinary conditions.

Little Drama As Red Summit Ends

MOSCOW (AP) — A summit conference of nine Soviet bloc countries ended Friday with a vague statement that the Communist leaders had discussed international problems and seen Soviet rockets and military power.

Communist sources said the Viet Nam situation and China's obstruction of aid to North Viet Nam were the main topics discussed.

'MASTER STRATEGIST'

Jesus 'Timed' His Crucifiction And Resurrection

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A master strategist, convinced that he was God's anointed, He astutely planned and carried out that role with a canniness, drive and sagacity that duped the oppressors and made Him the paragon of the world.

That's the picture of Jesus as presented by a Jewish biblical scholar, Dr. Hugh J. Schonfield of London, who has devoted a career to exploring and analysing the life and times of the resolute Rabbi of Galilee.

He was "a master of His destiny," says Dr. Schonfield, summing up his thesis that Jesus purposefully and ingeniously manoeuvred the circumstances and timing of His own crucifixion, and arranged means for His apparent resurrection.

Outwit Opponents

"Nothing could daunt Him," says Dr. Schonfield, who offers his case in a book, The Passover Plot. He says of Jesus' tactics:

"He used the resources of His fertile mind to outgeneral and outwit His opponents."

Although rejecting traditional Christian beliefs that Jesus was divine and that He actually was resurrected from death, Dr. Schonfield maintains that this does not detract from His unique greatness, but spurs truer esteem for Him.

"People have reduced Jesus almost to a mere shadow by thinking of Him in terms of deity, rather than seeing His magnificent human qualities," Dr. Schonfield added in an interview. "I've tried to bring that shadow to life."

A small, lively man, with sparse grey hair and a gentle manner, Dr. Schonfield, 65, has spent 40 years doing research into the New Testament, producing several volumes about it, including his own translation of it from the original Greek.

"When you've imbided of it so deeply, you can't help having some of its message rubbing off on you," he said.

Although devoutly Jewish, he regards Jesus as just as important to Judaism as to Christianity. Asked if he considered himself a follower of Jesus, he said:

"Indeed, I do. All of us ought to work at doing the kind of things Jesus stood for in the world, and wanted done."

As for the immemorial Jewish hope for a messiah, he said Jesus decisively implemented the prophecies of that role.

"If He was not the Messiah, there never will be one," Dr. Schonfield said. "He has done what the messiah should do, in giving us the incentive and inspiration to carry out those ideals which He personified."

He maintains that Jesus did not want to found a new religion, but to revive faith in God in terms of vivid, ennobling accomplishment.

This understanding, he believes, should help overcome Jewish aloofness toward Jesus, and redirect Christianity toward its basic Judaism.

"This is my hope," Dr. Schonfield said.

As he reconstructs the New Testament record, supplemented with historical detail of the revolutionary unrest smouldering in Roman-occupied Israel at the time, the story takes on the atmosphere of a mystery thriller.

Shrewdness

He points up various incidents, emphasizing the subtlety and shrewdness of Jesus in managing His ministry, after the beheading of John the Baptist, so as to govern the timing of His own climactic fate.

Jesus predicted His own arrest, execution and resurrection, Dr. Schonfield noted, adding that the evidence indicates that Jesus then went about carefully and brilliantly laying plans to aid in this eventuality.

Dr. Schonfield cites numerous episodes he says suggest that Jesus made covert arrangements, without telling His apostles, for various secret allies, some of high rank, to take part in the operation.

Dr. Schonfield concludes that Jesus intentionally caused Judas to betray Him, choosing the night before Passover so His body would be on the cross only a few hours, since it would have to be taken down before the Sabbath.

Claimed Body

Still another mysterious friend, the wealthy Joseph of Arimathea, was on hand to claim the body, and take it to a convenient tomb, so it would not be dumped in a common pit with other crucified victims, as was the practice.

Peggy Packard's Varied Program To Demonstrate Unity of Arts

Music, sculpture, painting, the three worlds of Peggy Walton Packard, one of Victoria's most talented artists, will be Bastion Theatre's first Studio Theatre Special — to be presented Sunday, Oct. 30 at 8:30 p.m. at 1322-A Government Street.

Mrs. Packard shows the strong bond between the creative arts. Her widely varied program ranges from Handel and Brahms to Italian opera, Benjamin Britten and folk songs.

Pointing up the fact that a piece of sculpture and a song can express the same thing is her dramatic sculpture, and her renditions of Schubert's Erlkonig.

Also emphasizing the link are Mrs. Packard's portraits of well-known singers Ruth Champion, Adele Lewis, and Billy Dyson in costume for Amahl and the Night Visitors, and her appealing statue of Amahl.

Adding a charming fourth dimension to the program is dancer Wendy Packard with two dances, one of which will be to the popular song More, sung by Mrs. Packard.

Accompanist is Donna Denike.

Bastion's intimate Studio Theatre has a limited seating capacity. Advance reservations may be made by telephoning 382-4112.

Germans Form Third Ethnic Group

QUEBEC CITY (CP) — The regional director of a German-language weekly newspaper published in Winnipeg, said Friday Canadians of German origin form the country's "third ethnic group."

Elizabeth Rechwald of Der Courier was one of 40 journalists representing 22 ethnic groups who were meeting in Quebec City.

She told the gathering that while Canadians of German origin form a major segment of the population, they usually integrated themselves fully to society and were not particularly noticeable as a distinct ethnic group.

Nevertheless, they retained their German culture, she said.

Mrs. Beciwald traced the history of German immigration to Canada, starting with Western settlement by pioneers in the 18th century. Later German immigrants came over as mercenaries in the army of George I and remained to settle in America.

V.I.E.W. is the only Canadian railway car builder west of Ontario and soon will start construction of 75 chip cars for the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, 100 covered hopper cars for the CNR and 50 tank cars for Hooker Chemicals Ltd.

WHAT DID YOU DO IN THE WAR, DADDY?
Odeon Theatre

Here at last is the perfect war — one in which nobody gets killed, everybody gets high and the soldiers are more interested in a well-turned leg than a well-turned battle.

There are plenty of laughs along the way, but the rather weak script makes some of the situations nonsensical rather than witty and the action flags for want of better manipulation.

The Allied invasion of Italy is going strong when Capt. Dick Shawn — an officer who lives by The Book but has never seen armed combat — leads a company of tired U.S. troops into a Sicilian village.

The village is occupied by a strong Italian force but one that is obviously in no mood for fighting. The soldiers are ready and willing to surrender provided they can put on a traditional wine festival first.

From the fraternal point of view, the wine festival is a huge success. Next morning the village is so littered with somnolent bodies it looks as if it had been bombed.

Comes the hour of reckoning.

Warned of their arrival, Lieut. Coburn rallies the hung-over soldiers and bullies them into staging an elaborate hand-to-hand battle.

It looks fine from the air, but the party ends abruptly when German forces return to the village and imprison both Americans and Italians.

Of course, the Germans reckon without the town beauty, Giovanna Ralli, and soon she is working her wiles on their commanding officer.

International Vetoes Vote Bid

A suggestion that both sides agree to a secret ballot among workers at the Harmac pulp mill to decide which union they want was turned down today by one union.

The idea was put forward by the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada to settle the battle for the legal bargaining rights for the 1,000 mill workers near Nanaimo.

But a spokesman for the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers said "I don't see why we should entertain the suggestion."

Pat O'Neal, regional director of organization for the international, said the Canadian union "had two bites at the cherry and failed."

There was a proper procedure for a fresh certification application in the 11th and 12th months of the current contract, which is next May and June.

(The Canadian union said earlier it will do this if all other efforts fail.)

The suggestion for joint agreement on a secret vote was put forward by Orivlle Braaten, an executive of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Mr. O'Neal said Mr. Braaten and his colleagues made "serious errors" in the application for certification so "why should we be expected to accommodate his needs?"

SILLY SUGGESTION

"Mr. Braaten knows better than to make silly suggestions like he's making. There is a proper time and a proper place for votes and if they weren't so sloppy they might have got a vote. They forfeited their right to a vote."

The application for certification, made last May, was rejected by the Labour Relations Board in August because certain requirements such as electin of officers and granting of a charter were not met.

A bid to decertify the international union was rejected earlier this week because the board was not satisfied that the international had ceased to represent the employees.

NO 'MAJORITY'

The Canadian union has repeatedly claimed the support of the majority of the workers at Harmac and Mr. O'Neal was asked if the international felt it had the majority support.

"I think the honest situation is that no one has a majority," said Mr. O'Neal.

"Probably 400 to 500 are sitting in the wings. People will sign petitions but there is a vast difference between that and keeping members in good standing to meet the requirements of the Labour Relations Act."

The Canadian union has said it will seek a meeting with Premier Benett and may also take the labor board's rejection to court.

The Canadian union has 2,000 members in five locals in B.C. including about 400 men at the pulp mill in Crofton.

The international union has 37,000 members in Canada and about 6,000 in B.C.

She Shot Him But She's Not Guilty

SEATTLE (AP) — The mother of a teen-age daughter was acquitted by a jury here Friday in the slaying of an acquaintance of her daughter.

Jurors found that Mrs. Isabelle Hyland, 45, did kill 22-year-old David Brown but voted for acquittal, finding that she was insane at the time the crime was committed.

They also found that Mrs. Hyland was sane at the time of her trial, is not likely to suffer a recurrence of insanity and is a safe person to be at large. She was charged with first-degree murder.

Brown was shot Feb. 16, three days after Mrs. Hyland's daughter, Jeanne, 19, said he had raped her.

The shooting took place in an Auburn trailer park where Brown worked. Mrs. Hyland testified she fired several times at Brown when he shrugged off her accusation that he hurt her daughter.

Escape, Robbery Draws 8 Years For Convict

WINNIPEG (CP)—One of 10 men who broke out of Manitoba's provincial jail at Headingley Sept. 1, was sentenced Thursday to a total of 8 years in prison.

Archibald Demas, 23, of the Red Lake, Ont., Indian reserve, received a four-year term for escaping from the jail and two more years for armed robbery.

He pleaded guilty to the charges in provincial magistrate's court. Magistrate Harold Gyles also imposed two-year concurrent terms for unlawfully confining another person, and breaking and entering and theft.

Dangerous Driver Jailed For One Month

NANAIMO—Truck driver Albert Richard Lafond, 29, of Regina, Friday was sentenced to one month in jail when he appeared in court and pleaded guilty to dangerous driving.

Court was told he had been seen driving through Nanaimo May 23 at speeds estimated to be up to 70 miles-an-hour.

He was also prohibited from driving in Canada for two years.

SHORTER WORK WEEK BEGINS IN WOODS

NANAIMO—The four-day work week is in effect at many mid-Island logging operations as a result of declining sales, but there have been no mass layoffs.

Hector McLean, acting manager of the Canada Manpower Centre here, Friday, said there has been no unseasonal unemployment rise.

Logging and sawmill executives said cutbacks will be extended, to prevent layoffs.

Gordon Naylor, Ladysmith district manager for Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., said 300 loggers are on a four-day week because of a large stockpile of logs.

At Mayo Lumber, where some 50 men were laid off about two weeks ago, the four-day week also is in effect. The B.C. Forest Products mill at Youbou laid off 25 men a week ago, but the company said most were men hired as holiday replacements.

Duncan Wants Space to Grow

In committee Friday, council unanimously approved a motion to engage a team of specialists to examine the issue.

The resolution was in the names of Ald. Hamish Mutter and Homer Alex.

The specialists will be engaged to "make a thorough study and report concerning the desirability and ways and means of extending the present boundaries, with particular reference to the unorganized areas south of the city provided the owner-electors of any such area exhibit favorable interest."

Mayor Jack Dobson said today the specialists will include engineers, professional planners and economists.

He said: "We feel the district is growing. Duncan has all its services while some areas are lacking in this regard.

"A detailed study is in order so the community at large might plan for the future."

Forest Museum Seeks Help On Publicity

DUNCAN — A Nov. 15 seminar will try to put Cowichan Valley Forest Museum on the "right track" regarding publicity.

Invitations to the seminar are being sent to Mike Heppell, chief of the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau, as well as to representatives from the B.C. Travel Bureau, B.C. Automobile Association, and Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

The museum society will consider a suggestion to provide color slides for ferry display.

Chauffeur Granted Immunity

MONTREAL (CP)—A chauffeur employed by a foreign country successfully claimed diplomatic immunity Friday to avoid facing a municipal court trial on a charge of impaired driving.

Judge Pascal Lachapelle freed Henrich Nolden, 40, a chauffeur employed by the Federal Republic of Germany, upholding a motion by defence lawyer Raymond Jette that the municipal court had no jurisdiction in the case.

The judge ruled that the accused was entitled to claim diplomatic immunity under the Vienna convention of April 24, 1963.

Police said Nolden was charged with impaired driving following a traffic accident in downtown Montreal June 22.

Mr. Jette had told the judge that the accused was on duty for the consulate at the time of the accident. Furthermore, the accused is a citizen of West Germany, he said.

Complete Enumeration Proposed

DUNCAN—The NDP club of Duncan at its monthly meeting Thursday discussed the "deplorable state" of the provincial voters' list.

They want a complete enumeration to ensure all people are on the list.

Mrs. Donald Aikenhead, secretary, said out of 600 ballots under Section 80 in the last election only 20 were actually counted in Cowichan Malahat.

She said: "This leaves the rest assuming they were counted when in fact they were not."

Municipal Councillor John Cannon, club president, said "Democracy cannot and should not be run on such slipshod arrangements. The only sure way the present situation can be rectified is to have a complete all-encompassing enumeration.

"As taxpayers everyone should demand of the government of the day that their right to vote be guaranteed them."

PICKET TWO STORES

PORT ALBERNI — Valley housewives, protesting high food prices, Friday began a one-week meat boycott of the two major supermarkets here.

The housewives, banded together in the Consumer Research and Action Group (CRAG), boycotted and picketted the Woodward's food floor and the Plaza Shopping Centre.

Plans are being made for a mass public meeting next Thursday.

Mine Meets Requirements On Buttle Lake Dumping

Western Mines Ltd., said Friday its plan for controlled disposal of mine tailings and treated sewage into Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park on Vancouver Island will present no pollution problem nor do any harm to the lake's fish stocks.

The company, developers of a large copper mine at the south end of the park, has recently come under fire for plans to dump tailings into the lake. An action by the Greater Campbell River Water Board to have permits for disposal of mines wastes set aside, has been dismissed in court.

In a report to shareholders in Vancouver, Harold M. Wright, president of the company, said sewage from a community to be built on Buttle Lake six miles from the mine site, will be totally treated by an "extended aeration" sewage treatment plant.

"This will result in no pollution problem in the lake," the president reported. "We are, of course, desirous of meeting all requirements to ensure no harm will come to the lake water. The treatment plant will operate on a permit from the provincial Pollution Control Board."

INVESTIGATION

The president's report said that in the matter of disposal of mine tailings, investigation has been carried out by the company in co-operation with both federal and provincial fisheries authorities and it is satisfied that controlled disposal of ground rock at the bottom of the lake will not be harmful to fish or present a pollution problem.

The company said it is proceeding with plans within guide lines established by government authorities.

The report also disclosed that the mining operation at the south end of the lake has been re-designed to provide for an open pit as well as the previously-developed underground mine.

The report also said a concentrator and related facilities are scheduled to be operating by the end of October, with first copper concentrates being shipped to Campbell River early in November. The concentrator will be able to handle 750 tons a day.

Dock repairs and erection of concentrate storage and shipping facilities at Campbell River would be ready when production commenced, the report said.

Gondoliers Appeal To World

ROME (AP) — The gondollers of Venice, Italy, have turned to the outside world for help in their fight against the 6,000 motorboats plying their city's famed canals.

After years of protest on their watery home grounds, the men who own the city's remaining 470 gondolas sent a delegation here to appeal to "world opinion."

Five gondoliers met foreign journalists at a press conference and asked that the word be spread abroad.

The gondolirs claim waves from speeding motorboats damage their oar-propelled boats, drench their customers and erode the city's foundations. They say the underpinnings of countless buildings are being loosened by the constant backwash.

They have asked the Venetian government for subsidies to balance the business they lose to the faster and usually cheaper motorboat taxis and buses. And they want regulations banning most motorboats from the Grand Canal, Venice's most famous.

City officials have expressed sympathy but they say the city doesn't have the money for subsidies and that Venice needs a rapid transit system in the modern age.

Giacomo Camera, one of the five gondoliers who journeyed here, said Venice belongs to the world, "and so we appeal to world opinion, to all those who love our city as we do."

Escape Icy Blasts!

The 30,000-ton ship will sail into summer "Down Under" en route to the U.K. through the famed Suez Canal and will return by way of the sunny Caribbean, arriving in Vancouver May 6.

The UTL cruise returns to Canada from Southampton aboard the "Franconia" to Montreal and by rail to points across the country while the Suntours group will stay aboard the Arcadia to Bermuda, Florida or all the way through the Panama to Vancouver.

TOURS ARRANGED

Sun seekers from the prairies or eastern Canada start their vacation aboard the CPR "Canadian" or via CPA or Air Canada arriving in Vancouver in time for sailing on the 22nd.

First ports of call for Arcadia are San Francisco, and Los Angeles before the cruise to Honolulu, Suva and Auckland. Tours are arranged at each port.

By Feb. 13, the ship will be in Sydney, Australia where there is a five-day stop-over for sightseeing and shopping.

At sea again, Arcadia then heads for Manila, Hong Kong, Singapore, Penang, Bombay, Aden, Suez and Cairo. At Suez there is an optional excursion available travelling overland and rejoining the ship in Port Said.

Arcadia arrives in Naples March 20 where passengers take a morning excursion to Pompeii. Next stop is Lisbon and then on to London for two weeks in England in the spring.

Suntours offers an optional tour of Italy, Switzerland and the Netherlands, leaving the ship at Naples on March 20 and arriving in London April 7 to rejoin the Arcadia for sailing April 11. There is also an optional tour of Portugal, Spain and Paris starting from Lisbon March 23, arriving in London April 9.

Flush, Travel-Hungry Europeans

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER
The Washington Post

PARIS — Europe's flush and travel-hungry citizens are roaming across the continent in ever increasing hordes.

Camera-laden Germans, food-finicky French and sun-starved Swedes have become familiar features of nearly every country's landscape. The widening circle of affluence and a frantic search for leisure have turned foreign travel into one of Europe's fastest growth industries.

A new report by the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) pinpoints the phenomenon. Around the world, the number of tourists crossing borders has been rising 12 per cent annually since 1961.

Last year, western European nations alone welcomed 75 million foreigners and most of them were fellow continentals. They spent about $7 billion, not counting the outlays to get them where they were going.

Travel abroad is no longer the exclusive prerogative of the wealthy. The tourist flood pouring into hotels, youth camps and rented rooms is evidence of the widening income base.

The wanderlust is transforming encrusted habits. More and more professional and businessmen here, for example, are taking six weeks of vacation. There's skiing at Christmas, sightseeing at Easter and a summer month at the beach.

It isn't only money that is powering the travel boom. Europeans like to live in big cities and have little taste for the savorless suburbs. And the very big cities that draw tourists — London, Rome and Paris — are increasingly unlivable for their inhabitants. Noise, poor housing, day-long traffic jams and the nervous city pace drive large numbers of urban dwellers abroad to recover.

Spain is still the biggest tourist magnet, with more than 10 million visitors from other European countries last year. France holds the second place, a little under nine million, with Italy third at eight million. But the fastest-growing attractions are Portugal and Greece. Now an overflow is beginning to spill onto the relatively unspoiled beaches of Turkey and Tunisia.

Results for the early months of 1966 show what everybody knows: The boom in foreign visitors continues without pause. Spain shows an increase of 24 per cent, Greece 15 per cent and Italy 12 per cent over comparable periods of last year.

Moreover, the market has only begun to be tapped. In the Netherlands, 16 per cent of the population takes holidays abroad. For Sweden and Germany, it is about 13 per cent and 8 per cent in France and Britain.

Protection Against Clubs

The headgear, known as a pugree, takes a $3 piece of cloth three feet wide and 16 feet long. Officials say modern caps or helmets will cost less than $1 and save $11,200 a year.

The announcement brought protests. Pro - turban groups argue: Turbans make the policeman look taller and more formidable and give him dignity; they are a fine protection against bricks or clubs.

Opponents say the two-pound turbans are too heavy and too hot.

And it seems that unscrupulous people can unwind a turban and use it for clothing.

Russia's Nightmare Alley Are All Its Highways

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—There's no better way to see Russia as it really is than by car. There's no better way to get an ulcer.

The open road is a nightmare alley, with more potential for heartbreak and disaster than a speedway. It is an obstacle course with an infinite variety of hazards.

It is decidedly not for the squeamish.

On the other hand, if Soviet highways are not exactly in the same class as the Trans-Canada Highway or the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway, they at least teach you to be alert.

There is no danger from the euphoric smoothness that tends to lull drivers into drowsiness and crackups on North America's super-highways.

In recent years the Soviet government has permitted a growing—but still fairly insignificant—number of tourists to visit the country by car.

The first obstacles he has to learn to make allowances for are: The number of people on the road and the number of animals on the road.

PERIL FROM POTHOLES

The people aren't particularly fussy which side of the road they walk on and sometimes they choose the middle of the road. At night, as at other times, they wear dark clohes rather than light ones which can readily be seen in the glare of the headlights.

Cows, sheep and goats prefer the highway to the field for getting from one place to another.

The open highway is generally two lanes—three over limited stretches—and its condition varies, though generally it is abominable.

Potholes abound and you have to train yourself to spot the deeper ones from a distance if you want to avoid a broken spring.

Repair work, once undertaken, tends to drag on and on. A Russian who motored from Leningrad to Moscow recently wrote: "For seven years I have been driving along this highway and for seven years the same part of the road has been under repair."

Nine out of 10 vehicles on the highway are trucks or buses. The trucks seem invariably to be either empty or overloaded, hardly the best way to employ state-owned equipment in either case.

BREAKDOWNS FREQUENT

They shake loose nuts, bolts and other assorted pieces of metal, some quite large, that explode against your floor boards like a bomb if flipped up by a tire from the road surface.

Sometimes they simply seize up or cave in at the centre. Derelict trucks are a common feature of Russian roads.

Before setting out on an extended drive, it is essential to check on the location of filling stations along the way. Otherwise you may run out of gasoline before you reach your destination. Filling stations, generally speaking, are few and far between.

Another problem is the lack of adequate signs. In Tula this summer I missed a tiny detour sign—nailed to a tree, on the wrong side of the road—and ended up going at least 25 miles out of my way.

For all the hazards, however, there's still no better way to see Russia than by car. It gives you a chance to see Russia's villages — drab, backward but charming in a rustic way.

And nearly half of this country's inhabitants still live in villages.

Inland Waterway

The Inland Waterway along the Atlantic coast is a system of bays, lakes, rivers and creeks very close to the open Atlantic, dredged to a depth of 12 feet, linked by canals and marked as plainly as the aisles of a well run supermarket, according to Kurt Vonnegut, Jr. He tells of cruising it as a crewman on the Kennedy yacht in the current issue of Venture a magazine on travel.

Last Outpost

The Island of Crete is the last outpost of Europe. It is further south than Gibralter and reaches east almost to Istanbul. The natives, who match the fierce, melodramatic landscape of this epic island are described in a revealing article in the current October-November issue of Venture.

APPEAL OVER $200,000 MARK

Long Step in Right Direction

By GORDON RITCHIE

The community is starting to swing behind the United Appeal campaign.

In the last 24 hours Greater Victorians have contributed nearly $15,000 to help keep the 21 member agencies of the Community Chest in operation.

This raises the total received thus far to just over $200,000—still well short of the campaign objective of $452,000 but a long step in the right direction.

The pace is being set by the men and women of the federal service who Friday night passed their $28,200 goal, led by the armed forces of the Maritime Command.

Then there's the anonymous donor who chipped in $2,800.

And the area dentists who have given more than $50 each.

A lot of community understanding and generosity is needed if the appeal is to erase last year's failure and go over the top in the 10 days remaining.

But chest officials are optimistic. Victoria's still the community with a heart, they say.

Arthur Mayse

Us squares, which is to say me and probably you, have been pummelled a good deal lately on the grounds that we conform slavishly to the established order instead of rebelling in all directions.

This charge is often accompanied by sub-scoldings about what we have done to our children (turned most of 'em into meek little carbon copies of Mom and Dad) and to poor Canada who now lies bleeding.

The result is that the guy who puts the cat out at night and kisses his wife goodbye in the morning tends to go away feeling like a Judas and a slob.

Well, even a cornered conformist will fight back if you poke him hard enough, and I for one am about to rebel against the rebels.

I like kissing my wife, I like the daily treadmill for which I leave her, and come to think of it, I kind of like the cat too. Give me those, plus a chance to vote for the wrong guy and a few days off the chain each year to go fishing, and I'm about as happy as I want to be.

With those sentiments off my chest, let me add that your true non-conformist is born, not made, and that oftener than not, he is a mild, gentle fellow content to let his neighbors work out their own destinies. What he is was bred in his bone, and while he may undertake to sail a bathtub across the Atlantic, he is not going to urge you to do likewise.

I have met a very few of these men and women. They are like mercury, they slip through your fingers. They are unique.

There are, of course, exceptions to the rule of silence. Thoreau was one; he spoke his thoughts in a book clear and cool as a spring-fed pond.

Here in Canada, live and kicking, we have The Toronto Globe and Mail's brilliant columnist Richard Needham, who though he preaches to humans rather than birds, could walk in amity with St. Francis. "Be loyal to yourself," Needham counsels ... which after all, is no more than a rephrasing of Shakespeare's "To thine own self be ture," and the Delphic oracle's terse "Know thyself."

We need a scattering of bona fide non-conformists to leaven the mass, and would be poorer without the occasional Socrates, even though we may destroy him.

Wisdom, though, is a surprisingly scarce commodity, and we must be true to ourselves each in his own way. So if your truth consists of serving a family you love and holding by certain customs, attitudes and beliefs on which your life is built, you have no call to abandon them at anybody's bidding.

Three times in the last few days, I have had my ear bent by worried parents who have suffered the scorn of a son or daughter because they happened to detest the play, "A Taste of Honey." They have been accused of stupidity, failure to keep up, and even racial prejudice.

This is prattle!

You have a right to feel and react as you wish, also to declare yourself, just so you don't attempt to bludgeon others into a like view.

And no more has some young spriggins the right to club you into submission.

We most of us conform, and not least the self-announced non-conformists.

There used to be, and I believe still is, a beat-up little sector of Toronto called Greenwich Village. When I was a good deal younger — and much more certain that I knew all the answers — those casual lairs and their occupants fascinated me. By degrees, however, it dawned on me that the death-mask in House A bore an uncomfortable resemblance to the one on the cracked plaster of House B, and that Hosts A and B, also C, had dipped their ideas out of the same pot.

They were, in fact, conformists of the most slavish sort.

With very few exceptions, today's convinced rebel is tomorrow's square, an observation not original, but ah, how true!

Police Seek Traffickers, Not Users

RCMP and Saanich detectives questioned the editor of the University of Victoria student newspaper for an hour Friday about an article he wrote saying there is widespread use of drugs on campus.

Tim Glover said afterward that police wanted to know the sources of the information in the article. He said police asked him for the names of his informants, for the names of alleged drug pushers and where pot parties had been held.

Mr. Glover said he told police he could not answer their questions without betraying confidences.

NO THREATS

"There was no unpleasantness, no threats in the interview," he said.

Police told him they were "not so interested in the users as the traffickers. They asked me to tell my contacts that they cannot be charged for having used the stuff. They want my informants to assist them in the investigation."

Mr. Glover said he does not think any student will co-operate with the police or accept the police assurance that they have nothing to fear from helping the investigation.

He said, "They feel, as one said to me, that 'the police will find some way to get us.' And none of them want to be called as a witness."

PROBE 'SPOILED'

Police told Mr. Glover that his story this week in the Martlet, the Uvic student newspaper, had "spoiled their investigation." Police for some time have been quietly investigating reports of drug users on campus and told him they were "getting close" to the sources of the drugs when his story appeared Thursday.

Mr. Glover turned over to police a sample of what he believes was marijuana. Police told him that an analysis would show in what country it originated.

$5 Million Goof Face Engineers In Balancing Act

By DESMOND BILL

If they goof, the bridge is liable to go up ... and up ... and up.

And when it finally comes to a grinding stop it might fall apart.

Since the bridge cost $1,000,000 to build in 1922 it would probably cost at least $5,000,000 to replace now.

What makes the balancing act necessary is that the bridge is being re-decked. As the old rotting wooden timbers are removed, the long-established balance that enabled the bridge to lift at the push of a button is displaced.

BRIDGE LIFTED

While repairs are under way the bridge is being raised only twice a day to let boats go through underneath. Each time it is raised elaborate calculations are necessary.

G. W. Stamford, assistant city engineer, explained this morning just what is involved.

The part of the bridge that lifts up has to be in balance with the counter-weights suspended at the city end of the bridge. For years the counterweights, two huge concrete blocks, have been packed with 91,000 pounds of smaller blocks.

If the existing deck were removed, and nothing was added, the bridge would go up with a crash. To compensate for the weight taken off, the contractors have tied down three bulldozers on the bridge and strapped two water tanks, each weighing 10,000 pounds, on it.

Trouble is each day the balance on the bridge shifts. Old deck is taken off and the new steel grid is welded on.

It is not simply enough to calculate the weight added or taken off, and adjust the weight of water in the tanks accordingly. The effect of the weight depends on its position—on the distance it is from the hinge on which the bridge lifts.

CALCULATIONS

Every piece of material added or removed is itemized by a city inspector who carefully makes a note of its position. When the time comes to lift the bridge he starts his calculations.

He gauges the effect of the weight change and then estimates if it can be compensated by letting water out of the tanks, or pouring it in, or whether it will be necessary to move the bulldozers in order to lessen or increase the effect of their weight on the balancing mechanism.

Just to be sure, the calculations of the inspector are always checked by another person.

So far, everything has worked perfectly, according to Mr. Stamford.

And he fervently hopes it will continue that way.

Investment Club Inquiry Within 2 Weeks

—Council To Ratify Decision Monday

A public inquiry into an investment club run by members of the Saanich assessment department will start shortly, it was learned today.

J. Everett Brown, inspector of municipalities and also deputy minister of municipal affairs, said no date has been set.

Preliminary letters have been received from Saanich but it was also necessary to hear council's formal ratification of the request for a probe into all aspects of the situation made earlier this week.

Asked how long it will be before the inquiry starts, Mr. Brown said "not a month. I would think in a couple of weeks time."

LIKE A COURT

The form of the inquiry will be much like a court, "a sort of judicial inquiry."

Almost two years ago, members of the assessment department incorporated a company called Royal Oak Estates Limited to deal in property, bonds and other investments.

Shareholders at the time of incorporation included nine Saanich employees but two of them have since taken jobs elsewhere.

Council said in a statement that while it believes no wrongdoing was intended, the activities of the employees were ill-advised and it was therefore seeking a public inquiry.

The statement also said land transactions undertaken by the company have apparently been restricted to purchase and sale of two single properties in "non-strategic" parts of Saanich.

Air-Bus Link To Island Eyed

Cuts Away All Frills, Says PWA

A cummuter-type air passenger service between Victoria and Vancouver is being considered by Pacific Western Airlines.

"We are anxious to provide this kind of service because we feel it will be of interest to both communities," B. C. Samis, company board chairman, told the Times today from Vancouver.

"But it has to support itself and we will know this in the next few months."

Known as an air-bus service, it cuts away the normal frills of air travel such as reservations and special baggage handling.

A similar service is provided by Pacific Western Airlines with a 95-passenger DC6B aircraft between Calgary and Edmonton.

Mr. Samis said this service has been "most successful" and last week 2,195 passengers were carried.

LIMITED SUBSIDIES

Thursday, Transport Minister Pickersgill announced regional air carriers will be offered limited subsidies and may be allowed to compete with Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines on segments of mainline routes.

And Friday, Pacific Western Airlines announced plans to re-equip its West Coast, Prairie and Northern air routes with modern aircraft worth $22 million.

The company is ordering four turbo-prop airliners, a turbo-prop transport and two jet airliners to go into service in the next three years.

NEW COMMANDER of the naval gate vessel, Porte de la Reine, is Lieutenant Allan J. Rideout, 3810 Jennifer, Victoria. Lieutenant Rideout joined the Royal Navy as an ordinary seaman in 1940 and transferred to the Royal Canadian Navy after the war. The Porte de la Reine is used extensively for training of naval reserve divisions.

FLASH! WATCH FOR 'BOSSY THE BUNTER'

Saanich police report a hit-and-run cow on Roy Road Friday night.

J. P. Veerkamp, 1243 Roy Rd., told officers the cow appeared at the side of his car and bunted his fender, causing an estimated $50 damage.

The animal then made off into the night, apparently uninjured.

CARELESS SMOKER BLAMED

City firemen blamed a careless smoker today for a fire which raged through a Rupert Street rooming house Friday night, causing about $5,000 damage.

A department spokesman said the blaze at 522 Rupert appears to have started with a cigarette butt smouldering in a chesterfield.

Flames charred the front room of the house owned by Peter Woycheshin and caused heavy smoke damage throughout the lower floor. No one was home at the time.

Wind, Rain Whip Island Overnight

A rash of minor accidents today told the story of a night which saw winds topping 50 miles-an-hour and more rain dropped on Victoria.

With no change in sight, Colwood RCMP cautioned drivers using the Malahat to proceed with care.

Rain and fog has cut visibility and the road surface is greasy from several days of almost non-stop rain.

The wind, which blew steadily at 35 miles-an-hour throughout the night, and topped 50 around 10 p.m., was responsible for a couple of electrical faults.

HOUSES DARK

The wind was also blamed for a burned out electrical connector at Alder and Finlayson which blacked out several houses for a while this morning.

Up-Island, fog and rain were responsible for a number of traffic accidents in Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Courtenay. However there were no injuries.

Victoria's weatherman forecasts more of the same Sunday with rain in the morning and partial clearing in the afternoon.

Temperatures will remain the same rising to 50 during the day and dropping to 45 overnight.

TORPEDOES REMOVED FROM SHIP

The 175-foot vessel, with 25 men aboard, was towed to Ranch Point at Nanoose Bay Friday night after navy divers temporarily sealed three gashes in bow with quick-drying cement.

Further repairs will probably be carried out at Nanoose Bay before the 520 is taken to Nanaimo where a more complete examination of her damage can be carried out.

Pay Report Next Week

Conciliation officer Jack Sherlock is writing his report on a contract dispute between the majority of shipyard unions and three west coast yards.

A spokesman for the 17-union Shipyard Joint Conference said conciliation ended Friday and the officer's report is expected next week.

Andy Manson also said when the report is ready there will be a meeting of joint conference delegates who will then take it back to their own unions.

The unions are seeking a 65-cent hourly wage increase, a 35-hour work week and other benefits. Current wages range betwen $2.50 an hour and $3.10 for skilled men.

Woman Injured In Head-On Douglas Crash

Police said a car driven by James Brown, 72, of the same address, was southbound on Douglas and hit a northbound auto driven by John Cummings, 26, of 4170 Oakridge Cres.

William P. Williams, 821 Seven Oaks Road, is in satisfactory condition at Resthaven Hospital, Sidney, after his car went out of control at West Saanich and Lands End roads Friday.

$7.79 Bad Cheque Nets Fine of $75

Bus Franchise Meeting Sought By Three Mayors

A three-man delegation representing lower mainland and Greater Victoria municipalities will seek a meeting with Premier Bennett regarding the future of bus services, it was decided Friday.

Mayor Stuart Gifford of New Westminster said the decision was made at a meeting of lower mainland municipalities concerned mainly with a proposed regional district there.

It was decided that he, Mayor A. W. Toone of Victoria and Mayor William Rathie would approach the premier on the transit issue in the near future, said Mayor Gifford.

Ask The Times

Q. How many of the South Vietnamese people voted in the September elections in that country? H.C.M.

A. South Vietnamese government sources reported some 80.8 per cent of South Vietnam's 5,289,652 eligible voters cast their ballots Sept. 11 for the 108 elective seats in the 117-member parliament. This represents 25 per cent of the country's total population as opposed to the 40 per cent of all Canadians who vote in our federal elections. This low participation rate is explained by the facts that South Vietnamese electoral rolls are restricted and that 2.5 million South Vietnamese were unable to vote because they lived in Viet Cong-controlled territory.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

CENTENNIAL RACE FOR SATURDAY NIGHT SAILORS

It'll Be Sub Tub If You Pull Plug

By TERRY IZZARD

Saturday night sailors will be given a chance to test their skill in a bathmobile next summer.

As many as 50 of the strange vehicles will be battling it out in what could prove to be one of the most unusual centennial events of the year.

Organized by Nanaimo centennial committee, the bathmobile race will be between Nanaimo Harbor and English Bay in Vancouver.

Only qualifications needed by entrants is a bathtub and an outboard motor under six horsepower.

At least one person will be entering in a vintage model of the '30s era. Those were the days when baths were baths.

Others will probably favor the latest '67 models with streamlined fawcetts and quick-release plug-holes.

Said centennial chairman Frank Ney: "We've checked with local boatbuilders and it would be possible to mould a fiberglas bath from a standard tub for about $25.

"Several people have already indicated they'll be taking part. By the end of July, when the race will be held, we hope to have around 50 entries from Vancouver Island and the lower mainland."

The 32-mile race is expected to take seven or eight hours. Each bath has to be accompanied by a more conventional sailing craft.

For those who have no desire to take a bath outside the bath, outriggers will be allowed. Foam padding can also be added.

WORN FOR VOWS THIS AFTERNOON

Exquisite Lace Enhances Gown

Re-embroidered Nottingham lace covered the empire-line bodice of the peau d'elegance gown worn by Carol Gayle White, this afternoon, when she became the bride of Ronald William Mitchell.

The lace was echoed on a floating panel, adding back interest to the floor-length A-line gown which she made herself. The lace sleeves ended in lily points. Her veil misted to floor-length from a lace-covered pillbox headpiece. White feathered carnations and red roses, fashioned into a lovers' knot, formed the bouquet she carried.

Floral arrangements in pink and white tones were at the altar when Rev. C. Fawcett heard marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. White, 1961 Neil Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mitchell, 539 Kelvin Road. Mr. White gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. J. Yeats accompanied the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. K. White who sang "The Wedding Prayer" before the service and "Each for the Other" during the singing of the register.

White lace outlined the empire waistlines of the A-line peau de soie gowns worn by the bride's attendants. The peacock blue outfits were accented with self-fabric pillbox headpieces and bouquets of white feathered carnations and pink chrysanthemums.

TRIO OF ATTENDANTS

Miss Laurel Smith was maid of honor. The bride's sister Miss Mavis White, and her cousin Miss Wanda Heathman were bridesmaids.

Best man was Gil Gresham. Ushering the guests to pews marked with pink and white rosettes were Bob MacIntosh and Rick Robertson, Sooke.

Before continuing on to the reception in the Olde England Inn, the bride and groom visited her grandmother Mrs. M. Parker, at the Royal Jubilee Hospital and presented her with a corsage.

Green reptile accessories complemented the double-breasted suit of off-white basketweave wool which the new Mrs. Mitchell wore for travelling on honeymoon to the mainland. She completed the outfit with a cream feathered hat and a corsage of red roses.

Bazaar and Tea

There will be plenty for shoppers to see and do, Wednesday afternoon when the Esquimalt Golden Age Club holds its annual fall bazaar in the Esquimalt Jubilee Hall, 527 Fraser Street.

Among the attractions will be stalls of home baking, fancywork, aprons, games, white elephants, and penny booth. Tea will also be served.

President Mrs. J. W. Carver will open the event at 2 p.m. It is open to the public.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Married Couple In a Real Pickle

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: After 14 years of marrige, my husband asked me for a divorce. I am 34 and have no training for any kind of job. Besides, I knew that no matter what kind of alimony he'd never keep up with the payments, so I decided that in order to preserve our marriage I'd agree to certain things.

He could have a room of his own and come and go as he pleased. He could bring his friends over any time with no questions asked. I was to keep house and cook for my regular allowance. I agreed to this without realizing the friends he would bring over were women.

Our children are too young to know what is going on now, but they'll be asking questions pretty soon. I have no pride left, but what can I do!

STUCK.

DEAR STUCK: Are you married to this tyrant, or doing a stretch in a penal institution! Get a lawyer, lady, and let him explain what your husband's responsibilities are to you and his family. You didn't preserve your marriage, you PICKLED it.

DEAR ABBY: A lady with whom I was rather well acquainted passed away last Sunday after a lingering illness, during which time her family was aware of the hopelessness of her condition. The day following her death her two teen-age daughters were back in school about their business as usual, never indicating their loss or sorrow in any way.

Their friends and teachers were shocked at this apparent lack of feeling. Am I wrong to feel that they should have stayed at home for the day between their mother's death and her funeral, or have the times changed!

OUT OF IT AT 45.

DEAR OUT: How other people bear their personal problems, react to their losses, or show their grief should not concern you. Save your moral yardstick for measuring your own behavior.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Women at Work

The spotlight will be on working women during the next seven days as Sunday ushers in Business Women's Week. Seen on these pages are six members of local Business and Professional Women's clubs who are typical of the hundreds who are contributing to the economic and community health of our city.

Victoria, Sidney and Oak Bay BPW clubs are combining efforts for the next week's program. Mrs. J. Waterman is in charge of the week's arrangements. Assisting her will be Miss Elizabeth Clement, Mrs. Watson Smith and Miss Muriel Campbell, presidents of the respective clubs.

Six other women's organizations will join BPW members for a breakfast, to be held on Sunday at 9 a.m. in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel. Arranging the details are Miss Rosanne Barrett, Miss Margaret Mahoney and Mrs. Geraldine Simpson. Mrs. Daryl Elford, Oak Bay councillor, will speak on "Preparation for Public Office." Attending the breakfast with members of their respective groups will be Mrs. Elsie Mann, president of the Altrusa Club; Miss Lillian Bartlett, president of the Soroptomists; Mrs. R. A. Fraser, president of the University Women's Club of Victoria; Mrs. R. A. Mercer, president of the Beta Sigma Phi Council; Mrs. H. A. Ray, president of the Association of Women Electors, and Mrs. Elizabeth Ward, president of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club.

Following breakfast, BPW members and their guests will attend a service in the Church of Our Lord. It will be conducted by Bishop D. A. G. Rankilor.

A seminar on "The Challenge of Change in Education" will be a highlight of the week's activities. It will be held at 8 p.m., Tuesday, in the War Amputations Hall and will be open to the public. The panel discussion has been arranged by H. A. Batey of the Institute of Adult Studies and J. H. Dalgleish, director of adult education for the Greater Victoria area. Mrs. H. G. Horth, North Saanich councillor, will be moderator and Mrs. Elizabeth Ward is in charge of the evening's program.

Theme of Business Women's Week is "The Challenge of Change."

Sally Hamill — branch cashier with the Victoria branch of the London Life Insurance Company. Mrs. Hamill has distinguished herself in her chosen field by becoming the first woman branch employee in her company to have the Fellow of Life Management Institute title conferred on her. Mrs. Hamill received this honor in Florida in September, having taken examinations on all phases of life insurance for the past 10 years in order to earn the right to carry the initials FLMI after her name. After a year's study at Victoria College, Mrs. Hamill entered the business field as a stenographer, using much of her spare time to study and increase her knowledge of the business world of which she's a part. She's a Victoria BPW member.

Nell Horth — realtor with Swinerton, Stewart and Clark Limited and councillor for North Saanich. A member of the Sidney and North Saanich BPW Club and regional director for BPW clubs of Vancouver Island and Powell River, Mrs. Horth has shown herself adept in the business world. She began work in the traffic department of the British Columbia Telephone Company, a position she kept for 15 years. She was also supervisor of the duty-free store at Sidney during its first year of operation and has been with her present firm for five years. In addition to regular council duties, Mrs. Horth serves as chairman of the health and welfare committee and as an executive member of the board of management for the Vancouver Island Regional Library. Mrs. Horth also is keenly interested in teen-age work and the care of the elderly. She's a charter member and co-founder of the Peninsula Players and is presently artistic director.

Miss Anne Black — social worker and member of the treatment team at the Royal Jubilee Hospital's Bay Pavilion for psychiatric care. A Victoria BPW member, Miss Black has been with the hospital for the past five years. She began her working career as a teacher, but after serving with the YWCA during the Second World War years, decided to become a social worker. After graduation, Miss Black has led a varied career, serving many years as a social worker with veteran hospitals, teaching at the University of British Columbia and as assistant professor at the Maritime School of Social Work in Halifax, N.S. Overseas assignments have seen her working as supervisor of a welfare team for the Red Cross, based in Japan during the Korean War, and directing a school of social work in the Indian centre of Indore.

VICTORIAN ORDER OF NURSES

Elizabeth Riddell — district director of the Victorian Order of Nurses. A member of the Victoria BPW Club, Miss Riddell's contribution to the community is great. She administers a staff of 12, including one male nurse and a practical nurse. She's a graduate of the Royal Columbian Hospital in New Westminster, studied public health nursing at the University of British Columbia and administration in that field, the latter course being taken at McGill University. Service as a nursing sister with the Canadian Army during the Second World War took her to England, Belgium and Holland. She's held her present appointment for the past 11 years.

Ivy Mickelson — owner and operator of Ivy's Book Shop for the past 2½ years. A warm personality and a readiness to help makes Miss Mickelson's store a haven for all book lovers. A member of the Oak Bay BPW Club, she's spent all her working life surrounded by books. She's worked with Bill Duthie in Vancouver and, for several years, in book stores in London, Eng. Raised here, she came back to Victoria "because I was tired of city life." Many university students and others have learned to love poetry through the poetry readings Miss Mickelson holds on the first Friday of every month.

Kae Fleming — accountant with Nicholson Murdie Machines Limited. Mrs. Fleming is typical of so many women who are now taking their part in the business world. Intent on improving her ability to contribute to her firm, Mrs. Fleming has started to study industrial accounting through night courses at the University of Victoria. "It's a five-year course and involves a lot of homework on my part, but it's something I've set my heart on doing." When completed, the course will make her a Registered Industrial Accountant graduate. She's been with her present company since 1959. Her first position (which lasted 14 years) was at the Royal Jubilee Hospital. Mrs. Fleming also worked three years with the Victoria Press and has held the position of administrator for the hospital at Lillooet. Mrs. Fleming is a member of the Victoria BPW Club.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Accessories are part of the fashion picture . . .

Maybe on your previous visits to Miss Frith's you've been so taken with their smart clothes and ravishing hats that you haven't paid too much attention to the big selection of accessories of all kinds . . . Some of the smartest handbags in town, we'll swear . . . real leather, or amazingly "real"-looking plastics (Some of the latter dead ringers for those expensive Italian purses . . . except they're a fraction of the price) . . . There are washable leather gloves . . . Kidtex gloves, which are nylon disguised as leather . . . regular nylon gloves in myriad shades to match any outfit . . . as for nylon stockings . . . well, Miss Frith's is a real find! . . . They have their own brand . . . Lady Pamela . . . which we used to think terrific value at 75c a pair . . . but which are now selling at just 48c . . . a straight half-dollar if you include the tax . . . They're seamless mesh . . . first quality, in two leg-flattering fall shades . . . We can tell from long personal experience that these stockings are tops . . . well-fitting, dependable, long-wearing . . . And we haven't seen anything to equal the Chatelaine Cantrece hose at $1.50 . . . Every bit as good as the more expensive brands . . . More accessory goodies include pretty umbrellas . . . costume jewellery . . . handsome pure silk scarves, many of them from France and Italy . . . Miss Frith Millinery and Fashions, 1617 Douglas Street, 383-7181.

Now they're making special panty girdles to wear under short skirts.

Shoes with that tender touch . . .

For the woman . . . perhaps of more mature age . . . who needs good foot support . . . or for that matter, anyone who is on her feet a great deal . . . to whom comfort is vitally important but who refuses to settle for anything less than a really smart, dressy shoe . . . the perfect answer is Murray's Heel Hugger shoes, a nice selection of which you'll find at Munday's . . . These shoes are dressy as anyone could wish for . . . they fit your foot like a proverbial glove . . . and give the kind of firm, lightwegiht support that makes walking and standing a breeze! . . . Two different heel heights in these butter-soft leather shoes . . . a lower walking heel, and a just-right illusion which is graceful without being too thin . . . They're all pumps . . . One a black patent or navy calf with faille collar and cut-out trim . . . A similar one in dark brown . . . A smart black suede or kid comes in up to D fitting . . . high-cut for extra good support . . . rosette trimmed . . . There's a lacy, black mesh with elasticized top line which could be worn for the most gala evening . . . A black patent with elasticized faille topline . . . Also in black calf . . . Heel Huggers are really beautifully made shoes, and if you want smartness combined with good support, we recommend you go try on a pair . . . $23.95 . . . at Munday's, 1203 Douglas Street, EV 3-2211.

Elegance from the mysterious East . . .

One thing you can never mistake is a dress or gown by Dynasty of Hong Kong . . . it has an aura of quality and beauty and originality . . . which makes it stand out from the crowd . . . endows you, the wearer, with a feeling of preciousness . . . If you crave this precious feeling in the boudoir, it might be well to start hinting to your dear ones that Wilson's have a shipment of Dynasty dressing gowns which are literally out of this world . . . Only one of a kind . . . and with Christmas in the foreseeable future . . . well, you know the story about the early bird, etc.! . . . There's an elegant gown of gold lame interlaced with mohair . . . trimmed with almond satin . . . A Pavilion pattern brocade . . . gold on ivory . . . with frog fastenings, full graceful skirt . . . A jade silk mandarin coat lined with yellow . . . slit to the knees . . . off-centre buttoning . . . These are all long and flowing, and could be worn as hostess gowns . . . Short housecoats of quilted silky-textured cotton come in gorgeous colors and are finished with handwork the like of which is difficult to believe in this day and age . . . A couple of lovely Dynasty silk dresses . . . one an Imperial blue sheath with jacket . . . size 12 . . . the other a carved-looking jade green mandarin dress, fastening with the daintiest of headed [illegible] . . . size [illegible] . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government Street, 3[illegible]-7177.

Full-length dressing gowns and robes are back in favor, very graceful and feminine.

Two outstanding books for connoisseurs . . .

We're all going to be hearing a lot about Emily Carr this coming week, but perhaps the most significant aspect of this special Carr week is the publication of Emily Carr's journals called "Hundreds and Thousands" . . . after those tiny English candies of her childhood . . . We were shown this book at the Book Nook the other day . . . and it's not only a joy to read, but a mignificent volume to boot . . . containing 12 reproductions in full color of the artist's paintings . . . Regular edition is $10 . . . besides which Book Nook have a couple of the special numbered limited editions of 1,000 . . . boxed and including a folio of 12 hand-mounted prints for framing . . . This costs $30 . . . it's a collector's item, and should be worth a lot of money some day . . . The Book Nook have another magnificent book, too . . . J. F. Lansdown's "Birds of the Northern Forest" . . . 56 exquisite color plates of original paintings along with reproductions of the artist's original sketches . . . and brief texts by bird expert John A. Livingstone . . . printed and bound in Italy . . . Pre-publication price is $17.50 . . . due to advance to $20 after December 1st . . . When you're in the Book Nook, be sure to see their delightful book plates . . . these are really beautiful . . . very inexpensive . . . and would make wonderful small gifts for your book-loving friends . . . The Book Nook, 10 Centennial Square, 386-0813.

Order your "instant hairdo" now . . .

How would you like to have an "instant hairdo" for every party or outing coming up in the weeks ahead? . . . and even more particularly during the busy Christmas season when you've got a thousand and one other things to attend to besides sitting under the dryer? . . . Then invest in a wig or hairpiece at the House of Glamour . . . we guarantee you'll say it's the best money you ever spent! . . . What's more, you should order it now rather than several weeks hence, because it may take a little time to get if you need a special color . . . One of the big advantages in buying your hairpiece at H of G is that they guarantee it unconditionally for a year . . . they style and service it for you . . . they give you an exact blend with your own hair . . . H of G wigs and hairpieces are all human . . . European . . . hair . . . Priced from $99.50 to $350 for wigs, and $47.50 to $105 for hairpieces . . . depending on length, and whether the job in done by hand or by machine . . . in either case, workmanship is of the finest . . . With one of these, you're all set no matter what comes up . . . you can doll up at a moment's notice . . . look beautifully coiffed and groomed . . . If you order between now and November 15, H of G will give you a complimentary hair styling . . . which we consider a pretty nice inducement . . . (Note to Wives: If your husband hates his thinning pate, tell him to contact Danny!) . . . House of Glamour, 658 View Street, 386-6188.

California swimsuit designers forecast the wane of the bikini and the return to favor of one-piece suits next year.

Headquarters for famous-name perfumes . . .

We're writing this misted by a delicious cloud of the most heavenly new fragrance . . . "Y" perfume, by Yves Saint Laurent . . . just about the "frenchiest" perfume we've ever sniffed . . . and a sample of which we were given at Douglas Pharmacy yesterday . . . Naturally anything new in the line of perfume is found first at Douglas . . . who undoubtedly have the largest selection of fine perfumes in town! . . . Not much "Y" around yet, but Douglas Pharmacy have it . . . Something else they've got, too, is new Oil of Olay night cream which is said to be terrific . . . Heavier than the oil proper, it's especially formulated for very dry and "tired" skin (which we suspect is a euphemism for wrinkles) . . . So, if you've got 'em, waste no time in procuring a jar of this new cream . . . it's a no-nonsense product which does the job it promises to do . . . And of course, countless women swear by Oil of Olay . . . which is now also in good supply at Douglas . . . Something else we spotted when we were in is Misslyn nail polish from Italy . . . in the most delectable colors! . . . Its great virtue is that it won't settle and thicken in the bottle as so many polishes do . . . and we have it on good authority that it makes a manicure last twice as long! . . . Douglas Pharmacy, 1672 Douglas Street, EV 5-1541.

See ALL of Europe next time! . . .

We spent a fascinating hour last Sunday looking at color slides taken by dear ones of ours who have just returned from a trip through several East European countries . . . and got an enthusiastic first-hand account of what they had seen, done and experienced . . . As a consequence, we're simply mad to see these countries with our own eyes! . . . Old Budapest with its bridges and spires . . . beautiful, luxurious Vienna . . . Bucharest . . . Sophia . . . Athens . . . the Adriatic resorts . . . Golden Sands on the Black Sea near Varna, Bulgaria . . . and by all accounts, one of the most beautiful resorts extant . . . Over 100 fine hotels, and all the amenities . . . All the eastern European countries, including the Soviet, are encouraging visitors now . . . and if you're planning on Europe next year, you really should take in this part of the continent . . . Paulin's . . . who arranged the entire itinerary for aforementioned dear ones . . . which included a variety of trains, boat trips, sight-seeing tours and car rentals . . . will gladly do likewise for you . . . You can prepay most of your trip right here before leaving Canada . . . Passports, visas, and everything else you need, are attended to by Paulin's . . . all at no extra cost to you, of course . . . # Summer Story Begins At California Show

Times' fashion editor Nona Damaske is in California to view the latest in fashions to be seen during the 16th Annual California Press Week. Here is her latest column on the new styles.

Damaske

LOS ANGELES — How exciting to be in the audience in the Westside Room of the Century Plaza Hotel when accolades were extended to the Timothy Eaton Company, Canada's largest privately owned company. The first international award for retail promotion of California fashions was presented this week by California Fashion Creators to T. Eaton's of Toronto. In Los Angeles to present the award to Eaton's merchandise manager F. C. Brady was, Betsy Talbot Blackwell, editor-in-chief of Mademoiselle Magazine. The plaque was presented at a dinner honoring some 85 fashion editors from the United States and Canada, here to attend the 16th Annual California Press Week. Cohosting the dinner were California Fashion Creators and Century City, Inc., at the Century Plaza Hotel.

After a weekend Palm Springs desert kick-off, where we previewed seven swimwear collections at poolside of the Tennis Club, we returned to Los Angeles and the Century Plaza Hotel. Here, in all its fabulous color and excitement, the California fashion story began to unfold. Suddenly it is summer 1967 and the brilliance of the sun-infused sportswear collections creates an aura of warm excitement.

White Stag has created sportswear for the REAL GIRL . . . a new personality on the fashion scene. She replaces the Mod, the Ye Ye and the Kook. Skirts are short but not too much so . . . there are trousers but they are long and straight. None of the designers are showing bell bottoms for next season.

Tabak of California makes our kind of clothes. They leave the 'swinger' and the matron-with-money to others and design for the lady of taste and imagination who does not have unlimited means. Mr. Tabak is well known and well loved in Los Angeles for his work with the "City of Hope."

Alex Colman, carried by one of our leading department stores, is famous for pants and tops and delightfully fashioned at-home clothes. Pants, tops and shifts come in the same prints . . . one set of accessories will fill the bill. His violet and lime "Flower Patch" shift flirted a double ruffle hemline. A "Pago Paisley" at-home culotte kept up to the moment with a turtle halter neckline.

The outstanding scene from the Campus Casuals collection was "Afrika." Seven costumes in fabric flown in from Nigeria were dark and muted departure from the brilliance of the rest of the show.

The "International Set" collection was commentated by company president Sam Bretzfield who is also president of the California Fashion Creators. His quote "the newspapers say women over 25 are a dying set but International disagrees and designs for them" was greeted with applause. A group of Capistrano cloth shifts in clear pastels were elegantly trimmed in wide bands of Guipure-like cotton lace.

Koret of California, whose invitation to attend the opening of an exciting new plant in Vancouver I had to decline as it co-incided with the California shows, presented "The Lively Art of Spring." Koret makes possible worry-free fun in the sun with its many garments which can be made fresh and bright by washing and drying by machine. An Acapulco topper and trimmers in white were splashed with the gay color of Mexican embroidery. A Koratron Pacifica military jacket, double-buttoned in brass, was worn with a slim suiter skirt.

Each designer seems to be including a group of tattersall checks and Miss Pat presented a particularly clever tattersall section which is priced in the low-medium range. Hacking jacket, belted hipster pants, sport-skirt and classic double-breasted jacket all mix and match with solid tone shells.

With the lights down low and soft music in the background I took a joyous trip . . . Tijuana . . . Peru . . . Rio . . . and Acapulco, I flew with Phil Rose who showed his collection on the screen as it was photographed on location as well as showing the garments on the runway in the Pacific Palisades Room of the Century Plaza Hotel. "Tijuana Brass," a collection of tailored pant suits featuring tattersall checks. Peruvian Holiday . . . zig zag yarn embroidery details on a long caftan, a zip front jacket, a midriff top, all with matching pants in brilliant solid shade cottons.

Having joined the faculty of the University of Victoria this year, Dr. Jean-Paul Vinay and his wife, Dr. Marie-Paule Vinay have no regrets at exchanging Montreal for Victoria as their home. "It's a beautiful place and so much quieter. One can enjoy life more here than in a big city."

NEWCOMERS BRING GIFTS OF KNOWLEDGE

By PAT DUFOUR

Never have I regretted my flimsy grasp of the French language more than this week when I met Dr. Marie-Paule Vinay and her husband, Dr. Jean-Paul Vinay. While her husband is a linguist of note and speaks English as well (if not better) than the students he once taught in England, Mme. Vinay's English is practically as bad as my almost-forgotten French.

With an intellect that has earned her a lawyer's degree from the Sorbonne and doctorates in sociology, psychology and mental hygiene, Mme. Vinay has accomplished more than most of us could hope to achieve, even if, by some miracle, we were blessed with nine lives!

The Vinays and their youngest daughter, Marie-Emmanuelle, arrived in Victoria from Montreal this summer. Dr. Jean-Paul Vinay is on the staff of the University of Victoria's linguistic department, his wife is teaching French at the university and their daughter is a first-year Uvic student.

In Montreal, Mme. Vinay lectured on mental hygiene and psychology at the University of Montreal while her husband taught at McGill University. Radio audiences will remember him through the program, "Speaking French" which he ran for nine years. Others will recognize him as the chief editor of the French-English Canadian Dictionary.

His wife is every bit as distinguished. In addition to her teaching, Mme. Vinay is also the author of 14 books and many texts. One of her books on mental hygiene won her an award from L'Academie Francaise.

She's an authority on caracterologie, a subject comparatively new to North America although she has taught it for 20 years. As a student of the late Rene Le Senne at the Sorbonne, she learned the subject which was originally initiated in the Dutch university at Groningen.

In layman terminology, caracterologie is based on the morphology (structure) of the face, actions, grimaces, posture and other features of a person. Through study of these, much can be learned that will help in understanding the individual.

Mme. Vinay stresses its value in the fields of criminology, marriage and family counselling and practically every sphere in which human relationships are involved.

"In Montreal, I also used to teach it to nurses and doctors in the French-speaking hospitals and many priests have attended my classes."

She warns that it is a science requiring careful application by a team. "Studies by one person would result in a biased summation."

In spite of her full life, Mme. Vinay has still managed to remain a strong pivot around which her husband and four children have enjoyed a full and stimulating home life.

Have her children suffered from her outside interests and absorption in her various professions? Quietly and honestly, Mme. Vinay admits that she's not sure.

"Perhaps, my oldest child may have paid a little." From results, it hardly seems likely. The Vinays' oldest child, Marie-Elizabeth is happily married to a professor of languages and their two sons, Patrick and Francois have each found their niche. One is studying medicine and the other, chemistry.

Persisting, I still wanted to know how Mme. Vinay could find the time and energy to do so much. "I have no social life, I live only for my work and family. Then, too, I think all of our lives are ordered by a plan of God, don't you?"

Members of L'Alliance Francaise de Victoria will have an opportunity to meet this outstanding woman when she acts as guest speaker at the group's next meeting, to be held in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria next Wednesday at 8 p.m. Dr. Vinay will give an illustrated talk on caracterologie.

People, like myself, who are deficient in the French language will be the losers. Dr. Vinay is one of the strongest reasons I know for brushing up on a language I've almost forgotten!

Bridal Token Trims Headpiece Worn by Mary Wilcock Today

Her mother's rhinestone necklace, entwined in her headpiece of organza roses, was "something old" for Alexandra Mary Wilcock today when she became the bride of Patrick Bryan Mills, Harrison Lake, B.C. The dainty headpiece held a bouffant veil fashioned by a family friend, Mrs. E. Davies, and sent from England.

The bride's exquisite short-sleeved gown was of heavy satin backed corded cotton, designed with an empire-line bodice of Guipure lace. Back interest was created with a floating panel. She carried golden roses, white stephanotis and feathered carnations in her bouquet and as a jewelry accent she wore the groom's gift of a pearl necklace.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Wilcock, 2005 Saltair Crescent; Mrs. Katherine Mills, 1915 Fernwood Road, and the late S. W. Mills.

Gold chrysanthemums decorated St. Patrick's Church, Oak Bay, for the noon-time service at which Fr. A. E. Leonard officiated. Mr. Wilcock gave his daughter in marriage. During the signing of the register, Mrs. L. Gill played "Ave Maria."

Mrs. L. L. Chekwech was matron of honor for her sister and Miss Marion Marson was bridesmaid. Both wore A-line gowns of tangerine brocade, styled on empire lines. Their matching headpieces were gold and they carried bouquets of tangerine carnations and ivy.

At the wedding breakfast following in the Ingraham Hotel, the head table was decorated with gold chrysanthemums and centred with a tiered wedding cake, topped with yellow roses. Mr. Chekwech proposed the toast to his sister-in-law.

Travelling from out-of-town for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. John Tymoschuk, Danny and Debbie, Mrs. Harry Otley and Mrs. Alice Blatchford, all of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Burgess of Mayne Island and Mr. and Mrs. L. Plaxton of Powell River.

For travelling on honeymoon to Harrison Lake, where the newlyweds will be making their new home, the bride donned a two-piece dress of green wool, topped with a coat en tone and accented with black accessories.

Safety Plan New Project

Because of the large number of traffic deaths resulting from car drivers unable to see pedestrians in dark clothing, the Victoria Council of Women is instituting a project for traffic safety.

The idea, gained after hearing Sgt. A. Bently of the Victoria City Police Traffic Department speak on "Pedestrian Safety Measures" in June, was discussed at this week's council meeting in the Bay's Douglas Room. Mrs. H. I. MacKenzie demonstrated the effectiveness of white armbands, striped with fluorescent tape which glowed in the dark as a safety measure for pedestrians walking in dark areas or at night.

It was suggested that the council's affiliates and other community-minded organizations be asked to support the project. Further information will be given by contacting Mrs. H. I. MacKenzie, 383-2607, or Mrs. Bert Noel, 384-3485.

Guest speaker was Mrs. T. H. Johns of the Community Chest, who with Bill Patton spoke on the work and origin of the organization. Beginning in 1937 at the YMCA, a board of directors was appointed and local businessmen volunteered their services for a budget committee. A campaign committee was also selected for promotion of the cause.

The organization keeps an "open-door" policy to assist any group able to meet specific requirements. Now 21 agencies benefit from the program.

An annual report is published, she continued. No agency receives more than its requirements; surplus must be returned to the main fund.

Mr. Patton added that 89 per cent of funds collected go to the agencies and the balance is reserved for operating costs. Mrs. Johns stated that the idea of the Community Chest fund is to prevent the overlapping of separate efforts to raise money for a number of facilities.

Reports were given on the recent semi-annual conference of the Provincial Council of Women in Dawson Creek. Mrs. E. L. Johns convened the tea which followed.

Guest Speaker

The assistant director of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Superintendent W. G. Fraser, Ottawa, will speak to the Women's Canadian Club, Tuesday, on "The RCMP and the North."

Superintendent Fraser, who has served for many years in the Arctic, was officer commanding "G" Division, RCMP, from 1959 to 1964, responsible for the policing of the Northwest Territories and Yukon Territory. The speaker also established the new detachment for Newfoundland, officer in charge of the Criminal Investigation Branch.

HAVE BUSY DAY

Monday will be a busy day for His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes. The first event scheduled is the presentation of several Miss Canada rose bushes by the Canadian Nursery Trades Association. The rose was created by Mr. Fred Blakeney and he will make the presentation on behalf of the group.

That afternoon, Mrs. Pearkes will officially open "Artistry in Fashion", a fashion show to be presented in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria by the Women's Committee to the Gallery.

Mrs. Pearkes will then return to Government House to join His Honor in entertaining the dean and members of the Consular Corps of British Columbia at a reception.

From Winnipeg

Mrs. Irene Acheson travelled from Winnipeg recently to attend the wedding of her granddaughter, Maureen Carol Grantham, to Mr. Glenson James Crawford. ## Biased Concepts Cause Failure

A biased public image of the Indian is one of the major reasons why the Indian child will fail in our schools today, Dr. Robert B. Lane told the University Women's Club, Wednesday evening.

Speaking at the meeting in the University of Victoria faculty lounge, the associate professor of anthropology and sociology at Uvic said the popular concept of the Indian is that he is primitive, lazy, dirty and prone to drunkeness. Advertising media have satirized the Indian and his customs.

It's a pattern the Indian child is exposed to all through his school years, he continued.

More than 50 per cent of British Columbia's Indian children are integrated in the province's schools, the speaker pointed out, and he added that more will be attending in the future.

Many of these will fail, not because they are biologically or racially inferior, and not because they are Indians. The root of the problem lies in the ideas and viewpoints of the white people.

We began a battle with the Indian over 100 years ago, he said, and it is still being fought. It's not the Indian, it's you and I. We must begin the overtures of peace, he said, we won the war.

As measures to correct the problem, Dr. Lane urged the group to encourage their children to reject or refuse to buy products ridiculing the Indian — to explore the contents of school textbooks to discover if the Indian is fairly treated in them.

He added that our children should be taught that the Indian made definite contributions to the heritage of Canada, not just excellent handicrafts.

This, he concluded would enable the Indian child to attend school with pride, dignity and ambition.

Mrs. A. Earnshaw introduced the guest speaker and Mrs. A. G. Hobson thanked him.

Miss Margaret Lowe reported on the council meeting of the Canadian Federation of University Women held in Halifax, and Mrs. J. L. Andrews gave a resume of the Alberta-British Columbia regional conference in Kelowna.

Pearl Trim Highlights Lace Train

Seed pearls and crystals starred the full-length train of Chantilly lace that enhanced the traditionally styled gown of sonesta worn by Maureen Carol Grantham for her marriage to Glenson James Crawford. A bridal bow gave back interest and sleeves ended in lily points. Seed pearls shimmered on the organza floral headpiece that held her bouffant tiered veil of silk illusion. She carried red roses in her bouquet and had a culture pearl necklace, gift of the groom.

Flowers were at the altar of St. Luke's Anglican Church when Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff officiated at the service which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Grantham, 3049 Tillicum Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crawford, 1615 Clawthorpe Avenue. Mr. Grantham gave his daughter in marriage. "O Perfect Love" was played during the signing of the register.

Bridal bows accented the watteau trains of the floor-length gowns worn by matron of honor, Mrs. J. F. Williams, and bridesmaids, the Misses Linda Ross and Barbara Grantham, the bride's sister. The coral-toned gowns had bodices fashioned on empire lines. Their tiaras were of seed pearls and crystals and culture pearl pendants, gifts of the bride, were also worn. White carnations we in their cascade bouquets.

Chris Southin was best man and ushers were the groom's brother, Lyle Crawford, and Michael Taylor.

A long-time friend of the bride's family, William T. Smith, proposed the toast to her happiness at the reception, held in the Carlton Club. A three-tier wedding cake centred the head table.

Scottish Visitor

A guest in the Sutherland Road home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Callan is Mr. Callan's sister, Mrs. A. Sinclair. While here, she has been visiting with members of her family. Mrs. Sinclair will return to her home in Largs, Ayrshire, Scotland, next week.

Tongue-Tied Tourists Confident with These

By Penny Saver

I had a long chat the other day with a friend who has just returned from a trip abroad. He says the language barriers got him into the most awkward situations. In France, for example, he said that people were very understanding. Ask a Frenchman, "Parlez-vous l'anglais?", and you receive a warm nod. Reply with, "Oh, good!", and the Frenchman looks at you with astonishment and shakes his head! One such experience that he had resulted in a party with throngs of people. The first patient Frenchman, unable to understand him, called over another who, also unable to follow the broken French, called over a third party and so on until there was a crowd of people surrounding my baffled friend.

I found an item in one shop that may be of help to any traveller in a foreign country. It's a unique dictionary of English translated into French, Spanish, German and Italian. Even if you find pronunciation difficult, you can always look up the phrase you wish and show it to the native of that country.

This is really a set of four leather-bound, pocket-size volumes, one for each of the four languages. They come in a black leather carrying case with a secure closing device. The books are in alternate red and black leather, trimmed with gold.

These are small enough to fit into a handbag or pocket. They're practical and attractive and sell for $9. It's a perfect going-away gift.

Is Commission Worth It?

TORONTO (CP) — A royal commission on the status of women would be a "questionable expenditure;" the president of the national YWCA council said recently.

Mrs. A. W. Ruby, speaking at the council's annual meeting, said the YWCA has not supported a royal commission on women's status because the commission brief reflects opinions of only a few women's organizations.

"In the opinion of your national board and public affairs committee, a royal commission would be a questionable expenditure as a first step into an area which we, wholeheartedly, agree needs immediate investigation," she said.

"We have stated that we would be happy to participate in a co-operative study in depth by government and private organizations."

Did you say you needed a prescription filled in a hurry?

We won't keep you waiting.

We've got graduate pharmacists in over 60 stores waiting for your phone call right this minute. And every one of them is backed up by the the largest stock of pharmaceuticals in the province.

That's what we call a drug store. Someone near who's got what you want when you want it. Someone who cares whether Tommy gets his cough medicine. Or grandpa gets his pills. On time.

If you can't drop in to a Cunninghams store, we'll be glad to send it out with our free delivery service. There's a girl behind the wheel of every car. And boy, does she know what "send it over fast" means.

Next time you need a prescription filled in a hurry, think of Cunninghams first.

WILMOTT—In loving memory of our dearest brother Charles William Wilmott who passed away suddenly Oct. 23, 1964.

What we would give if we could say,
We'll go and see our brother today,
To hear his voice and see his smile,
To sit with him and chat awhile.
But we have lost and God has gained
The best of brothers this world contained.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Let's disregard the problem of the merit or lack thereof in West's two spade overcall. Suffice to say, practically all West players in a recent New Orleans tournament did make that bid. Those who were doubled went down three tricks for a 500-point loss and a rather poor score.

The reason was that when North bid three no-trump, instead of doubling, West would open the ten of spades and South would win the trick with his queen. After that play there was no way to make the contract because West would get into the lead with both red aces and set up his spades before South could collect more than eight tricks.

Julius Rosenblum, the captain of the American bridge team, was one of the few declarers to make three no-trump. He let East's jack of spades hold the first trick. Julius was sure that West would have both red aces and a six-card spade suit for his overcall. His analysis was correct. East could not return a spade and Julius had time to set up both red suits.

Julius was lucky because he was not playing against Dr. Richard Greene. When Dick held the West hand he opened the king of spades, instead of the ten. This left South nowhere to go except down. If South ducked, Dick would still be able to lead another spade. If he won the trick, Dick would get back into the lead with his two red aces.

Dick's lead was sensational but that type of lead is one that experts always consider. It will cost a trick against some card combinations, but it was most effective this time.

THE HOUSE OF 3 R'S

Housing critics have said "a man's home should be his castle—but it's more like a fish bowl." The concept of the home as a place of Refuge, Rest and Renewal has been lost. The problem of visual protection (privacy) and the achievement of the 3 R's has been accomplished in this home and at a cost comparable to the ordinary new housing we know today.

The Dean of the School of Design at Harvard University states that "more attention should be made to the concept of the Mediterranean court house." Heeding his erudite advice, we have used a garden court which serves as a private entrance, gives visual protection and creates a beautiful first impression. Privacy is also accomplished by the elimination of viewing windows facing the street. Unusual lighting of these front rooms has been accomplished with the use of colored luminescent panels in an architecturally-appealing design, focusing fascinating light patterns into the house.

Nowhere in the home are the requirements of Refuge, Rest and Renewal more important than the living room. This private room is located on a separate wing and on a separate level of the house looking into the garden court. The spacious feeling of this room is the result of the view of the garden court through the floor-depth glass panels. The ceiling soars to 12 feet which adds to the room's interest and spaciousness. The house is uniquely designed so that every room has only its own entrance and this makes interference to the purpose of the particular room impossible.

One half level above the living room is the separate dining room. From this elevated room you can enjoy the garden court, the fireplace, the lighting of the colored panels and the special wall effects. Here in this glamorous setting, your friends and relatives will be as fascinated by your beautiful new home as you are.

On the other wing of the house, are three bedrooms, with a choice of one bathroom and double vanity, or an additional two-piece vanity bathroom and sunroom.

The family centre of the house, the kitchen, is also located at the centre of the house—the apex of the two wings. The kitchen has an L-shaped working area and a nook area. Other features such as a carport, basement with roughed-in rumpus room area, complete this extraordinary home.

A house should influence the emotional life of you and your family. It must contribute to a better family life. All great homes have these qualities, but how many of these extraordinary homes can most of us afford? We think we have achieved a good result in our "House of All Seasons" which was featured in the Western Homes magazine, but even this house did not meet the cost requirements. We think the house of the 3 R's approaches the total result.

Tech Designed Homes is doing it's utmost to produce the best built, best designed home for your building dollar. Can we discuss building this House of the 3 R's for you and also show you some of our fine building sites?

. . . RED DEAN

"a nuisance to be endured with such patience as we can command."

In 1959 Dr. Johnson said of his office:

"I have been able to make Canterbury Cathedral a platform for world peace and the world my parish."

In 1956, the "Red Dean" shocked Britons by saying of the Hungarian uprising:

"I am no more able to condone these events than our attack on Egypt. . . . The Soviet intervention in Hungary was invited by the Hungarian government. . . . The Soviet government's action was to prevent the clock bring put back to fascism. . . ."

RULE RED ENGLAND?

Dr. Johnson once prophesied in a lecture that Prince Charles "might well become king of a Communist England."

Dr. Johnson was a member of the Communist - sponsored Peace Council and in 1951 was awarded the Stalin Peace Prize worth 100,000 rubles ($25,200).

He preached his last sermon as dean in April, 1963, and in May that year retired from office to write his autobiography.

A year later he went to China at that country's invitation.

In 1938 after a visit to the Soviet Union, he declared: "It is totally wrong to say these people (Russians) are irreligious if they deny God.

BORN IN MANCHESTER

Dr. Johnson was born Jan. 25, 1874 in Manchester, one of nine children of a businessman.

He was ordained in 1905, the same year he joined what was then the left wing of Britain's socialist movement, the Independent Labor party.

In 1924 he became Dean of Manchester. Seven years later, when the Labor party was in office, Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald appointed him Dean of Canterbury.

Johnson was twice married. His first wife, Mary Taylor, died shortly before he became Dean of Canterbury.

In 1938, at the age of 64, he married a 31-year-old cousin, Neewell Mary Edwards, by whom he had two daughters, Keziah and Karen.

denly erupt as Johnson passed.

The official statement did not say so but this was the technique used by paint-bombers who hit the presidential limousine in Melbourne Friday night.

CAMPUS AVOIDED

Johnson avoided one group —at the University of New South Wales — by switching his route and almost avoided another in the suburb of Hyde Park by speeding up. Here his car was pelted by rotten vegetables, a woman ran at his car and almost fell on it. And hundreds of black balloons purporting to be bombs were released. Biggest demonstration came at the art gallery of New South Wales where the Johnsons made an hour's stop. Here demonstrators ripped down U.S. flags and fought with police and with pro-American factions. Curiously they were absolutely quiet while Johnson's speech—its theme "the great society must not stop at tidewater" —was broadcast from inside the building. Later another outburst came as hundreds booed LBJ as he came off a launch after a trip through Sydney's famous harbor. Both times Johnson ignored the demonstrations.

But unlike his usual behaviour he jumped straight into his car and quickly drove off.

And on his way back to the airport he virtually ignored crowds and failed to stop.

Later tonight — after attendind a 500-guest barbecue near Canberra — he flew to Brisbane, Queensland for another roaring record - breaking welcome.

By now he was back in his car-stopping mood and despite the darkness repeatedly pulled up to shake hands and talk with some of the thousands lining the streets.

He flies to Manila Sunday for the start of the seven-nation Viet Nam conference.

CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST

Is magic possible on the checkerboard? You'll have reason to think so after observing White's clever win at right. White side, moving up the board to move and win in eight moves is the challenge. How's it done?

Look-before-you-leap top: 6-2 may seem profitable but it does not preclude a victory.

Solution: White 31-26, Black 23-14, White 30-25, Black 21-30, White 6-2, Black 30-23, White 2-11-20-27-18-9, Black 13-6, White 1-10, etc.

SOLVE THIS, ONE BY ONE

Discover seven 10-letter words, one by one, containing the letters O N E in that order in the positions indicated. Definitions are included.

ONE.......
From one point of view.
.ONE......
Feeling of solitude.
..ONE.....
Acts of making amends.
....ONE...
Opposite of integrity.
.....ONE..
Writing paper, envelopes, etc.
......ONE.
Pent up.
.......ONE

THINK YOU ARE SMART?

Draw a triangle on a sheet of paper. The base line of the triangle should extend a little on either side.

Get three counters and number them 1, 2, and 3. Place one in the centre of the left-hand line; number 2 in the centre of the right-hand line, and number 3 in the centre of the base line of the triangle. Then try to change the position of the counters 1 and 2 without taking any of the counters off the lines.

Solution: Move counter number 3 to the short piece of line extended on the left. Move counter number 2, down the line to the short line at the right of the base line. Counter number 1 can be moved round the triangle to the position originally held by counter number 2. Counter number 2 can now be moved to the position originally held by counter number 1, and counter number 3 can be returned to its original position.

PSYCHOLOGICAL COIN TRICK

Hold a dime in your right hand, and a friend's hand with your left. Tell your friend that you will place a dime in the palm of his hand three times, and the last time it will disappear. Tell him that each time the dime touches his palm, he must immediately close his hand.

Swing your arm quickly three times from the top of your head to your friend's hand, each time pressing the coin into the palm.

Before you lower your arm the third time, leave the dime on top of your head and press your thumb-nail into the palm of your friend's hand. Then tell him that the coin, which he is still holding in his hand, has disappeared. To his surprise, indeed, it has.

The repeated pressing into the palm, of course, creates the feeling in the hand that the coin is still there.

SIMPLY, COUNT THE COINS?

Surely, you have seen a glass jar filled with pennies or other coins on view in a store window as an attention getter. Observers are invited to guess the number of coins in the jar and the guess that's closest to the actual count wins a prize. No indication is given of the approximate amount in the jar beforehand.

Here's a somewhat similar test involving not one, but rather, four jars, and you are provided with some definite clues as to each jar's contents. These are the clues:

The number of cents in Jar A, plus half the cents in B, C and D, totals 740. Jar B, with one-third of A, C and D, totals 740. Jar C, with one quarter of A, B and D, totals 740. And Jar D, plus one-fifth of A, B and C, totals 740.

Now, the big question is this: How many cents are in each of the four jars?

Answer: Jar A—20; Jar B—380; Jar C—500; Jar D—560.

ARE YOU RIGHT OR LEFT-EYED?

12c PAPUA & NEW GUINEA

An addition to the current Papua-New Guinea set appeared on the 13th, when a 12c value depicting a tropical butterfly in natural colors was released.

While on the subject of Papua; there seems to have been a sudden shortage in the £1 Queen stamp; for a London wholesaler is now asking over $10 for this item, although even the most recent catalogues price it as if it were still current.

★ ★ ★

The English Football Victory stamp is really giving speculators a run for their money. A couple of weeks ago it was stated that this 4d value showed a rise of 50 per cent a couple of days after issue.

Now it is being advertised at anything from four to thirty times its original cost! The latter quotation is of course absurd.

On the 24th the United Nations will issue a 15c value to publicize the "Peace-keeping U.N. Observers." They put postage stamps to some odd uses these days.

★ ★ ★

The final stamp of the new definitive series of New Hebrides will appear early next year. This will be the 5 gold-francs value, and it will feature the White Collared Kingfisher.

Like all other stamps of the Condominium, there will be both French and English versions of this stamp.

Bermuda is withdrawing the current 5d stamp, and a new value, 1sh6d, will be released Nov. 1 which will use the design of obsolete denomination.

A recent issue of the "American Philatelist" has an article on the 50c of the Canadian War issue of 1942. The design was taken from a photo, and shows three men examining blueprints along side of a 25 pounder field gun in a munitions plant.

The article states that one of these men is E. G. Jones, an American now residing in Washington State, who is probably the only living American appearing on a Canadian postage stamp.

STUNT IS OFF THE CUFF

Extend one arm forward. Place an ink eraser or coin atop the cuff on the sleeve. Now, dropping the hand suddenly, attempt to bring it up and over so that you can graps the eraser before the latter falls to the floor. Next time, try it with a sack of erasers or two coins. Increase the number of objects after each successful try. Practice makes perfect, of course, enabling you to develop proper timing for the 'catch.'

James A. Gorst, Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate in the 1965 federal election, was elected president of Esquimalt-Saanich Federal Liberal Association Thursday night.

At the association's annual meeting in the Farmers' Institute Hall, East Saanich Road, Mr. Gorst was also elected delegate to the policy committee of the B.C. Liberal Party.

Elected vice-presidents were Fraser McAlpine, Joe Saville, Len A. Skelton and Bob Derringberg. John Paul became secretary and Mrs. Freda Smith, treasurer.

Mr. Gorst announced that an executive meeting will be held soon to appoint standing committees on resolution and policy, organization and membership, finance, constitution, communications and publicity.

Inner Harbor's Sunken Whaler To Be Scrapped

The controversial old whaler, Green, lying half-submerged in the Inner Harbor, will be towed away for scrap in the next few weeks.

After months of indecision, ship's owner Max Lohbrunner, has finally consented to the ship's removal.

Although the department of transport has authority to remove the rusty old vessel, it has been waiting for Mr. Lohbrunner's consent.

The whaler will be gone but her memory will linger on in the Maritime Museum.

Mr. Lohbrunner has donated the ship's whaling gun and crow's nest to the museum.

Court Places Woman on Bond

Mrs. Gail Miller, 30, of 1808 Cook, had previously admitted slashing a wrist. She said in court today she now recognized her alcoholic problem.

The second woman, scheduled to appear Tuesday, was found to have escaped from Riverview Hospital, Essondale, and was returned there earlier this week.

'All Should Share'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada believes all member countries of the United Nations should share in UN peacekeeping costs, External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons Friday. It was not a view widely shared in the UN but Canada was hoping to gain more support for it in cooperation with Ireland.

'CAN ONLY WAIT'

Slag Heaps Playground For City Folk

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Five Victoria residents—all members of the same family—attended the ill-fated village school at Aberfan, South Wales, which is now buried in a black avalanche of coal slag and slime.

Reginald Powell, 1135 McKenzie; his brother, Edmond Powell, 4481 Markham Road; his sisters, Mrs. H. V. Green, 6509 Old West Saanich Road, and Mrs. G. H. Smith, 4551 Markham Road; and their nephew, Anthony Searle, 988 Cloverdale.

After reading of the disaster in Friday's Times, Mrs. Green sent a cable to her cousin, Mrs. Bronwen Jones, who lives near the two stone buildings comprising the Pantglas junior and senior school.

Her aunt, Mrs. Sarah Ann Boyes, lives in a small stone house across the road from the school, which lies buried under 2,000,000 tons of rain-soaked mine waste.

Nieces, Nephews Attend School

"We have nieces and nephews who were attending the school," Mrs. Green said. "We are anxiously waiting for a reply to our cable, but with so much rescue work going on it could well be delayed."

Mrs. Green recalled that the two school buildings, separated by a playground, stood directly under the black man-made mountains of coal-mining waste.

"We used to play on these waste heaps," she said, "and many families picked coal from them during the depression years."

Her nephew, Ronald Searle, was evacuated to Aberfan from London during the German blitz of 1941 and attended the Pantglas school with some 200 children living in the village.

"I was pretty young at the time," he said, "but I remember the school fairly well. We used to play on the slag heaps, but no one ever talked of danger.

Riddled With Mine Shafts

"Some of the mining waste had been disposed of, but a lot of it remained. Some of the homes in Aberfan are riddled with mine shafts, which caused them to sink, and several families moved out of their homes because they were considered unsafe."

"We are all very distressed by what has happened," he said. "All we can do, it seems, is wait for an answer to my sister's cable."

News of the tragedy cast a pall of gloom over the Victoria Cymrodorion Society, now planning to attend a Welsh Song Festival in Vancouver Nov. 6.

Mrs. Phyllis Hill, president,

DR. HEWLETT JOHNSON

Dean Who'd Rather Be Red Dies After Fall in Home

The retired Church of England clergyman had been in grave condition since he fell in his home last week.

He earned his nickname because of his simultaneous preaching of Christianity and communism during his years as Dean of Canterbury, 1931 to 1963.

For years he was the centre of fierce controversy because he praised the Communist way of lif. He declared under oath in 1954 that he was not a member of the Communist party.

But during the Spanish Civil War he said: "I saw Red and you can call me Red." Thus he began to be called the "Red Dean."

Twice his activities drew public rebukes from the primate of all England, the Archbishop of Canterbury, but Dr. Johnson was unaffected.

Under English law, the Dean of Canterbury could be removed by an act of Parliament.

Late in 1948 Dr. Johnson made a speaking tour of Canada and the United States. The Canadian part of the tour was sponsored by the Toronto Peace Council.

From Canada he went to the U.S., although the previous year the U.S. had refused him a visa because his sponsor was the United States Soviet Friendship Society. He was given a visa in 1948 but in 1950 the U.S. state department announced he had been permanently barred under a 1918 immigration law which forbids U.S. entry to any persons suspected of belonging to any organization advocating forcible overthrow of the government.

The greatest uproar came in 1952 during the Korean War when the Communist Chinese accused the United States of using germ warfare. Dr. Johnson told a press conference:

"With the deepest shame I learn of this appallingly inhuman deed. . . ."

'INSECTS WERE DROPPED'

He had been there and said he believed bishops and missionaries who told him about germ-infested insects dropped by American planes being picked up by Koreans with chopsticks.

A Conservative MP asked the Commons to begin an investigation into the dean's doings. But the then prime minister, Sir Winston Churchill, was against it "because it would invest his activities with an importance they do not possess."

A little later Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, described Dr. Johnson as

UN Condemns Rhodesian Talks

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations General Assembly today condemned talks between Britain and Rhodesia's white-supremacist government on the grounds they jeopardize the rights of Rhodesia's Negro population.

The vote was 86 to 2, with 18 abstentions. Canada abstained, along with the United States, France and several other European countries, on the grounds there had been no new developments in Rhodesia warranting action by the UN Assembly.

Britain also abstained. British Ambassador Lord Caradon said he had no new statement to make about his government's policy.

Britain had undertaken, at last month's Commonwealth conference, to approach the UN Security Council in order to take selective mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia, provided that no settlement was reached with the Smith regime before the end of the year. It was in fulfilment of this undertaking that British representatives have visited Rhodesia.

WAS NO FINAL REPLY

No final reply has been received from the regime which seized independence from Britain last year, Lord Caradon said.

The resolution condemning the British talks with Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime was introduced unexpectedly by Tanzania Friday night in the UN General Assembly's trusteeship committee which voted 73 to 3, with nine abstentions, to pass it on to the Assembly.

LBJ Trims Tour Schedule As Jeer Tempo Picks Up

By JACK BROOKS
Special to The Times

SYDNEY — Anti-Viet Nam demonstrators hurled boos, jeers and black balloons at President Johnson here today in the most hostile demonstrations he has faced during his tour.

Earlier another demonstration was foiled because Australian police got an underground tip-off. In the outbursts at least a score of demonstrators were hauled off to jail by police.

Some children caught up in the scuffling were either injured or so shocked they had to be given medical treatment.

Johnson appeared to ignore the outbursts but his schedule was reduced and he did none of his usual handshaking.

Over-all the demonstrations were simply overwhelmed by the friendly majority. The "friendlies" packed the streets 20 deep on either side of the cleared centre lane. They smothered Johnson and his car in confetti and ticker tape. Huge welcoming signs were draped across streets.

At times the streets were a foot deep in paper. One piece got caught in the air-conditioning unit of the president's car and he had to switch to a reserve one.

Police estimate was that a million people (Sydney's population is 2.3 million) turned out to watch Johnson's half-day trip, the biggest reception in Sydney history.

Officials had said earlier that Sydney would provide the biggest welcome to Johnson and also the most trouble.

They were right on both counts.

Before Johnson's big air force plane touched down Australian officials said they had a tip about organized demonstrations. They said Melbourne Anti-Viet Nam persons had advised compatriots at Sydney to mingle with friendly crowds and sud-

'Don't Call It Act Of God'

Times News Services

ABERFAN, Wales—All hopes seemed gone today that anyone would be found alive under the mine rubble slide that brought tragedy to this town Friday.

Total of bodies recovered by this afternoon was 130. All but four were children.

The village looked like a battlefield as rescue workers continued to dig despite the danger they would be buried if the slide moves again.

Part of the 500-foot-high coal slag heap split under incessant rain Friday sending more than 1,000,000 tons of slag over the school and into the streets.

Few saw the slide as it rumbled down in fog so thick visibility was limited to 10 feet.

Residents were angry today that the slag had not been removed from the village area.

"I defy any coroner to call this an act of God."

Hundreds of other residents joined him in a demand that the pile should be removed.

WILSON AT SCENE

Today parents, many with hands raw from tearing at the debris, lined up at a Baptist chapel as the attempt to identify the bodies continued.

Ambulances rumbled through the crowded town all through the night and morning—but their sirens were not sounded any more. This was taken as an indication the passengers were dead.

"David was clutching the five little children in his arms as if to protect them," said the miner who found them.

Crowds huddled during the night in front of a stone chapel that has been pressed into service as a mortuary.

They looked on silently, except for an occasional stifled sob, when trucks drew up before dawn with scores of coffins for the dead.

MOTHERS HELD BACK

Before reaching the school, the slide had swept over a farmhouse, killing two children and their grandmother.

Anguished mothers had to be forcibly held back as rescue workers probed the debris.

The Queen sent a message to Welsh officials saying she was "shocked and distressed to learn of the terrible disaster."

LBJ VIET NAM VISIT POSSIBLE THURSDAY

U.S. officials would not confirm the reports that arose largely from extra security measures under way.

The most talked of date for a possible visit by President Johnson after the Manila summit conference was next Thursday.

A heavily guarded visit to Da Nang in the northern part of South Viet Nam by South Korean President Chung Hee Park Friday was seen by some observers as "test run" for a Johnson visit.

IN RECOGNITION of a new milestone in industrial safety, employees of the Victoria plant of the Lucky Lager Breweries Ltd. gathered for dinner Friday night at the Colony Motor Inn. From Aug. 21, 1960 to the same date this year the 70 employees marked up 1,033,011 accident-free working hours. Lucky Lager is the first industrial plant in this city to gain such a peak. ## Stores Boycott Snowballs

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Housewives in the United States and Canada have threatened more action against grocery chains as the boycott movement against high food prices continues to snowball.

Housewives in Albuquerque, N.M., and Windsor, Ont., banded Friday into groups modelled on the group of irate Denver women who began a boycott against five supermarket chains Monday.

Members of Housewives Encouraging Lower Food Prices announced Friday that Foodway's 11 stores in Albuquerque will be boycotted starting Monday.

Robert L. Gibson, Jr., president of Libby, McNeil and Libby, said in a Chicago speech: "I find it difficult to reason that the prices in processed food will not continue to rise."

U.S. Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, in Denver stumping for Colorado Democrats, said the women are "exercising the consumer's four basic rights."

He said these are the right to safety, the right to choose, the right to be informed and the right to be heard.

In some areas, the women and the stores showed signs of coming to an armed truce. The Denver Housewives for Lower Food Prices took the local Safeway and Miller's stores off their black list but kept up their campaign against three other large chains, including King Soopers.

In Montreal, Sam Steinberg, president of Steinberg's Ltd., said the supermarket chain would make it possible for women to exchange pinkie stamps for food or merchandise.

Until now, customers saving the stamps could turn them in only for merchandise listed in a catalogue.

Mr. Steinberg said demonstrations in Montreal resulted in a three-per-cent drop in sales.

He said the only way to keep prices down is for the firm to produce the items it retails. He expected this would reduce prices on some products by 25 per cent.

A predicted invasion by 2,000 housewives on a Toronto Loblaws supermarket fizzled Friday night as about 25 women turned up to compare prices. The women represented the Housewives Organization for Modern Economy.

The leader of the Pontiac, Mich., campaign, Mrs. Judy Nantais, 22, was asked about a supermarket executive's statement that today's housewife isn't as good a homemaker as grandmother used to be.

"Malarky," she said. "We budget, we shop carefully, and still we have a tough time of it."

U.S. TREASURY CHIEF

Price Controls Out As Inflation Curb

HOT SPRINGS, Va (AP) — Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler said today the U.S. administration does not intend to impose price controls as a means of combating inflation.

"Because our economy is so robust and resilient, there is not on any horizon we can now foresee the slightest prospect that controls will be required," Fowler told the fall meeting of the Business Council.

But the treasury secretary declined in his prepared speech to rule out increases in income and corporate tax rates if inflationary pressures continue.

"It may well be that, in the months ahead, further restraints will be required in federal fiscal policy," Fowler said.

Some of the 100 leading American businessmen at the meeting said they would favor increases in income and corporate tax rates if it is impossible to curb inflation through cuts in government spending.

Fowler admitted "some very real problems" exist in the U.S. economy—rising prices, "excessive weakness of the housing sector, and inflationary pressures."

MARKET SUMMARIES

Oil Activity Fails to Hold Rally

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A bid for a strong rally on Canada's stock markets lost its momentum this week despite a surging oil market which followed new exploration prospects.

Brokers were disappointed that the market could not maintain the thrust that had seen six consecutive days of higher prices before they dipped Wednesday.

Analysts said the lack of support could show that investors are not convinced that the events which had caused the markets to slide for the last eight months are basically changed.

At Toronto, industrials experienced two sharp days of gains with Monday's advance being the biggest one-day increase in 14 months.

As a result the industrial index moved up 2.49 to 143.22 on the week.

OBSERVERS WORRIED

But the fact the market ran out of steam at mid-week has some observers worried that stocks could experience another prolonged period of decline.

In the main list, Alcan increased 1⅛ to 28⅜ after the company announced an increase in its quarterly dividend to 25 cents from 22½ cents. Inco added 2⅜ at 84½. Chrysler dropped 1⅜ to 36⅝ and CPR ⅝ to 54¼.

Investors gave strong support to western oils and the oil index climbed 7.34 to 111.92 as a result of the upcoming Oct. 25 sales of oil and natural gas in the Rainbow and Zama Lake regions of northwestern Alberta.

Dome jumped 3⅝ to 28¾, Canadian Superior 3½ to 26¼ and Home A 1¼ to 21. Provo advanced 15 cents to 5.15 in speculative oils.

Among major refiners, B-A Oil was up 2¼ to 30⅜ and Imperial Oil ⅛ to 53⅛.

URANIUMS ACTIVE

Uraniums were again featured earlier in the week following an announcement by Rio Algom that it had signed an agreement to supply the United Kingdom with 8,000 short tons of uranium during the 1970's. The stock moved up 2⅝ to 25½.

Denison Mines, which has the world's largest known reserves of the metal, was ahead 3¼ to 61¾.

Lake Dufault, which announced encouraging copper and zinc findings on its Noranda property, advanced 2 to 10⅝. Falconbridge, which controls the company, added 3⅞ at 85.

United Keno Hill, Canada's largest silver mine, plunged 1.50 to 3.10 on news that the company might have to close its Yukon Territory mine.

On index, base metals were up 1.78 to 88.67 and the TSE 2.57 to 137.39. Golds dropped 1.68 to 155.29. Volume was 17,343,000 shares compared with 12,644,000 during the four days last week.

At Montreal, industrials were ahead 3.02 to 143.01, banks 1.63 to 109.02 and papers 1.93 to 107.98. Utilities were off .01 to 125.90. Volume was 4,654,000 shares against 3,127,000 last week.

COMBOS NIPPED

Griff Sparks Tudors

By JEFF PINNIGER

From a production standpoint, Dave Griff was the "gruff" one as Esquimalt Tudor Monarchs squeaked out a 6-5 victory over the Canadian Forces' Combos in Friday's Esquimalt District Hockey League play at the Sports Centre.

ROUGH GAME

A total of 14 penalties were handed out in the rough affair, including a misconduct to Tudor veteran Keith Lawrence.

Lonnie Restall was another standout for Monarchs, getting a goal and an assist. As well, goaltender Ed Hastings was called on to make some great saves, especially in the late stages when Combos turned on the pressure in an effort to get the tying goal.

Next Friday, Combos will play University of Victoria Vikings.

Career Over For Buffle?

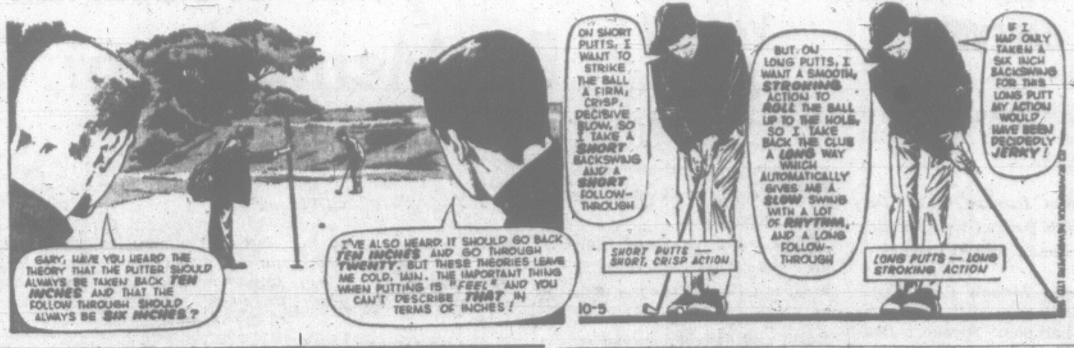
NEW YORK (AP) — Buffle, the King Ranch colt who won two major stakes this year, is suffering from a mysterious illness tentatively identified as brain paralysis and may never race again.

Buffle, who had been a likely starter in the Lawrence Realization at Aqueduct this week, was stricken after a workout Thursday. Dr. Mark Gerrard, a veterinarian who has been observing the horse daily since then, said an operation would be performed "only as a last resort."

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS: Short putt—long putt



GARY, HAVE YOU HEARD THE THEORY THAT THE PUTTER SHOULD ALWAYS BE TAKEN BACK TEN INCHES AND THAT THE FOLLOW THROUGH SHOULD ALWAYS BE SIX INCHES?
I'VE ALSO HEARD IT SHOULD GO BACK TEN INCHES AND GO THROUGH TWENTY. BUT THESE THEORIES LEAVE ME COLD, IAIN. THE IMPORTANT THING WHEN PUTTING IS "FEEL" AND YOU CAN'T DESCRIBE THAT IN TERMS OF INCHES!
ON SHORT PUTTS, I WANT TO STRIKE THE BALL A FIRM, CRISP, DECISIVE BLOW, SO I TAKE A SHORT BACKSWING AND A SHORT FOLLOW-THROUGH
SHORT PUTTS — SHORT, CRISP ACTION
BUT ON LONG PUTTS, I WANT A SMOOTH, STROKING ACTION TO ROLL THE BALL UP TO THE HOLE, SO I TAKE BACK THE CLUB A LONG WAY WHICH AUTOMATICALLY GIVES ME A SLOW SWING WITH A LOT OF RHYTHM, AND A LONG FOLLOW-THROUGH
IF I HAD ONLY TAKEN A SIX INCH BACKSWING FOR THIS LONG PUTT MY ACTION WOULD HAVE BEEN DECIDEDLY JERKY!
LONG PUTTS — LONG STROKING ACTION

Floor Hockey Starting

Floor hockey enthusiasts are interested in forming a city-wide league. They need more teams and players. Persons interested are asked to contact Mike Armstrong (385-0146).

The soccer light shines brightly at Victoria High and Mount View. There's a faint flicker at Mount Douglas, but at Oak Bay and Esquimalt the lights went out Friday.

Victoria's Tyees, the defending champions, and the Views are practically assured of meeting in the Inter-High Soccer League final as a result of timely victories Friday.

The Views are assured of no worse than a tie for second after chalking up a spirited 2-1 decision over Oak Bay. The Bays remained lodged in third place.

Only fourth place Mount Doug, with two games remaining, have a chance to tie Mount View for the second spot in the championship game. The Dougs have games remaining with Oak Bay and last-place Esquimalt.

At Oak Bay, the Views pulled out their victory on the strength of goals by Ted Bailey and Curt Clarke and the solid defensive play of Ron Kilshaw. Bruce Howe scored Oak Bay's goal with only four minutes remaining in the match.

KEY JUNIOR CLASH

'Darkhorse' Flag Carried by Navy

Navy, made up of the majority of players who captured the national Armed Forces championship last weekend, make its first division debut Sunday by facing Red Lions at Bullen Park.

Manager Dennis Gordon and coach Russ Wilson have most of last year's squad back in the fold. Two newcomers give Navy an optimistic outlook on this season's campaign.

FORMER AUSTRALIAN

All eight entries in the second division also taste action. Colony Inn and Gorge play at Upper Topaz, University Norsemen meet Falcons on the Uvic campus, Island Tug plays Sidney at Lower Topaz, and Vic West tackles London Boxing Club at Central Park.

Sunday is also the day of the "big test" for Victoria's entry in the Inter-City Junior League. A Carnarvon Park meeting matches the two remaining undefeated teams in the junior circuit — Victoria and Columbus.

All matches kick off at 2 p.m.

House I captured meet honors with 132 points, 12 more than House IV.

Balance Boosts Bruins Into NHL Prominence

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Boston-Montreal game will be televised on the CBC-TV network (Channels 2 and 6), starting at 5:30 tonight.

Boston Bruins appear to have a much better balanced club than the one that finished fifth in the National Hockey League last season.

The Bruins—with some new faces, a rookie coach and some depth in their veterans—have been picked by many hockey experts to finish in the playoffs this year.

Boston will be seeking its second win in a row when it meets the Canadiens in Montreal tonight in the first game of a home-and-home series.

The other four NHL clubs also play home-and-home encounters this weekend.

New York Rangers visit Toronto Maple Leafs tonight and Chicago Black Hawks visit Detroit Red Wings. The teams change home arenas Sunday.

WON FIRST GAME

Boston shut out Montreal 3-0 in an exhibition game last Sunday and trounced Detroit 6-2 in their season start Wednesday night—the first time the Bruins have won their opening game since 1962.

Gilles Tremblay, who scored 27 goals last season, has a sore shoulder and Dick Duff, who netted 21 goals in the regular season, strained knee ligaments.

LEAFS REPORT INJURIES

The Leafs will be without defenceman Bob Baun, Marcel Pronovost and centres Red Kelly and Bob Pulford. Kelly is nursing a groin injury, Baun a broken thumb and Pronovost and Pulford have knee injuries.

Coach Punch Imlach has called up defencemen Al Arbour and Duane Rupp from Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League.

Meanwhile, the Red Wings also appear to be in defence trouble. Bill Gadsby announced his retirement during the off season and Doug Barkley was forced out of hockey by a serious eye injury last season.

Hull, who scored a record 54 goals and a record total of 97 points last season, netted two goals and picked up an assist against New York Wednesday night.

Mikita, two-time scoring champion, leads the league with four points on two goals and an equal number of assists.

Saanich Nibbles At City Crown . . . Defying Laws

By JIM HUME

It was inevitable.

Those worthy gentlemen who administer Saanich on behalf of the populace revealed their hand this week when they solemnly gave ex-Victoria alderman Millard Mooney permission to continue breaking three municipal bylaws.

Hume

We had thought that such blind-eye views of municipal law were a Victoria exclusive.

* * *

Tents, street closures and other odds and ends of bylaw defiance so frequently receive tacit city council approval that they no longer cause raised eyebrows even among the cynical press corps.

With Saanich now joining the club we wonder how long it will be before Esquimalt and Oak Bay get into the act. Reeves Ray Bryant and Alan Cox rarely miss the opportunity to boost their communities and they both work hard for unanimity among Greater Victoria municipalities.

We look to them to find a citizen openly thumbing his nose at a local statute and then handsomely and publicly tell him to go ahead because they know he's a solid citizen.

* * *

Maybe it was the dull and smoggy day. Maybe it was the singular lack of enthusiasm among the seemingly bored spectators, but any flavor of excitement was conspicuously missing.

Having invited A. H. "Tony" Roberts of the regional planning board to address the group of Chamber of Commerce and city officials ordinary courtesy demanded that the group listen.

* * *

Mr. Roberts had hardly started on his carefully prepared talk when, a few yards from the speaker's platform, a helicopter roared into life.

A few minutes later — after suitable pauses while Mayor A. W. Toone and Ald. Edgelow posed for press and TV photographers — it whirled away over the Inner Harbor.

Mr. Roberts wisely folded his notes and left the platform.

Trying to talk to an already bored group is one thing, trying to compete against a couple of helicopters is something else again.

If Chamber and city officials haven't already done so they might telephone Mr. Roberts and apologize for their bad behavior.

* * *

While on the heliport opening I should pass on to the taxpayers a vignette which might lift their spirits for the weekend.

City treasurer Jim Bramley doesn't take his duties lightly as elected and hired officials know. He worries about income and expenditure as though the money he has in trust were his own.

Tuesday afternoon while helicopters flitted hither and yon over the city the Sudbury II came steaming into the harbor.

It was a picture postcard scene for everyone except the man with the key to the counting house.

"I hope," he said without a smile crinkling his face, "it doesn't want to go under Johnson Street bridge. It costs us $300 every time we have to lift the bridge these days."

Those of us close by carefully turned his face from the harbor waters lest the shock of the Sudbury seeking passage to its berth prove too much.

* * *

For those who have forgotten, Johnson Street bridge is closed to traffic while a job of re-decking is done. It lifts at certain times to let traffic in and out of the Inner Harbor and will lift at other times if it is absolutely essential — at a cost of $300 in work stoppages and the shifting of equipment.

It should provide some consolation to hard-pressed taxpayers to know that Mr. Bramley worries about these things.

He was still fretting as we led him away.

HEES . . . warns industry

TIME HAS COME

Eliminate University Charges

HALIFAX (CP) — George Hees, former Progressive Conservative trade minister, said today the time has come when university education should be made free of charge "to all those capable of passing the entrance requirements."

"In this way we will make sure that all those capable of making a valuable contribution to the future of the nation shall have the opportunity to acquire the necessary education."

Mr. Hees, member of Parliament for Northumberland, was addressing a meeting of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation of the Atlantic Provinces.

He said that "those who direct Canadian industry must learn to consider their share of the building and maintenance costs of our institutions of higher learning as one of their regular costs of production.

"If these costs are not met, industry will not have the research facilities and the scientists which are needed to keep us abreast of our competitors in other countries and we will simply fade out of the picture as an industrial nation."

Parents of children at Sangster Elementary School are pressuring authorities to make traffic conditions safer for their youngsters.

Mrs. Yvonne Cummings, president of the PTA, said the speed limit was raised to 40 mph earlier this year and it presents a hazard in view of the heavy traffic using Metchosin Road. She said "even a pathway would help" on the narrow, busy throughfare.

CHICAGO (AP) — Joe Becker and Joe Amalfitano have been named as coaches for Chicago Cubs by Leo Durocher, manager of the National League baseball club.

Press Freedom Defended By Members of Chamber

Directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce Friday defended the freedom of the press against an attack by the chamber's retail merchants group.

A resolution proposed by the retail merchants group would have urged newspapers to emphasize "restraint" rather than "depression."

At the group's meeting Thursday Roy Denny of Standard Furniture charged newspapers with their headlined "cries of doom" were creating a depression atmosphere which could be bad for business.

When the motion came before the directors it was rejected overwhelmingly—with only one person voting in favor.

"There should be no suggestion of press supression by this body," W. Gordon Holms commented.

In other business the directors approved in principle the takeover by the chamber of the city's industrial research committee.

Ald. Savage put forward the proposal claiming industrial inquiries would be received in greater number and processed more quickly if put in the hands of the chamber staff.

Arthur Mayse

Us squares, which is to say me and probably you, have been pummelled a good deal lately on the grounds that we conform slavishly to the established order instead of rebelling in all directions.

This charge is often accompanied by sub-scoldings about what we have done to our children (turned most of 'em into meek little carbon copies of Mom and Dad) and to poor Canada who now lies bleeding.

The result is that the guy who puts the cat out at night and kisses his wife goodbye in the morning tends to go away feeling like a Judas and a slob.

Well, even a cornered conformist will fight back if you poke him hard enough, and I for one am about to rebel against the rebels.

I like kissing my wife, I like the daily treadmill for which I leave her, and come to think of it, I kind of like the cat too. Give me those, plus a chance to vote for the wrong guy and a few days off the chain each year to go fishing, and I'm about as happy as I want to be.

With those sentiments off my chest, let me add that your true non-conformist is born, not made, and that oftener than not, he is a mild, gentle fellow content to let his neighbors work out their own destinies. What he is was bred in his bone, and while he may undertake to sail a bathtub across the Atlantic, he is not going to urge you to do likewise.

I have met a very few of these men and women. They are like mercury, they slip through your fingers. They are unique.

There are, of course, exceptions to the rule of silence. Thoreau was one; he spoke his thoughts in a book clear and cool as a spring-fed pond.

Here in Canada, live and kicking, we have The Toronto Globe and Mail's brilliant columnist Richard Needham, who though he preaches to humans rather than birds, could walk in amity with St. Francis. "Be loyal to yourself," Needham counsels ... which after all, is no more than a rephrasing of Shakespeare's "To thine own self be ture," and the Delphic oracle's terse "Know thyself."

We need a scattering of bona fide non-conformists to leaven the mass, and would be poorer without the occasional Socrates, even though we may destroy him.

Wisdom, though, is a surprisingly scarce commodity, and we must be true to ourselves each in his own way. So if your truth consists of serving a family you love and holding by certain customs, attitudes and beliefs on which your life is built, you have no call to abandon them at anybody's bidding.

Three times in the last few days, I have had my ear bent by worried parents who have suffered the scorn of a son or daughter because they happened to detest the play, "A Taste of Honey." They have been accused of stupidity, failure to keep up, and even racial prejudice.

This is prattle!

You have a right to feel and react as you wish, also to declare yourself, just so you don't attempt to bludgeon others into a like view.

And no more has some young spriggins the right to club you into submission.

We most of us conform, and not least the self-announced non-conformists.

There used to be, and I believe still is, a beat-up little sector of Toronto called Greenwich Village. When I was a good deal younger — and much more certain that I knew all the answers — those casual lairs and their occupants fascinated me. By degrees, however, it dawned on me that the death-mask in House A bore an uncomfortable resemblance to the one on the cracked plaster of House B, and that Hosts A and B, also C, had dipped their ideas out of the same pot.

They were, in fact, conformists of the most slavish sort.

With very few exceptions, today's convinced rebel is tomorrow's square, an observation not original, but ah, how true!

• • • • • •

Long Step in Right Direction

By GORDON RITCHIE

The community is starting to swing behind the United Appeal campaign.

In the last 24 hours Greater Victorians have contributed nearly $15,000 to help keep the 21 member agencies of the Community Chest in operation.

This raises the total received thus far to just over $200,000—still well short of the campaign objective of $452,000 but a long step in the right direction.

The pace is being set by the men and women of the federal service who Friday night passed their $28,200 goal, led by the armed forces of the Maritime Command.

Then there's the anonymous donor who chipped in $2,800.

And the area dentists who have given more than $50 each.

A lot of community understanding and generosity is needed if the appeal is to erase last year's failure and go over the top in the 10 days remaining.

But chest officials are optimistic. Victoria's still the community with a heart, they say.

Police Seek Traffickers, Not Users

RCMP and Saanich detectives questioned the editor of the University of Victoria student newspaper for an hour Friday about an article he wrote saying there is widespread use of drugs on campus.

Tim Glover said afterward that police wanted to know the sources of the information in the article. He said police asked him for the names of his informants, for the names of alleged drug pushers and where pot parties had been held.

Mr. Glover said he told police he could not answer their questions without betraying confidences.

NO THREATS

"There was no unpleasantness, no threats in the interview," he said.

Police told him they were "not so interested in the users as the traffickers. They asked me to tell my contacts that they cannot be charged for having used the stuff. They want my informants to assist them in the investigation."

Mr. Glover said he does not think any student will cooperate with the police or accept the police assurance that they have nothing to fear from helping the investigation.

He said, "They feel, as one said to me, that 'the police will find some way to get us.' And none of them want to be called as a witness."

PROBE 'SPOILED'

Police told Mr. Glover that his story this week in the Martlet, the Uvic student newspaper, had "spoiled their investigation." Police for some time have been quietly investigating reports of drug users on campus and told him they were "getting close" to the sources of the drugs when his story appeared Thursday.

Mr. Glover turned over to police a sample of what he believes was marijuana. Police told him that an analysis would show in what country it originated.

$5 Million Goof Face Engineers In Balancing Act

By DESMOND BILL

If they goof, the bridge is liable to go up . . . and up . . . and up.

And when it finally comes to a grinding stop it might fall apart.

Since the bridge cost $1,000,000 to build in 1922 it would probably cost at least $5,000,000 to replace now.

What makes the balancing act necessary is that the bridge is being re-decked. As the old rotting wooden timbers are removed, the long-established balance that enabled the bridge to lift at the push of a button is displaced.

BRIDGE LIFTED

While repairs are under way the bridge is being raised only twice a day to let boats go through underneath. Each time it is raised elaborate calculations are necessary.

G. W. Stamford, assistant city engineer, explained this morning just what is involved.

The part of the bridge that lifts up has to be in balance with the counter-weights suspended at the city end of the bridge. For years the counter-weights, two huge concrete blocks, have been packed with 91,000 pounds of smaller blocks.

If the existing deck were removed, and nothing was added, the bridge would go up with a crash. To compensate for the weight taken off, the contractors have tied down three bulldozers on the bridge and strapped two water tanks, each weighing 10,000 pounds, on it.

Trouble is each day the balance on the bridge shifts. Old deck is taken off and the new steel grid is welded on.

It is not simply enough to calculate the weight added or taken off, and adjust the weight of water in the tanks accordingly. The effect of the weight depends on its position—on the distance it is from the hinge on which the bridge lifts.

CALCULATIONS

Every piece of material added or removed is itemized by a city inspector who carefully makes a note of its position. When the time comes to lift the bridge he starts his calculations.

He gauges the effect of the weight change and then estimates if it can be compensated by letting water out of the tanks, or pouring it in, or whether it will be necessary to move the bulldozers in order to lessen or increase the effect of their weight on the balancing mechanism.

Just to be sure, the calculations of the inspector are always checked by another person.

So far, everything has worked perfectly, according to Mr. Stamford.

And he fervently hopes it will continue that way.

Investment Club Inquiry Within 2 Weeks

Council To Ratify Decision Monday

A public inquiry into an investment club run by members of the Saanich assessment department will start shortly, it was learned today.

J. Everett Brown, inspector of municipalities and also deputy minister of municipal affairs, said no date has been set.

Preliminary letters have been received from Saanich but it was also necessary to hear council's formal ratification of the request for a probe into all aspects of the situation made earlier this week.

Asked how long it will be before the inquiry starts, Mr. Brown said "not a month. I would think in a couple of weeks time."

LIKE A COURT

The form of the inquiry will be much like a court, "a sort of judicial inquiry."

Almost two years ago, members of the assessment department incorporated a company called Royal Oak Estates Limited to deal in property, bonds and other investments.

Shareholders at the time of incorporation included nine Saanich employees but two of them have since taken jobs elsewhere.

Council said in a statement that while it believes no wrongdoing was intended, the activities of the employees were ill-advised and it was therefore seeking a public inquiry.

The statement also said land transactions undertaken by the company have apparently been restricted to purchase and sale of two single properties in "non-strategic" parts of Saanich.

TORPEDOES REMOVED FROM SHIP

The 175-foot vessel, with 25 men aboard, was towed to Ranch Point at Nanoose Bay Friday night after navy divers temporarily sealed three gashes in bow with quick-drying cement.

NEW COMMANDER of the naval gate vessel, Porte de la Reine, is Lieutenant Allan J. Rideout, 3810 Jennifer, Victoria. Lieutenant Rideout joined the Royal Navy as an ordinary seaman in 1940 and transferred to the Royal Canadian Navy after the war. The Porte de la Reine is used extensively for training of naval reserve divisions.

Wind, Rain Whip Island Overnight

A rash of minor accidents today told the story of a night which saw winds topping 50 miles-an-hour and more rain dropped on Victoria.

With no change in sight, Colwood RCMP cautioned drivers using the Malahat to proceed with care.

The wind, which blew steadily at 35 miles-an-hour throughout the night, and topped 50 around 10 p.m., was responsible for a couple of electrical faults.

HOUSES DARK

The wind was also blamed for a burned out electrical connector at Alder and Finlayson which blacked out several houses for a while this morning.

Up-Island, fog and rain were responsible for a number of traffic accidents in Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Courtenay. However there were no injuries.

Temperatures will remain the same rising to 50 during the day and dropping to 45 overnight.

FLASH! WATCH FOR 'BOSSY THE BUNTER'

CARELESS SMOKER BLAMED

City firemen blamed a careless smoker today for a fire which raged through a Rupert Street rooming house Friday night, causing about $5,000 damage.

A department spokesman said the blaze at 522 Rupert appears to have started with a cigarette butt smouldering in a chesterfield.

Pay Report Next Week

Conciliation officer Jack Sherlock is writing his report on a contract dispute between the majority of shipyard unions and three west coast yards.

A spokesman for the 17-union Shipyard Joint Conference said conciliation ended Friday and the officer's report is expected next week.

Andy Manson also said when the report is ready there will be a meeting of joint conference delegates who will then take it back to their own unions.

The unions are seeking a 65-cent hourly wage increase, a 35-hour work week and other benefits. Current wages range betwen $2.50 an hour and $3.10 for skilled men.

Woman Injured In Head-On Douglas Crash

Police said a car driven by James Brown, 72, of the same address, was southbound on Douglas and hit a northbound auto driven by John Cummings, 26, of 4170 Oakridge Cres.

William P. Williams, 821 Seven Oaks Road, is in satisfactory condition at Resthaven Hospital, Sidney, after his car went out of control at West Saanich and Lands End roads Friday.

$7.79 Bad Cheque Nets Fine of $75

Air-Bus Link To Island Eyed

Cuts Away All Frills, Says PWA

A cummuter-type air passenger service between Victoria and Vancouver is being considered by Pacific Western Airlines.

"We are anxious to provide this kind of service because we feel it will be of interest to both communities," B. C. Samis, company board chairman, told the Times today from Vancouver.

"But it has to support itself and we will know this in the next few months."

Known as an air-bus service, it cuts away the normal frills of air travel such as reservations and special baggage handling.

Mr. Samis said this service has been "most successful" and last week 2,195 passengers were carried.

LIMITED SUBSIDIES

Thursday, Transport Minister Pickersgill announced regional air carriers will be offered limited subsidies and may be allowed to compete with Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines on segments of main-line routes.

And Friday, Pacific Western Airlines announced plans to re-equip its West Coast, Prairie and Northern air routes with modern aircraft worth $22 million.

The company is ordering four turbo-prop airliners, a turbo-prop transport and two jet airliners to go into service in the next three years.

Bus Franchise Meeting Sought By Three Mayors

A three-man delegation representing lower mainland and Greater Victoria municipalities will seek a meeting with Premier Bennett regarding the future of bus services, it was decided Friday.

Mayor Stuart Gifford of New Westminster said the decision was made at a meeting of lower mainland municipalities concerned mainly with a proposed regional district there.

It was decided that he, Mayor A. W. Toone of Victoria and Mayor William Rathie would approach the premier on the transit issue in the near future, said Mayor Gifford.

Ask The Times

Q. How many of the South Vietnamese people voted in the September elections in that country? H.C.M.

A. South Vietnamese government sources reported some 80.8 per cent of South Vietnam's 5,280,652 eligible voters cast their ballots Sept. 11 for the 108 elective seats in the 117-member parliament. This represents 25 per cent of the country's total population as opposed to the 40 per cent of all Canadians who vote in our federal elections. This low participation rate is explained by the facts that South Vietnamese electoral rolls are restricted and that 2.5 million South Vietnamese were unable to vote because they lived in Viet Cong-controlled territory.

CENTENNIAL RACE FOR SATURDAY NIGHT SAILORS

It'll Be Sub Tub If You Pull Plug

By TERRY IZZARD

Saturday night sailors will be given a chance to test their skill in a bathmobile next summer.

As many as 50 of the strange vehicles will be battling it out in what could prove to be one of the most unusual centennial events of the year.

Organized by Nanaimo centennial committee, the bathmobile race will be between Nanaimo Harbor and English Bay in Vancouver.

Only qualifications needed by entrants is a bathtub and an outboard motor under six horsepower.

At least one person will be entering in a vintage model of the '30s era. Those were the days when baths were baths.

Others will probably favor the latest '67 models with streamlined fawcetts and quick-release plug-holes.

Said centennial chairman Frank Ney: "We've checked with local boatbuilders and it would be possible to mould a fiberglas bath from a standard tub for about $25.

"Several people have already indicated they'll be taking part. By the end of July, when the race will be held, we hope to have around 50 entries from Vancouver Island and the lower mainland."

The 32-mile race is expected to take seven or eight hours. Each bath has to be accompanied by a more conventional sailing craft.

For those who have no desire to take a bath outside the bath, outriggers will be allowed. Foam padding can also be added.

KLEMPA
. . . to Burlington

He will conduct his last service in the Trinity church Sunday at 11 a.m.

Dr. Klempa came to Victoria more than four years ago after completing his theological studies in Scotland and Germany. During his ministry here, the Gorge congregation became self-supporting and was amalgamated with St. Paul's and Erskine churches to form the new Trinity congregation.

He has been secretary of the Student Christian Movement at the University of Victoria; president of the Victoria branch Canadian Bible Society, and moderator of the Victoria presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

With Father William Kennedy, Dr. Klempa organized a student Protestant-Roman Catholic dialogue which has met weekly at the university for two years past.

Dr. Klempa has also been active as a member of Greater Victoria Council of Churches and the Community Welfare Council.

With his wife, two daughters and a son, the minister will leave Victoria for Burlington next week.

"We are going with some regrets," Dr. Klempa said. "We have many good friends here and we have enjoyed our life and work in Victoria.

Arrive Thursday

Brigadier and Mrs. Cecil Bonar from Edmonton will arrive here Thursday to take over the Salvation Army's social service centre at 521 Johnson St. They are replacing Major and Mrs. Arthur Hopkinson who will operate the social service centre in Calgary.

Probation After Death

"Withold not thou thy tender mercies from me, O Lord: let thy lovingkindness and thy truth continually preserve me."

Christmas Story

The Covenant Players of First United Church are now rehearsing for Christmas in The Market Place, to be performed in the church hall Dec. 11-18 and Dec. 21 to 24.

Rehearsals are held every Sunday afternoon and Wednesday evening.

GIANT CHOIR SOUGHT TO CELEBRATE UNION

A mass choir of 1,000 voices is wanted for Victoria's Memorial Arena on Sunday, Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m.

The occasion is a Proclamation Day service marking the 100th anniversary of union between the colonies of Vancouver Island and the British Columbia mainland.

Every choir in Greater Victoria and Central Saanich has been invited to join the mass ensemble, which will be conducted by Frank Tupman and accompanied by an augmented Salvation Army band.

"All people who enjoy choral singing are welcome, whether they belong to a choir or not," says Mr. Tupman.

Modern Version Leans to Yahweh

LONDON (AP) — A new version of the Bible in modern English was published Friday with the unfamiliar word Yahweh replacing the words "the Lord."

Rev. Alexander Jones, Roman Catholic general editor of the work, explained that Yahweh is the word used in original Hebrew texts and means "the incommunicable name of God."

"Nobody knows what the name means," he added. Yahweh was not intended as a proper name but, on the contrary, was meant to indicate in some way that God cannot be named.

The new Bible is the product of a half-century's research by scholars of the Roman Catholic Ecole Biblique in Jerusalem. Nearly 30 translators and theologians spent 10 years converting this research into this English version, the first to be entirely free of such archaisms as "thee" and "thou."

The 23rd psalm becomes:

Yahweh is my shepherd, I
lack nothing.
In meadows of green grass
he lets me lie.
To the waters of repose he
leads me;
There he revives my soul."

Woman's Duty To Home

Professional and business women from Victoria and Vancouver will attend the 11 a.m. service in the historic Church of Our Lord Sunday.

Occasion is the annual worship service of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Bishop Denys Rankilor, primate of the Reformed Episcopal Church in Canada, will speak on The World of Modern Woman.

"Can woman pursue a career and be mother and homemaker as well?" he asks. "Modern woman says she can work from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and then fulfil her family duties from 5 to 8 p.m.

"The question is: Can she? The family is the foundation of every civilization and the family must come first if we are to survive."

CAPTION SLANTED?

A caption under a photo in The Victoria Times of July 11 last will be discussed by Marvin Evans in his Sunday morning address to Victoria Unitarian Church.

The caption stated that "a man, a woman and two Orientals" had stepped off a boat.

"Surely the Orientals were also man or woman," says Mr. Evans. "Without meaning to do so, we sometimes imply color prejudice in the terms we use."

Mr. Evans will address two meetings in the Servetus Hall, 106 Superior Street, at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Church Role For Women To Be Theme

Women in Today's Living Church will be the theme of a one-day conference in First United Church starting at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Chief speaker will be Miss Beatrice Wilson from Toronto, associate secretary of the National Board of Women of the United Church of Canada.

She will address the conference at 2:15 p.m. and speak at a dinner beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Registration at 9:30 a.m. will be followed by a worship service at 10 a.m., conducted by Rev. E. Laura Butler; group discussions starting at 10:30 a.m., lunch at 12:30 p.m. and a question period from 3:15 p.m. to 3:45 p.m.

Murder Tale Prepared For Cathedral

T. S. Eliot's famous play, Murder in the Cathedral, will be performed in Christ Church Cathedral Nov. 11 and 12 and from Nov. 16 to 19.

The story is that of the murder of Thomas a Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, in Canterbury Cathedral in 1170.

Stage design is by Denise Purdy with Maurice Johnson in charge of lighting. The costumes will be by Biddy Gaddes, designer at the Univeristy of Victoria Yeats Festival.

Gerald Webb will appear as Becket and other leading roles will be played by Richard Litt, John Goult, Allan Purdy, John Drean, Kenneth Bostock, Michael Meiklejohn, John Britt and Barry Grimshaw.

SPEAKER in Knox Presbyterian Church, 2964 Richmond Avenue, Sunday at 11 a.m. will be Miss Mavis Hyndman. For the past three years she has been associated with the Korean Christian Church in Japan.

Choral, Organ Concert Slated

A choral, orchestra and organ concert will be given in Christ Church Cathedral Thursday at 8 p.m.

Jean Angers, concert master of Victoria Symphony, will lead an orchestra donated by the Musicians Union, local 247; Richard Proudman will be at the organ and Bryan Gooch of the English department at UBC, will conduct the choir.

The program will include two organ concertos, one by Hadyn for organ and strings; the other by Handel for organ, strings and oboes.

SOLOIST in the Church of Our Lord Sunday at 11 a.m. will be Victoria soprano Jill Paver. She will sing Love Divine All Loves Excelling to a new setting composed by J. Ingram Smith, organist.

Faith in Life

A series of Faith in Life seminars will be held in St. John's Anglican and First United churches on Tuesday and Wednesdays Nov. 1 to 29.

"We will consider the most important thing that we do—Worship."

The evening service will centre around the theme, What's the Right Thing to Do? Says Mr. Watson:

"Never have we faced a more confusing moral picture than today when some would claim that the principles and demands of God must be refashioned, and that the moral standards are to give way to situational decisions.

Presbyterians Avoid Church Unity Drive

MONTREAL (CP) — The Presbyterian Church of Canada is not likely to join the ecumenical movement for greater church unity in the near future, says Rev. Dr. G. Jean Johnston, moderator of the church.

Three years ago a committee on inter-church relations had asked Canadian presbyteries whether they felt the Presbyterian Church should continue a separate existence and the answers indicated only a small majority would agree to discussions with other churches.

"Certainly not a sufficient number of them would do so to ensure even a partial success to such a union venture if attempted," Dr. Johnston said.

"As I see it, that is where our church stands today."

The moderator was addressing a session of the Montreal-Ottawa conference of the Presbyterian Church in Pierrefonds.

He said that if the church is to be relevant to society it must speak to men on the level of ordinary life and not address itself to an "in group" of religiously minded individuals.

George Royal Wins Rich International

Repeats Victory In Championship

TORONTO—Rated perfectly by jockey Milo Valenzuela Vancouver-owned George Royal scored his second straight victory in today's Canadian international championship race over one mile and five furlongs on the turf. Another Canadian entry Orbiter was second with the U.S.-owned Tatao finishing third. The race was worth $57,700.

Field came out of the starting gate well with Greek Jab, a U.S. entry, taking the lead followed by Orbiter and Tatao. George Royal was well back.

Entering the stretch the first time George Royal moved up into fourth place behind Greek Jab, Orbiter and Tatao.

He remained in that position down the backstretch. As Orbiter and Tatao took over from the tiring Greek Jab, George Royal moved into third. Shortly after entering the final turn for home the B.C. horse started his move and won by a head in a driving finish.

George Royal, owned by Ernie Hammond and Bob Hall, both of Vancouver, was timed in 2.42.2. George Royal paid $3.00, $2.30 and $2.10. Orbiter paid $2.70 and $2.30 while Tatao paid $2.60.

'CAN ONLY WAIT'

Slag Heaps Playground For City Folk

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Five Victoria residents—all members of the same family—attended the ill-fated village school at Aberfan, South Wales, which is now buried in a black avalanche of coal slag and slime.

Reginald Powell, 1135 McKenzie; his brother, Edmond Powell, 4481 Markham Road; his sisters, Mrs. H. V. Green, 6509 Old West Saanich Road, and Mrs. G. H. Smith, 4551 Markham Road; and their nephew, Anthony Searle, 988 Cloverdale.

After reading of the disaster in Friday's Times, Mrs. Green sent a cable to her cousin, Mrs. Bronwen Jones, who lives near the two stone buildings comprising the Pantglas junior and senior school.

Her aunt, Mrs. Sarah Ann Boyes, lives in a small stone house across the road from the school, which lies buried under 2,000,000 tons of rain-soaked mine waste.

Nieces, Nephews Attend School

"We have nieces and nephews who were attending the school," Mrs. Green said. "We are anxiously waiting for a reply to our cable, but with so much rescue work going on it could well be delayed."

Mrs. Green recalled that the two school buildings, separated by a playground, stood directly under the black man-made mountains of coal-mining waste.

"We used to play on these waste heaps," she said, "and many families picked coal from them during the depression years."

Her nephew, Ronald Searle, was evacuated to Aberfan from London during the German blitz of 1941 and attended the Pantglas school with some 200 children living in the village.

"I was pretty young at the time," he said, "but I remember the school fairly well. We used to play on the slag heaps, but no one ever talked of danger.

Riddled With Mine Shafts

"Some of the mining waste had been disposed of, but a lot of it remained. Some of the homes in Aberfan are riddled with mine shafts, which caused them to sink, and several families moved out of their homes because they were considered unsafe."

"We are all very distressed by what has happened," he said. "All we can do, it seems, is wait for an answer to my sister's cable."

News of the tragedy cast a pall of gloom over the Victoria Cymrodorion Society, now planning to attend a Welsh Song Festival in Vancouver Nov. 6.

Several of the society's members come from towns located within a few miles of the ill-fated village.

Mrs. Phyllis Hill, president, comes from Cilfynyd, about 15 miles from Aberfan and has cousins at Merthyr Tydvil and Dowlais, about five miles north of Aberfan.

"I was back there for a visit two years ago," she said "and travelled through the Merthyr Valley by train. I remember remarking on the little grass-covered hills we saw along the route. Not having been there since childhood, I didn't know these hills were really waste heaps with grass growing over them."

Mrs. June Richardson, secretary of the Cymrodorion Society, came to Victoria from Cardiganshire, South Wales, about five years ago. Her grandfather, Thomas Lewis, once worked in the coal mines at Aberfan.

"He told me he started work in the mines when he was 14," Mrs. Richardson said.

"I used to visit the Merthyr Tydvil area and I remember the village of Aberfan. The slack heaps were very depressing — great black mountains of coal waste — but no one ever seemed to anticipate danger from them."

4 CHILDREN PERISH

NORTH BAY (CP) Four children died today in an early-morning fire that destroyed the single-storey frame house of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ringuette.

Ronald, six, Mary, five, Michael, four and Janette, six months, are believed to have suffocated in the blaze.

VICTORY FOR AFRO-ASIANS

UN Condemns Rhodesian Talks

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations General Assembly today condemned talks between Britain and Rhodesia's white-supremacist government on the grounds they jeopardize the rights of Rhodesia's Negro population.

The vote was 86 to 2, with 18 abstentions. Canada abstained, along with the United States, France and several other European countries, on the grounds there had been no new developments in Rhodesia warranting action by the UN Assembly.

Britain also abstained. British Ambassador Lord Caradon said he had no new statement to make about his government's policy.

Britain had undertaken, at last month's Commonwealth conference, to approach the UN Security Council in order to take selective mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia, provided that no settlement was reached with the Smith regime before the end of the year. It was in fulfilment of this undertaking that British representatives have visited Rhodesia.

No final reply has been received from the regime which seized independence from Britain last year, Lord Caradon said.

The resolution condemning the British talks with Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime was introduced unexpectedly by Tanzania Friday night in the UN General Assembly's trusteeship committee which voted 73 to 3, with nine abstentions, to pass it on to the Assembly.

LBJ Trims Tour Schedule As Jeer Tempo Picks Up

By JACK BROOKS
Special to The Times

SYDNEY — Anti-Viet Nam demonstrators hurled boos, jeers and black balloons at President Johnson here today in the most hostile demonstrations he has faced during his tour.

Earlier another demonstration was foiled because Australian police got an underground tip-off. In the outbursts at least a score of demonstrators were hauled off to jail by police.

Some children caught up in the scuffling were either injured or so shocked they had to be given medical treatment.

Johnson appeared to ignore the outbursts but his schedule was reduced and he did none of his usual handshaking.

Over-all the demonstrations were simply overwhelmed by the friendly majority. The "friendlies" packed the streets 20 deep on either side of the cleared centre lane. They smothered Johnson and his car in confetti and ticker tape. Huge welcoming signs were draped across streets.

At times the streets were a foot deep in paper. One piece got caught in the air-conditioning unit of the president's car and he had to switch to a reserve one.

Police estimate was that a million people (Sydney's population is 2.3 million) turned out to watch Johnson's half-day trip, the biggest reception in Sydney history.

Officials had said earlier that Sydney would provide the biggest welcome to Johnson and also the most trouble.

They were right on both counts.

Before Johnson's big air force plane touched down Australian officials said they had a tip about organized demonstrations. They said Melbourne Anti-Viet Nam persons had advised compatriots at Sydney to mingle with friendly crowds and sud-

DR. HEWLETT JOHNSON

Dean Who'd Rather Be Red Dies After Fall in Home

The retired Church of England clergyman had been in grave condition since he fell in his home last week.

He earned his nickname because of his simultaneous preaching of Christianity and communism during his years as Dean of Canterbury, 1931 to 1963.

For years he was the centre of fierce controversy because he praised the Communist way of life. He declared under oath in 1954 that he was not a member of the Communist party.

But during the Spanish Civil War he said: "I saw Red and you can call me Red." Thus he began to be called the "Red Dean."

Twice his activities drew public rebukes from the primate of all England, the Archbishop of Canterbury, but Dr. Johnson was unaffected.

Under English law, the Dean of Canterbury could be removed by an act of Parliament.

Late in 1948 Dr. Johnson made a speaking tour of Canada and the United States. The Canadian part of the tour was sponsored by the Toronto Peace Council.

From Canada he went to the U.S., although the previous year the U.S. had refused him a visa because his sponsor was the United States Soviet Friendship Society. He was given a visa in 1948 but in 1950 the U.S. state department announced he had been permanently barred under a 1918 immigration law which forbids U.S. entry to any persons suspected of belonging to any organization advocating forcible overthrow of the government.

The greatest uproar came in 1952 during the Korean War when the Communist Chinese accused the United States of using germ warfare. Dr. Johnson told a press conference:

"With the deepest shame I learn of this appallingly inhuman deed. . . ."

He had been there and said he believed bishops and missionaries who told him about germ-infested insects dropped by American planes being picked up by Koreans with chopsticks.

A Conservative MP asked the Commons to begin an investigation into the dean's doings. But the then prime minister, Sir Winston Churchill, was against it "because it would invest his activities with an importance they do not possess."

A little later Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, described Dr. Johnson as

VILLAGERS ALERTED

Slag Slide Moving Again

ABERFAN, Wales (CP) — The coal slag heap which killed possibly 220 persons here Friday began moving again in heavy rain tonight and authorities immediately warned the population to be on alert.

Rescue workers evacuated a medical centre in this South Wales mining village as the sludge slid forward again.

The medical centre was in the ruins of a school crushed Friday by the black avalanche after it broke loose from an overhanging mountain of coal waste.

The head of the fire brigade taking part in the rescue operations said that the new move of the slag heap caused a certain amount of risk to the rescuers, but that this had to be taken.

HOLDS MEETING

Cledwyn Hughes, the minister for Welsh affairs, held a meeting at the town hall of nearby Merthyr Tydfil to decide whether or not the whole population of Aberfan should be evacuated.

Mining engineers taking part in the discussion thought that this was not necessary for the moment. But it might become necessary if the flow of slag, swelled by the rain, increased considerably in volume.

Total of bodies recovered to date was 130. All but four were children. There was almost no hope of finding any survivors.

Part of the 500-foot-high coal slag heap split under incessant rain Friday sending more than 1,000,000 tons of slag over the school and into the streets.

Few saw the slide as it rumbled down in fog so thick visibility was limited to 10 feet.

Residents were angry today that the slag had not been removed from the village area.

"I defy any coroner to call this an act of God."

Hundreds of other residents joined him in a demand that the pile should be far from town.

Today parents, many with hands raw from tearing at the debris, lined up at a Baptist chapel as the attempt to identify the bodies continued.

Ambulances rumbled through the crowded town all through the night and morning—but their sirens were not sounded any more. This was taken as an indication the passengers were dead.

"David was clutching the five little children in his arms as if to protect them," said the miner who found them.

Crowds huddled during the night in front of a stone chapel that has been pressed into service as a mortuary.

MOTHERS HELD BACK

Before reaching the school, the slide had swept over a farmhouse, killing two children and their grandmother.

Anguished mothers had to be forcibly held back as rescue workers probed the debris.

The Queen sent a message to Welsh officials saying she was "shocked and distressed to learn of the terrible disaster."

LBJ VIET NAM VISIT POSSIBLE THURSDAY

U.S. officials would not confirm the reports that arose largely from extra security measures under way.

The most talked of date for a possible visit by President Johnson after the Manila summit conference was next Thursday.

Bombing Pause Not on Agenda

MANILA (CP)—A high-ranking Philippine official said today the question of a bombing pause in North Viet Nam will not be discussed at the Manila summit conference, contrary to an earlier announcement by President Ferdinand Marcos.

The statement was made following individual consultations between Foreign Secretary Narciso Ramos and Foreign Ministers Lee Tong of South Korea, Tran Van Do of South Viet Nam, Paul Hasluck of Australia and U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk.

Suspending air strikes against North Viet Nam "is only for the United States to decide," the official said.

The statement, now confirmed as the latest position, is a complete turnabout from President Marcos's announcement last Monday that the question of suspending the air strikes would be taken up at the conference.

This follows Rusk's statement on arrival here Friday that no decision had been reached on suggestions from various sources that such a pause be made; that his government was still anxious to know what Hanoi's reaction would be if the bombing were stopped.

The Philippine official also said: "I do not think there will be a peace formula from this conference. Such a formula would be of no use if it is rejected by Hanoi.

He disclosed, however, that "a consensus is building for the establishment of a committee to take charge of the implementation of decisions that might be taken at the conference."

A Philippine source said that this special working body would sound out possible Asian mediators in the Viet Nam conflict and try to promote an all-Asian peace conference. The Philippine source said possible mediators are Pakistan, Ceylon, Nepal, Burma, and Japan.

There were unconfirmed reports here that Indonesia might be asked to join the mediation efforts.

. . . WALES LANDSLIDE

Stephen Andrew, 40, school janitor, described the slide:

"I heard a noise from the mountain. It sounded like the rush of giant waves on the seashore. I rushed out and the mountain sludge was moving down towards the school.

"Teachers were breaking windows and screaming for help. I rushed inside to get 20 children out. The black mud just kept moving. Things were breaking and the children were screaming.

"It was hopeless trying to reach the others. But I must go on digging. My two sons, Kelvin, 10, and Malcolm, 8, are in there."

"Coal tips," as the Welsh term the sludge heaps, have recently been a subject of controversy. A campaign to get rid of them has been mounted but little has been achieved.

Calling for an inquiry into the tragedy, Britain's minister of state for Wales, George Thomas, said:

"A generation of children has been wiped out in this village. South Wales has an abundance of tips of this character, and it is essential that we should know the cause of the disaster and whether it would be repeated in other places."

Tommy Davies, 10, was late for school with three of his chums, Philip Hughes, Vincent Parfitt and Michael Jones. So he was alive today to tell the story of what he saw from the railway bank behind the school building.

"We heard it coming down the tip like the quiet rumble of thunder," he said. "I couldn't see it at first because it was very foggy. When it appeared through the fog it looked like water pouring down the hillside.

"It uprooted a big tree on its way. Philip and I ran back but the other two ran the other way. It just swept them away.

"They ran right into it. It hit the school like a big wave, spattering all over the place and crushing the building. I was very scared."

Adrian Clayton, 11, was another of the boys saved because he was late for school.

"I took a little longer than usual on my paper round and was five minutes late getting to school," he said. "When I got there I walked into the yard and saw a great wall of mud coming down on the school very fast. I ran for my life.

"There was a great crashing and banging and I didn't stop running."

At least two of the staff tried to protect the children with their bodies. Deputy head teacher David Beynon shielded five tots beneath him. Rescue workers found him with his arms outspread around the children. All were crushed to death. A woman canteen worker died but the five children she clutched in her arms were found still alive.

Not only the schoolhouse suffered. Fifteen houses and a farmstead were swept away.

REMARRIAGE RULE PASSES

WINNIPEG (CP) — A controversial remarriage canon passed by the general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada was approved by an 84-to-23 vote Friday by the Synod of Rupert's Land.

Delegates expressed mixed views on the canon, passed by the general synod in 1965 and up for review in 1967 before becoming official, which would permit divorced Anglicans to remarry in the church. Some said it was a reversal of Christ's teachings on marriage.

Despite present regulations on divorce, divorced persons have been remarried outside the church and then are welcomed back to the church.

Driver In Fatal Fined $100

The driver of a car involved in a fatal accident last month was fined $100 today when he pleaded guilty to careless driving.

'Canadian Officer Ordered Executions'

TORONTO (CP) — The Star quotes a former Canadian Army major as saying he authorized the executions of two German deserters with Canadian weapons after VE Day in Holland with the approval of 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade headquarters.

The executions have recently become a public issue in Germany. Defence Minister Hellyer recently told the Commons an investigation had shown that allegations that the executions were illegal were without foundation.

The officer quoted by The Star is Oliver Mace, former major of the Seaforth Highlanders of Vancouver, now a farmer of Innisfail, Alta. He was acting commanding officer of the Seaforths in the absence of senior officers.

The Star quotes him as saying he personally ordered the issue of weapons and authorized the executions after getting approval over the telephone from brigade headquarters. Canadian ammunitions and shovels were used and a Canadian supervising officer was provided to facilitate the executions.

The executed men were deserters from the German army convicted by a German court martial of desertion and collaboration with the Allies. Mr. Mace is quoted as saying he was unaware of the collaboration charge.

He said he understood the two sailors turned themselves in to Canadians at Amsterdam just after V-E Day and were placed in a compound with 3,500 German troops who had just surrendered. The Germans were made responsible for their own internal discipline.

Pick Any World Channel In TV Viewing of Future

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is on the verge of space-age changes in broadcasting and faces chaos if it does not adjust, a consulting firm contends in a brief to the Board of Broadcast Governors.

Broadcast Management Consulting Services says new techniques will make wholesale changes necessary not only in technology but in the kinds of programming and service offered by Canadian stations.

The Ajax, Ont., firm says that in about five years land-based microwave television networks will disappear. They will be replaced by a Canadian space satellite or one shared by Canada with one or more nations.

Not long after that, home receiving sets will be able to pick up TV signal reflections direct from orbiting satellites, opening up an abundance of programs from a host of countries for every viewer across the country.

With such a wide choice available from outside the country, viewers will watch foreign programs unless there are drastic changes in the present TV structure in Canada, the consulting firm predicts.

The company will submit its brief at a BBG hearing here next week.

The board called the special hearing to discuss availability of current very high frequency TV channels and how to go about opening up additional channels in the ultra high frequency range.

The consulting service says first use of space satellites will be for the publicly-owned CBC network and the privately-owned CTV network to bounce signals off the satellite from a single station to other main stations along the network. These would continue to relay the signal to home receivers.

But the next stage would make each home receiver capable of receiving the reflected signals from many satellites without an intermediate station.

". . . The whole of Canada will be within reach of not only Canadian satellite programs but also those of other nations."

Broadcast Management draws a comparison between these TV developments and the growth of local radio across Canada. Radio stations no longer had the big studios and the pianos and organs that once were an essential part of their equipment.

Local radio now made extensive use of high quality recorded music because of new recording techniques.

OLD STATUS SYMBOL . . .
. . . NOW STANDARD EQUIPMENT

It isn't generally known, but around 75 per cent of the new homes being built in British Columbia come equipped with a garbage disposal unit.

Every one of them is installed by a master craftsman from the plumbing industry.

You don't own a new home?

That doesn't mean you have to be without the piece of equipment which over the past few years has moved out of the status symbol bracket and into the standard equipment class.

A call to one of the firms listed below will bring to your door a Journeyman Mechanic who will not only advise you on the type of garbage disposer you should have, but will install it with all the highly trained skill at his command.

Two things are certain: you will never regret your new move into modern living, and you will be impressed by the technical knowledge and craftsmanship of the modern plumber:

Teachers Ask Protection In Boycott

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Oakland teachers are demanding police protection for teachers and pupils and prosecution of anyone who encourages a school boycott.

The 2,200 - member Oakland Teachers Association adopted the resolution in the face of a boycott which began Tuesday.

The teachers said that unless the city board of education gives them the assurances they request they may carry their complaints to the National Education Association.

At predominantly Negro Castlemont high school Wednesday, a group of 250 Negro truants beat five white teachers and three white students and littered classrooms.

Absenteeism has soared to double the normal rate in the city's secondary and high schools.

Castlemont school was quiet Friday after District Attorney Frank Coakley of Alameda County declared there would be no leniency for vandals arrested in the racial disorders.

A school boycott continued. However, only about 800 of 26,000 students in the target schools attempted to attend a "freedom school" teaching civil rights subjects. The 800 were turned away from the "freedom school." University officials said the students were denied use of the classrooms.

Woman Placed On $250 Bond

A woman who took a bottle of vanilla extract from a store Sept. 16 was convicted of theft under $50 and placed on a $250 good behavior bond Friday.

Mrs. Jessie Callan, 330 Niagara, told the court she didn't know what possessed her to take the bottle from Don's Food Market, 99 Menzies. She said she had no intention of stealing it.

Policeman's Wife Turns in Alarm

Stores Boycott Snowballs

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Housewives in the United States and Canada have threatened more action against grocery chains as the boycott movement against high food prices continues to snowball.

Housewives in Albuquerque, N.M., and Windsor, Ont., banded Friday into groups modelled on the group of irate Denver women who began a boycott against five supermarket chains Monday.

Members of Housewives Encouraging Lower Food Prices announced Friday that Foodway's 11 stores in Albuquerque will be boycotted starting Monday.

Robert L. Gibson, Jr., president of Libby, McNeil and Libby, said in a Chicago speech: "I find it difficult to reason that the prices in processed food will not continue to rise."

U.S. Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, in Denver stumping for Colorado Democrats, said the women are "exercising the consumer's four basic rights."

He said these are the right to safety, the right to choose, the right to be informed and the right to be heard.

In some areas, the women and the stores showed signs of coming to an armed truce. The Denver Housewives for Lower Food Prices took the local Safeway and Miller's stores off their black list but kept up their campaign against three other large chains, including King Soopers.

In Montreal, Sam Steinberg, president of Steinberg's Ltd., said the supermarket chain would make it possible for women to exchange pinkie stamps for food or merchandise.

Until now, customers saving the stamps could turn them in only for merchandise listed in a catalogue.

Mr. Steinberg said demonstrations in Montreal resulted in a three-per-cent drop in sales.

He said the only way to keep prices down is for the firm to produce the items it retails. He expected this would reduce prices on some products by 25 per cent.

A predicted invasion by 2,000 housewives on a Toronto Loblaws supermarket fizzled Friday night as about 25 women turned up to compare prices. The women represented the Housewives Organization for Modern Economy.

The leader of the Pontiac, Mich., campaign, Mrs. Judy Nantais, 22, was asked about a supermarket executive's statement that today's housewife isn't as good a homemaker as grandmother used to be.

"Malarky," she said. "We budget, we shop carefully, and still we have a tough time of it."

Price Controls Out As Inflation Curb

HOT SPRINGS, Va (ap) — Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler said today the U.S. administration does not intend to impose price controls as a means of combating inflation.

"Because our economy is so robust and resilient, there is not on any horizon we can now foresee the slightest prospect that controls will be required," Fowler told the fall meeting of the Business Council.

But the treasury secretary declined in his prepared speech to rule out increases in income and corporate tax rates if inflationary pressures continue.

"It may well be that, in the months ahead, further restraints will be required in federal fiscal policy," Fowler said.

Some of the 100 leading American businessmen at the meeting said they would favor increases in income and corporate tax rates if it is impossible to curb inflation through cuts in government spending.

Fowler admitted "some very real problems" exist in the U.S. economy—rising prices, "excessive weakness of the housing sector, and inflationary pressures."

MARKET SUMMARIES

Oil Activity Fails to Hold Rally

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A bid for a strong rally on Canada's stock markets lost its momentum this week despite a surging oil market which followed new exploration prospects.

Brokers were disappointed that the market could not maintain the thrust that had seen six consecutive days of higher prices before they dipped Wednesday.

Analysts said the lack of support could show that investors are not convinced that the events which had caused the markets to slide for the last eight months are basically changed.

At Toronto, industrials experienced two sharp days of gains with Monday's advance being the biggest one-day increase in 14 months.

As a result the industrial index moved up 2.49 to 143.22 on the week.

OBSERVERS WORRIED

But the fact the market ran out of steam at mid-week has some observers worried that stocks could experience another prolonged period of decline.

In the main list, Alcan increased 1½ to 28⅞ after the company announced an increase in its quarterly dividend to 25 cents from 22½ cents. Inco added 2¾ at 84½. Chrysler dropped 1⅝ to 36⅝ and CPR ⅝ to 54¼.

Investors gave strong support to western oils and the oil index climbed 7.34 to 111.92 as a result of the upcoming Oct. 25 sales of oil and natural gas in the Rainbow and Zama Lake regions of northwestern Alberta.

Dome jumped 3⅝ to 28¾, Canadian Superior 3½ to 26¼ and Home A 1¼ to 21. Provo advanced 15 cents to 5.15 in speculative oils.

Among major refiners, B-A Oil was up 2¼ to 30¾ and Imperial Oil ⅛ to 53⅛.

URANIUMS ACTIVE

Uraniums were again featured earlier in the week following an announcement by Rio Algom that it had signed an agreement to supply the United Kingdom with 8,000 short tons of uranium during the 1970's. The stock moved up 2⅝ to 25½.

Denison Mines, which has the world's largest known reserves of the metal, was ahead 3¼ to 61¾.

Lake Dufault, which announced encouraging copper and zinc findings on its Noranda property, advanced 2 to 10⅞. Falconbridge, which controls the company, added 3⅞ at 85.

United Keno Hill, Canada's largest silver mine, plunged 1.50 to 3.10 on news that the company might have to close its Yukon Territory mine.

On index, base metals were up 1.78 to 88.67 and the TSE 2.57 to 137.39. Golds dropped 1.68 to 155.29. Volume was 17,343,000 shares compared with 12,644,000 during the four days last week.

At Montreal, industrials were ahead 3.02 to 143.01, banks 1.63 to 109.02 and papers 1.93 to 107.98. Utilities were off .01 to 125.90. Volume was 4,654,000 shares against 3,127,000 last week.

No. We say it's looking at other people's homes.

When you're trying to sell your house, you're not apt to feel very sporting about it. But you're always ahead of the game when you see a real estate broker. He'll show your house only to real prospects, save you wear and tear on your floors and nerves.
